

The Central Guardian

IT PAYS to buy in this Province.

BROOKFIELD.—There will be regular services in the Brookfield Congregation on Sunday next, 14th inst., as follows: Brookfield, 11 a.m., Hartsville, 3, and Hunter River at 7 p.m.

CAR FERRY.—The car ferry steamer yesterday went to Georgetown and will continue on the Pictou-Georgetown route along with the Stanley, until further orders. The steamer docked there at 9.55 yesterday, the mail special with passengers, arriving in the city at 12.40. A special train with mails and passengers left last night at 8.45 to connect with the steamer.

WEDDING.—On Tuesday morning, an interesting wedding took place in St. Bernard's Church, where Jacob Sark, son of Indian Chief Sark, of Lennox Island, P. E. I., was united in marriage to Miss Mary Louise Augustine, formerly of Richibucto, but now of Moncton. Friends of both parties were in attendance to extend to the couple the best wishes. The party left this afternoon for Prince Edward Island. Moncton Times.

SUPREME COURT.—In a rule returnable before the Court yesterday in a garnishee matter—the King vs. Morrison in which Johnston and Mr. Bentley argued in favor of Morrison. The Attorney-General with Mr. McKinnon in support of rule contending council had the right to use this process of the court for the purpose of collecting this indebtedness on the part of Morrison to Crown by reason of his bond being estreated. The court adjourned at 4.30 p.m. to meet this morning at 11 o'clock.

PRINCE EDWARD THEATRE.—"The Thousand Dollar," with the captivating movie star, Miss Blanche Sweet taking the leading role, was a picture of entrancing interest at this theatre last evening. The second of the series of the adventures of Grant, the Police Reporter, had a decided dash and thrill which indicates that the series grow better with each new chapter. A very enlightening comedy wound up the program. Today's bill-of-fare is headed by the ninth chapter of "The Shielding Shadow," entitled, "The Incurable Captain." A three-part Selig drama "The Grinning Skull," and "The Caretaker's Dilemma" are other good ones, while Mutt and Jeff in "His Wisdom Tooth," and "His Lucky Day," a Vitagraph comedy, create merriment galore.

PERSONALS
Mr. M. C. McDonald, City, came in from Georgetown yesterday.
Supt. Grady returned yesterday from Georgetown.
Mrs. George Montgomery Alberton, is at present visiting friends in the city.
Mr. Charles R. Harper, of the P. E. I. R., returned yesterday from Moncton.
Mr. J. J. Hughes, M. P., Souris, left last night for Georgetown en route to Ottawa.
Mrs. J. D. McLarty returned by the car ferry yesterday from a month's visit to her home in Ontario.
Mrs. Norman Beaton, Union Road, is spending the week with friends in the city.
Mr. W. C. Kerr, of the Poultry Division, Department of Agriculture, returned yesterday from Truro.
Mr. Hollis Rowe arrived in the city yesterday from Moncton to spend a few days at his home here.
Mr. C. J. Gallagher, manager of the Prince Edward Theatre, returned yesterday from a business trip to St. John.
Mr. P. E. Phenehy, accountant in the Royal Bank at Summerside, has returned after spending his holidays with his parents in Halifax.
Mrs. F. J. Jones, of Moncton, arrived in the city yesterday to spend some time with her sister, Mrs. (Judge) W. S. Stewart.
Miss Josie Doyle, Bloomfield, and Miss Katherine Hughes, Norboro, are spending a couple of weeks in the city visiting friends.
Mrs. P. S. McIntyre, of Kensington, and Mrs. Cornelius McLellan, of Grand River, are on a two weeks' visit to friends in this city, coming in by the western train on Monday.

POWNAI CIRCUIT.—Jan. 1. th. Services Clifton at 11 a. m., Mount Herbert at 2.30 Pownal at 7. Rev. E. S. Weeks officiating.

SERVICES CONTINUED.—The United Evangelistic services will be continued in the Fryon Baptist Church next week and concluded on Friday evening.

ASSISTING PASTOR.—Rev. E. S. Weeks, Pownal is assisting Rev. H. A. Brown, Murray Harbour in special religious services. He will return to Pownal for the Sunday services, on 14th.

SHIP-BUILDING.—Mr. Donald Nicholson, M.P., will read a paper in the Board of Trade room this evening at 8 o'clock, his subject being "Ship-building in P. E. Island." This industry is becoming a very live subject just now, and one in which all are interested. The public are cordially invited to be present. 3907

PIPER JOINS COMRADES.—Among arrivals in the city yesterday was a piper of the 236th Kilites of Fredericton, who will take part in the recruiting meetings being held in the country by Lieuts. Blair and Humphries and Sergt. Major Delaney. It is worthy of note that all the officers of the 236th have been at the front, and enlisted as privates earning their promotion by active service.

WEDDED IN CALIFORNIA.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson W. Lane, 55 North Chester avenue, was the scene of a pretty wedding ceremony on Saturday evening, December 31, when William A. McLaren and Miss Cecelia Olson, both of this city, were united in marriage by Dr. James Henry McLaren, brother of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. McLaren will reside in their cozy bungalow located on Glen avenue.—Star News, Pasadena, Cal. (Mr. McLaren formerly belonged to Souris. He is a brother of Mrs. Charles Coffin, of Gerald St.)

FUNERAL YESTERDAY.—The remains of Mrs. John Webster, mother of Messrs A. F. and J. A. Webster, of this city, arrived in Charlottetown on Wednesday from Franklin, Mass., and were forwarded to Midgell, by the afternoon train. Interment was made there yesterday afternoon. Deceased was over eighty years of age and passed away after only two days illness. Besides her two sons, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Newcombe, of Franklin, who accompanied the remains to the Island.

RECOMMENDED FOR FLYING CORPS.—Word has been received that Corporal Fred M. Nash, of Charlottetown, and Sergeant E. G. McLeod, of Hunter River, members of the 98th Siege Battery, have been recommended for the Flying Corps. The friends of both boys will be much interested in this news. Mr. Nash, who is a son of Mr. F. J. Nash, Managing-Editor of the Patriot, left here as a gunner and was promoted to Bombardier, later being promoted to the field to Corporal. Mr. McLeod, who was a Corporal, has by his excellent work won his way to Sergt.

WHAT HAPPENED AT HAECHT.—When the Huns Passed Through from Malines. He had helped his widowed mother with the harvest for two weeks past. But late one afternoon, not waiting even for supper, he left Thielth swiftly, bidding his mother keep within doors till he returned for her. News had come, frightened peasants driving east had brought it, that the Prussian greys, driven back from Malines, were killing every man, woman and child in the path of their retreat, leaving nothing but death behind.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

When the Huns Passed Through from Malines. He had helped his widowed mother with the harvest for two weeks past. But late one afternoon, not waiting even for supper, he left Thielth swiftly, bidding his mother keep within doors till he returned for her. News had come, frightened peasants driving east had brought it, that the Prussian greys, driven back from Malines, were killing every man, woman and child in the path of their retreat, leaving nothing but death behind. So he hastened west to Haecht, to his wife and family there. Traveling afoot in the dusk the first four miles passed swiftly. Then the big harvest moon sailed up amongst the stars, and he thought that two hours' travel by her light would bring him home. But when he neared Rotselaer, through which he had hoped to pass, he found the village in flames, and an ominous silence into which he dared not break, brooded there.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

Matinee 3.15 PRINCE EDWARD Night 7 & 8.45
GRACE DARMOND, LEON BARY AND RALPH KELLARD IN
The Incurable Captive
NINTH CHAPTER OF THE WONDER SERIAL
"The Shielding Shadow"
Mystery and Sensation again holds sway in this Chapter
WHO IS THE SHIELDING SHADOW?
THE UNIVERSAL FAVORITES MUTT AND JEFF IN His Wisdom Tooth
LAUGHTER GALORE IN TODAY'S PROGRAM. DON'T MISS IT
EUGENIE BESSERER IN "The Grinning Skull"
Three Part Selig Drama
His Lucky Day
Vitagraph Comedy
BUD HAMILL, ETHEL TEARE IN The Caretakers Dilemma
MONDAY TUESDAY SESSUE HAYAKAWA IN Honorable Friend
ALSO The Secret of the Submarine

EAT BIG MEALS NO SOUR, ACID STOMACH INDIGESTION OR GAS
"PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN" IS QUICKEST SUREST STOMACH RELIEF KNOWN—TRY IT!
Try it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes.
If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion. Get from your pharmacist a fifty cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you eat. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, dizziness, debilitating headaches, flatulency or intestinal griping. This will go, and, besides there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with noxious odors.
Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-door stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digest it just the same as if your stomach wasn't here.
Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.
These large fifty cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

ABSORBINE
Removes Bursal Enlargements, Thickened, Swollen Tissues, Cuts, Filled Tendons, Soreness from any Bruise or Strain; Stops Spavin Lameness. Allays Pain. Does not Blister, remove the hair or lay up the horse. $2.00 a bottle, delivered. Book 1 K free.
ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for manking. For Syphilis, Strains, Gouty or Rheumatic Deposits, Swollen, Painful Varicose Veins. Will tell you more if you write. $1 and $2 per bottle at dealers or delivered. Manufactured only by W. F. YOUNG, P.O. Box 111, Lyman's Blk., Montreal, Can.
Absorbine and Absorbine, Jr., are made in Canada.

Dried Fruits
We have one of the nicest assortment to be found in the city.
Evaporated Apples.
Evaporated Peaches.
Evaporated Apricots.
Evaporated Prunes.
Full range now in stock.
Beer & Goff
3746-1-3M WIMIF.

EXPERT EYE SERVICE
We have recently had the privilege of visiting the offices of some of the most expert Opticians in Canada. We have studied their methods and seen them practically demonstrated, and it is a matter of gratification to be able to say that the service we are giving our patrons, we believe is quite equal to that obtainable in the larger centres.
We solicit your patronage.
G.F. Hutcheson
Optician

Flour
In stock at our Seed Warehouse several hundred barrels best brands
Flour, in barrels and 98-49 and 24 lb. bags, which must be cleared out at once to make room for cars of seed and grain now on the way, our prices will be found the lowest in the City. Barrels and Bags all sizes.
"Robin Hood" Flour is the best Flour on the Market made from No. 1 Hard Manitoba wheat, makes from 10 to 15 loaves more bread to the barrel than any other brand. Try a barrel you will like it and use no other.
Carter & Co. Ltd

Here is the Perfect Clothes Cleaner
Putman's Dry Cleaner
An American article imported solely by us, and with a long-standing record for successfully cleaning
Furs
Silks
Laces
Feathers.
Ribbons
Gloves
and
All Fine Fabrics
With it you do not need to use soap or water. Large box 50c
THE 2 MACS
149 Gt. Geo. Street

A CANADIAN SOLDIER SAYS
"Tell my friends, if they want to help me, to send some Zam-Buk. The boys here say it is very good, and it is much in demand." This is an extract from a letter received from Pte. J. R. Smith of "The Princess Pats" in France.
There is certainly nothing so good as Zam-Buk for the accidents and ailments incidental to a soldier's life. It is splendid for all kinds of sores, blisters, burns and cuts, and it is equally good for frost bites, chilblains, cold cracks and chapped hands. Nothing ends pain and heals so quickly, and being antiseptic, an application of Zam-Buk to a wound as soon as sustained, will prevent all danger of blood-poisoning.
If you want to send your soldier friend something he is sure to appreciate—put a box or two of Zam-Buk in your next parcel.
All druggists, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

MURRAY HARBOR CIRCUIT.—Jan. 14th. Services, White Sands at 11 a. m., Cape Bear, at 2.30; Murray Harbor 6.30. The pastor conducting services.

LETTERS OF SYMPATHY.—At the second meeting of the Quarterly Official Board of the Granville Methodist Circuit held at Stanley on December 4th, 1916, a resolution of sympathy was passed and ordered to be sent to several persons who had lost friends, but in the report appearing in the press the name of Mr. John Carew was inadvertently omitted much to the regret of the members of the Board. Mr. Carew was for many years a faithful member of and worker in the Wheatley River church, and to his bereaved widow we tender our sincere sympathy. Signed on behalf of the Quarterly Official Board.

RECOMMENDED FOR FLYING CORPS.—Word has been received that Corporal Fred M. Nash, of Charlottetown, and Sergeant E. G. McLeod, of Hunter River, members of the 98th Siege Battery, have been recommended for the Flying Corps. The friends of both boys will be much interested in this news. Mr. Nash, who is a son of Mr. F. J. Nash, Managing-Editor of the Patriot, left here as a gunner and was promoted to Bombardier, later being promoted to the field to Corporal. Mr. McLeod, who was a Corporal, has by his excellent work won his way to Sergt.

WHAT HAPPENED AT HAECHT.—When the Huns Passed Through from Malines. He had helped his widowed mother with the harvest for two weeks past. But late one afternoon, not waiting even for supper, he left Thielth swiftly, bidding his mother keep within doors till he returned for her. News had come, frightened peasants driving east had brought it, that the Prussian greys, driven back from Malines, were killing every man, woman and child in the path of their retreat, leaving nothing but death behind.

So he hastened west to Haecht, to his wife and family there. Traveling afoot in the dusk the first four miles passed swiftly. Then the big harvest moon sailed up amongst the stars, and he thought that two hours' travel by her light would bring him home. But when he neared Rotselaer, through which he had hoped to pass, he found the village in flames, and an ominous silence into which he dared not break, brooded there.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

APPIN ROAD CIRCUIT.—Rev. J. S. MacKay will conduct services next Sabbath the 14th, Appin Road at 11; Hampton at 3 and an Evangelistic service in Tryon at 7.

WEDDED YESTERDAY.—At the Queen Hotel on Wednesday, the 10th, Mr. A. D. Martin, of Grandview, and Miss Mary Catherine McDonald, of Garfield, late of New Bedford, Mass., were united in marriage. Mr. Martin is one of the prosperous and intelligent farmers of his vicinity, and Miss McDonald a lady of exceptionally pleasing personality and fine qualities; also a trained nurse. This young couple start a life under most auspicious opportunities and have the best wishes of their many friends that their future may be bright and prosperous. The ceremony was performed by Mr. Martin's pastor Rev. Dr. McEwen.

OYSTER BED BRIDGE.—Mr. George Carr and Mr. Willis Kelly, of Traveller's Rest are visiting at Hill Side cottage, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Carr.—Miss Ada Horne has returned home after spending the week's end visiting Miss Bell Matheson of Oyster Bed Bridge. Miss Helen MacKay has returned home after visiting in the United States.—The ice is in excellent condition for horse racing now.—Mr. Percy Carr is the proud owner of a promising colt sired by Acquire. His friends are all anxious to see him race.—Miss Bell Matheson spent Sunday at Highfield the guest of her sister Mrs. Athol Roberts.

LETTER OF SYMPATHY.
To Mr. and Mrs. Ebenezer Brown and Family:—
We in behalf of Superintendent, teachers, and scholars of York Sunday School wish to convey to you at this time our sincere sympathy in the great loss you have sustained so recently by the death of your son James.

We will always miss him in his accustomed place in Sunday School and Church choir. He has been called to the Higher life beyond for which we believe he was fully prepared having decided for Christ a few years ago.
Death has entered your home and the shadow of another grave lies upon your hearts. We pray these losses may bring you nearer to Him who is too wise to err and too good to be unkind.
GERTRUDE COOKE,
LIZZIE A. VESSEY,
Jan. 8th., 1917.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

THE SULTAN ECHOES HIS MASTER'S VOICE.
LONDON, January 11.—A Constantinople despatch by Reuter, by way of Amsterdam, gives the text of a proclamation of the Sultan to the army, in which, after recalling the peace offer of the Central Powers, the Sultan says:—
"The enemy countries, disregarding the serious intention and sublime spirit of our purpose, disdainfully rejected our offer, and we are obliged, with our allies, to continue the war, leaving to the enemy the moral and material responsibility of fresh bloodshed and the ruin of homes."
The Sultan assures the Turkish soldiers that during the war they have "brilliantly enhanced the venerated name of Ottomanism," and expresses the conviction that "with the aid of the Almighty we shall obtain final victory and deliver our country from the avidity of our enemies."

"Henceforth, with our allies," he continues, "we will redouble our zeal and efforts in order, with the aid of God, to destroy our enemies."

SAYS CHINA GREATEST OF NEUTRAL SUFFERERS
PEKING, Jan. 11.—Wu Ting-Fang minister of foreign affairs, has sent to Dr. Paul Reinsch, the American minister, a reply to President Wilson's peace note. This declares that China is probably the greatest neutral sufferer from the war because her economic and industrial reforms require the assistance of other powers. It adds that China is sympathetic with President Wilson's desire for the restoration of peace and with an arrangement which would uphold the equality of all the nations, weak or strong, so that further acts of injustice and violence would be impossible.

He made a detour north, and it was midnight ere, full of foreboding, he crept up towards Haecht. Here, too, flames rose up from a dozen burning houses, but it seemed to him that his own hearth lay untouched. Save for the crash of falling, blazing timbers, there was as deep a silence as was wont to encompass the little village any midnight of the year, but this was the silence, not of slumber, but of death and devastation. In an agony of fear, for those whose life meant more than life to him, and but late one afternoon, he rushed towards a little vine-covered cottage at the further end of the village, a little house alternately illuminated, and cast into shade, by the leaping flames nearby. As he passed down the street, he came upon the dead bodies of ten civilians, lying in a row. A dozen paces farther, lay in the garden, his eldest daughter shot through the forehead, lay by the gate, and by her side, two other children, bayoneted. Such was the fate of Haecht, and the atrocities described above have gone into history, proved by unimpeachable evidence. The memory of such atrocities, murder, mutilation and outrage, of brother, wives, and sisters is not the least part of the dreadful yoke of Belgium. But the most formidable and urgent danger, with which they are faced, is starvation. For two years the people have been on the verge of famine, and today the crisis is reached, for unnumbered millions are sent in large quantities, many must perish. Send your contribution to the nearest Relief Committee, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, 59, St. Peter street, Montreal.

SIR SAM DEFINES THE PEACE TERMS
Tells New Yorkers What the Allies Are Fighting for.
NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Sir Sam Hughes, formerly Canadian Minister of Militia and Defense, speaking at a meeting of the Canadian Club of New York tonight declared that in his opinion the Entente Allies would insist upon the overthrow of the "Hohenzoellern autocracy" in the formulation of peace terms.

"The Allies are fighting for the rights of humanity, including the great people of Germany," said Sir Sam Hughes. "They are fighting for the restoration of Belgium, Holland, and France, Poland and Roumania, Serbia and Montenegro."
"The Kiel canal must be free to the world and be unfortified. Schleswig-Holstein should belong to Denmark. Persia and Turkey must be free from German control and Armenia or what is left of it must be placed beyond possibility of further butcheries. Alsace and Lorraine rightly should go to France."

HOTEL ARRIVALS
Revere Hotel
C. E. Christian, Halifax.
Frank Macdonald, Summerside.
D. K. McNeill, Outlook, Sask.
A. B. McDonald, Vernon.
Jas. England, Travellers Rest.
A. J. MacNevin, Bonshaw.
W. H. Reid, St. John.
J. C. Cook, Kensington.
P. McCarthy, Souris.
James Kichham, Souris.
A. E. Freeman, Amherst.
Percy C. Kent, Dartmouth.

S.O.S. FURS
Safety First
Nothing is more important to the Fur Shipper than doing business with an Honest—Reliable—Responsible—Safe Fur House.
"Ship to Shubert"
the largest house in the World dealing exclusively in American Raw Furs, where you will always receive an Accurate and Liberal Assortment at the Highest Market Prices and the usual "Shubert" Efficient, Speedy, Courteous service.
Write for the latest edition of "The Shubert Shipper" containing valuable Market information you must have.
A. B. SHUBERT, Inc. Dept. C-11, CHICAGO, U.S.A.

Good Job Printing
We are now in a position to handle all kinds of Job Printing at short notice. Give us a call with your next order and be convinced.
Billheads, Letterheads, Statements, Noteheads, Gum Labels, Law Blanks, Post Cards, Wedding Announcements, Blotters, Visiting Cards, Law Factums, Menu Cards, Handbills, Envelopes, Dodgers, Posters,
We carry a large stock of Writing and Printing Papers all colors to select from, Card Boards, Cover Papers and Tag Board. Prompt deliveries and lowest prices.
Charlottetown Guardian
Charlottetown, P. E. I.