WHY GERMANY PROPOSES PEACE

LONDON, Dec. 18.— Germany's peace proposals mean, among other things, that the Kaiser knows that Germany cannot win this war. He now suggests a draw. This is good news for the Allies, the best that we have had for some time if we except the changes in the Admiralty and the formation of the Lloyd George Cabinet; but it may be fatal news if we consider the war won, and suppose that we have to make no greater efforts in the future than have been made in the past. Our past exertions have been great enough to make a draw out of the war; greater efforts will be needed to make it a victory. We have never ceased to argue that it is only by our own efforts that this war can be won, and not by the efforts of such nations as Greece, Serbia, Roumania, or by the favor of the United States. We have also been warned against supposing that the German people know that they have lost the war and are ready for peace at any price, or that the naval blockade will starve Germany into submission.

The Pinch of Hunger.

But being resolved to do all in our power to beat the German armies in the field, we are entitled to what comfort we can extract from Germany's internal condition. There is every reason to believe that it is bad and growing steadily worse, because of lack of food, though the captures in Roumania may tide the German population over the Winter. Recently articles have been published from two Americans who have spent some time in Germany, the more notable series being those of D. Thomas Curtin, formerly of Boston, in the London Times, and the others by Madeleine Z. Doty in the New York Tribune and the Boston Transcript. These agree that food is scarce and dear in Germany, and that there is much dissatisfaction among the civilian population. It is the opinion of Mr. Curtin that if the British blockade had been ruthlessly enforced from the beginning of the war Germany might now be on the verge of starvation and the end of the war in sight. Miss Doty thinks that a revolution is brewing in Germany, and that only true or false news of German victories has postponed it.

Liebknecht Party Grows.

She was in Berlin on the day set for the trial of Herr Liebknecht. In her opinion the following of Liebknecht is growing daily. German prisons are said to be full of men who have been heard calling for peace. In Stuttgart, she says, there are 400 political prisoners. On the day of Liebknecht's imprisonment 5,500 workmen in one munition factory on the outskirts of Berlin went on strike as a protest. In other parts of the country there were similar demonstations. The men returned to work the next day, but whether because they feared to face a firing squad or because they felt that they had made a sufficient protest is not known. Everywhere, she tells us, people are signing a petition for peace on the basis of conditions as they existed before the war. This is significant in view of the Kaiser's peace offer. It looks as though the offer were forced from him by the German people. The day after the Liebknecht trial the result of the courtmartial was inconspicuously displayed in the papers. The great headings were devoted to the safe return of the Deutschland. It is suspected that the undersea boat arrived a few days earlier, but that the announcement was deferred until it could be used as an offset to the Socialist demonstration, and as an excuse for national rejoicing.

Fears the German People.

Theauthorities skilfully handled the Liebkencht incident. Miss Doty says that upon the day of the trial, there was to have been a great demonstration on the part of his friends, and those who want the war to end. The word was passed around. The details of the demonstration were to be conveyed to the sympathizers by means of a pamphlet circulated on short notice from hand to hand. A large bundle of these pamphlets was shipped into Berlin, but when it was opened it was found to contain a soldier's uniform. The police had learned of the proposed riots, had discovered the pamphlets and thus frustrated the demonstrators. Of course nobody dared demand what had become of the seditious publication; but apparently the Government is not anxious to proceed vigorously against those who sympathize with Liebknecht. There may be too many of them. It is significant that no efforts have been made to curb or punish those who have circulated the petition for peace on the basis of the conditions existing before the war.

Mr. Curtin tells us that there are other things that the German Government dare not do. For instance, it dare not deal sternly with the junker classes, the wealthy landlords, who are holding back food for famine prices. There is a food dictator, but he does not reach the "man higher up." In Germany, as in other belligerent countries there is a large class making fortunes out of the war and hoping that it may last for ten years. These people believe that as long as they become millionairies it does not matter what flag flies over their country. Money will be useful under any flag. The war profiteers in Germany are unconsciously aiding the revolution that Miss Doty sees coming. Wealthy farmers are known to have burned food rather than sell it at the prices ordered. The Socialists have spread this news broadcast even though their papers are occasionally suppressed and always censored. The fact we ought to keep in mind is that the German revolution is waiting a torch, and that torch must be a crushing defeat for the German armies. The hungry and discontented German people will do their part only after the armies of the Allies have done theirs. There will be no revolution in a Germany that believes herself unconquerable.

Those New "Bran Foods"—a new one is born every week—a recognition of the need of food laxatives instead of drug laxatives. The problem of presenting bran to the human stomach in combination with a nutritious, easily digested food was solved twenty years ago by the invention of Shredded Wheat Biscuit, the food that supplies all the body-building material in the whole wheat grain in a digestible form, combined with bran, which is Nature's laxative. A body-building, strength-giving food. Serve with milk or cream or sliced peaches and cream or other fruits.

A CAUTION FROM HICKS—WAS IT HEEDED?

(Truro News.)

When we printed the forecasts for November from the pen of Astronomer Hicks, written in October, 1915, some of the words were inregard to the weather conditions from November 12 to November 15:—

"We admonish all people interested in harvesting and having perishable agricultural products, to have an eye for danger at this time. Fruit in the open fields and orchards, and things subject to frost and freezing in the grounds, or in transit to market, must take chances of damage and loss at this time."

Now, did our readers, in our farming districts "have an eye" to these frost conditions, as forecasted by Hicks?

In some instances we fear not. We hear of one farmer with 3000 bushels of turnips in the ground—a pretty cold bed for even hardy turnips with the mercury six below zero as last night.

Within a few miles fully 15,000 bushels of turnips are still in the fields! It is hoped the mantle of eight inches of snow has saved them.
