VALUABLE SERIES OF DAIRY MEETINGS

During the greater part of last week (July 5-10) the most valuable series of Dairy Picnics known in the Agricultural history of P. E. Island were carried into effect by the officials of the Provincial and Federal Departments of Agriculture in co-operation with the Dairy men of the Province. The most prominent men who officiated at the different gatherings were George H. Barr, of the Dairy Division Mr. Mitchell of the Agricultural Department explained the development of the Creamery business in St. Louis and enthused his hearers by citing similar undertakings in other parts of the Province that were developing butter making in preference to cheese making. His remarks were most encouraging when they concerned the future development of butter making on the Island. He said the people of St. Louis and Father Gauthier were to be congratulated on the excellent condition in which their Creamery was kept, history of which was due to the efforts of Mr. Benjamin Gallant their butter maker.

Mr. Reid gave a short discourse on the value of creamery work as a valuable part of Live Stock raising, from the standpoint of skim milk being kept in the farm. This by-product is of greater value than any other ever before in view of the fact that all livestock feeds are high priced. He gave a full explanation of the wool grading that had been done at the Agricultural building in Summerside and congratulated the farmers of St. Louis on showing the creamery and industry towards co-operation of any section on the Island. He said that a great future was in store for the farmers who did co-operate, especially when it concerned the selling of farm products. Next year the wool grading is to be taken on a large scale and will undoubtedly meet with a more unanimous acceptance than it had this year.

Father Gauthier in bringing the meeting to a close made some remarks concerning the development of co-operation in the dairy industry. He mentioned the phenomenal growth in the Creamery and other co-operative movements as due to those who had openly accepted this method as the best means for getting the greatest profit from their farm production.

The second meeting of the series was held at Mont Carmel under the able guidance of Father Arsenault. A large, enthusiastic audience of men and women gathered and were addressed by the speakers of the previous evening. Mr. Barr in opening his address dealt with his observations of that day. He cited the preference from his experience on his home farm underdrainage would be a valuable asset to the farming community and would be of vital assistance to the betterance of dairying. The balance of his talk was along the same subjects as dealt with at St. Louis.

Professor Reid who was second speaker of the evening, dealt with the feeding of calves and other classes of young stock. He placed emphasis on the returns that were to be derived from this class of livestock and that the growth of the Creamery industry due to cheese-making was undoubtedly due in many cases to the increased value of the live stock.

Mr. Mitchell emphasized the plan which was cited by Mr. Barr and congratulated the efforts of the farmers on the excellent success of the day. He had during the two seasons that their creamery was in operation.

Father Gauthier gave a lecture on co-operation in French which was enthusiastically received by his hearers.

The third meeting of the series was in the form of a dairy picnic held at Carleton Point, where the patrons of Tryon, Crapaud and Dunk River creameries were assembled. The selection of picnic grounds proved to be a delightful surprise as it overlooked the Car Ferry Terminal where the work of construction is being carried out at the present time. When the programme was announced to begin, a mixed audience gathered at a central point and listened to a number of interesting speeches. The first speaker was Professor Reid, who in his agricultural representative for Prince County. In his remarks he gave a review of what was being undertaken and made special reference to the wool grading of the present season.

Cooperation was cited as the principle on which the greatest amount of work could be accomplished in any undertaking and it was cordially solicited from those who had an interest in Agricultural work.

Professor Reek, Director of Agriculture, in his address gave a full discourse on the value of underdrainage as it applied to what was being done in other provinces. The greater returns per acre in any season was the underlying feature in favor of its adoption. The cost of underdrainage acre. This may be calculated as a small yearly amount when it is understood that the tile will give excellent service for forty or fifty years. It is expected that the manufacture of this will be undertaken in this Province which will place the drainage of wet lands within the reach of everyone who is interested.

Mr. Barr dealt fully with the system of keeping individual records of Dairy cows, the care of separators, the cooling, handling, and grading of cream as at the previous meeting. His remarks were enthusiastically accepted by all those who heard him. The Rev. Father Gauthier gave a valuable talk on the importance of Creamery work and co-operation. Other speeches were given by the Rev. Mr. Young of Tryon, Walter Leav, of Victoria, Prof. J. A. Clark of the Experimental Farm Charlottetown, and Mr. Paul E. Murphy, Plant Pathologist of the Experimental Farm, Charlottetown. The closing picnic of the week was held at Dunstaffnage Creamery on Saturday, July 10th. Owing to the wet weather of Friday the picnic had to be postponed until Saturday, but notwithstanding the change a large crowd gathered to enjoy the good things provided by the people of the vicinity. A special train from Souris of the Island, where a large amount of cream is shipped daily, to the creamery. Among those present were the Hon. Murdoch McKinnon, Commissioner of Agriculture, Mr. Barr, Mr. Harvey Mitchell, Rev. Father Gauthier, Professors Reek, Reid, Tenant,

Benson, Clark, Murphy and Ross. A number of very interesting addresses were given on the subjects of co-operation and Dairy work and were thoroughly enjoyed by all those present. The Dunstaffnage Creamery Companies on the Dunstaffnage growth that they had had during the few years of their operations. The location and plant is one of the finest on the Island and as the work is spreading the results in store will be exceptional.

In total such a series of meetings and picnics cannot but have a very desirable effect on the Dairy developments of the Province and due credit is due those who undertake and carry such work into effect.

Ottawa, Harvey Mitchell, Maritime Dairy Specialist, Prof. W.-J. Reid, Agricultural Representative for Prince County and the Rev. Father Gauthier. The first meetings was held at Palmer Road which is in the vicinity of the Creamery that was organized and conducted by Father Gauthier. An audience of about twenty-five farmers and farmer's wives were in attendance and showed keen interest in the discussions that were given to subjects of importance to them.

Mr. Barr gave a complete lecture on Cowing. Testing work, cream gathering and the subjects. His opening remarks dealt with the keeping of individual records for each and every cow in the herd. This he claimed was (Continued on page three)

GREAT MEETING AT CANOE COVE

One of the largest public meetings ever held in Canoe Cove took place there on Thursday evening under the auspices of the Prince Edward Island Patriotic Society. It was intended to meet in the hall but the crowd was so vast that it would have filled the hall two or three times over. People came from long distances and commenced to gather in numbers by seven o'clock though the meeting was not timed till eight o'clock. A platform was arranged outside the hall and seats were provided for the women while the men were satisfied to stand. The Band of the 82nd Regiment under Bandmaster McFarlane contributed a delightful programme of music prior to the meeting which was greatly enjoyed.

Mr. K. J. Martin, S. M. presided and apologized for the absence of Rev. Dr. Fulcrton, who was indisposed and the Rev. D. McLean, who had been unavoidably detained in the city. He referred to the terrible times through which they were passing and the urgent necessity for everyone to question himself regarding his duty to his King and Country. There was no use anyone making excuses; it was up to them to decide definitely whether or not they were prepared to discharge the duty incumbent on every loyal citizen of a democratic state.

Lord Kitchener, Minister of War, had informed them that they had the cement and munitions of war, and all they wanted were men—and men they must have if the British Empire were to be victorious in this titanic conflict.

Dr. Alexander Ross in the course of a cogent and well informed speech referred to the glorious history of the British Empire and its flight for freedom through the ages. He created this with the history of Germany from the time of Julius Caesar, Attila the Hun, the Thirty Years War, the Franco-Prussian war, down to this unwarranted intervention in China, and showed that the keynote of German policy throughout its history was aggression, cruelty, barbarism and tyranny. They were a savage people, a ferocious people who knew no mercy. That spirit was not the outcome of a day it was bred in the marrow of their history—a characteristic of their very history being repeated today. There was not a bit of change in them. The same rotten spirit of tyranny prevailed among the German leaders as it did in the past. They did not regard the rights of their own people, nor the rights of other people, in every German colony the people were oppressed and tyrannized. Bands of swaggering sword-buckling officers with swords by their sides hustled the people aside, and if they protested they were as liable to be stabbed with a sword as not. And the people had no redress against them. This province as throughout the British Empire such conduct would not be tolerated for a moment—the swash-bucklers would be hanged or sent to durance.

But once let the Germans get in their hands and then see what was in store for them. Britain had gone to war in the first instance to defend her word of honor and for the protection of weaker nations. But there was a further reason. Britain knew that should Germany once dominate France and Belgium, Britain would be next to suffer from her aggression. It was a war of defence not of offence, and unless they defended their freedom and liberty now they would be forever under the heel of the German tyrant. One of the young men of Canoe Cove had laid down his life that we might be free. There was an old Scottish tradition that where one of the clan had fallen another stepped in to fill his place—not so much for the sake of revenge but to carry on the great struggle was to turn out successful for the British Empire, that idea of the old Scottish clansmen must be resorted to. Each of them had a duty to perform, and it was up to them to find out what that duty was and to do it at once. The great military leader of the Empire said they must have more men, and it was the duty of every loyal citizen of the Empire to see that more men were forthcoming. He was sure that the people of Lot 44 would do their share in supplying them. (Applause.)

Mr. R. H. Campbell said that he had sometimes heard people deplore the war and sympathized with them to a certain extent, they had always to bear in mind that the country that could not face the test of war would soon be cut down. There was not the slightest doubt that in the final analysis the war was the test of nations, and the weaker and less virile nation would be removed as a cumbrance of the ground. The British Empire could only win on condition that she threw her whole strength into the struggle, Nothing but absolute devotion to the Empire on the part of its members could save it at the present time. They were pitted against one of the strongest and most virile combinations of nations in Europe who were using all the ingenuity that science could devise to further their ends. Our men at the front knew this, and in almost every letter from the front they appealed to the young men at home to come over and help them to defeat the foe. It was essential that the men at the front got the encouragement and support necessary to withstand the enormous pressure of the enemy. If those men who were already doing their duty got discouraged from the fact that the people at home were listless and did not trouble to send up supports why they would themselves lose heart and as a result the Empire would tumble over like a pack of cards. There was just one place where Canada could be defended—France and Flanders. If these were lost Canada's fate was sealed. Every bodied man ought to go to the front. If Kitchener's appeal was not answered, and answered promptly, Canada was in danger. The man who did not go now would take all the rest of his life explaining why he did not go.

Colonel Peake explained that in addition to having his son a volunteer Mr. Campbell himself had applied to be reinstated in the militia and if passed hoped to go to the front.

The chairman then read a list of those who had already gone to the front from Lot 44 which was highly creditable to the patriotism and loyalty of its people. Chas. McKinnon, John McKinnon, Neil L. McFaden, Richard Foley, Lorne McNeil, John G. McQuarrie, Archie McKinnon, Gordon Campbell, Jack Campbell, Alex. McDougall, William Campbell, Norman McDonald, Stan Taylor, Herbert McDonald, John McEwen, Frank K. King, Hector McEachern, James McKenzie, George Boyle, William McNeill, A. McEwen. An excellent and enjoyable musical programme was contributed by the band, Capt. Shaw, Lieut. Robins and Professor Barlow. Professor Thompson presided at the piano.

On the motion of Mr. Neil McKenzie the speakers and performers were heartily thanked for their services.
