Simmons Beds And Furniture Are Displayed

Special Exhibition at the Canadian National Hotel Here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday

Canadians ought to be the best-rested people in the world. A visit to the free special exhibition of Simmons Beds and furniture Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 29th, 30th and 31st at the Canadian National Hotel from 10.00 A. M. to 10.00 P. M., is witness to the fact that at least their opportunities for peaceful slumber are unbeaten. For many years the factories of Simmons company in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver have sent to their warehouses in practically every Canadian city all of those things that go to make the night one of dreamless slumber.

Today much has been added that is new, smart and novel in the way of bed-furniture. To enter the Canadian National Hotel showroom and take a leisurely view of the displays is much more like enjoying a stroll through one of Mayfair's most modern, luxurious flats than simply walking into a bed room. Yet slumber is the underlying purpose of all many lounges, chesters and bed that line the room.

NO SELLING

It was by special request of dealers that the present demonstration open to the public is being held throughout Canada. There will be no selling, but the articles will be on sale in leading department and furniture stores following the exhibition. In conjunction with C. F. C. Y. Slumber Time Tales will be given from 7.15 to 7.30 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Here are the latest trends in new and modern furniture. Steel furniture is very much to the fore, an Simmons Company is proud of its new Century of Progress suite of steel furniture which was shown at the world fair. Here is permanent furniture in a variety of colors which cannot be affected by climatic conditions so that there is neither swelling, shrinking, warping or twisting. Drawers cannot stick and the enamel finish cannot be hurt. Studio lounges in the very best homespun coverings to form double or twin beds are made with spring-filled cushions and folding end tables that can be put out of sight when desired.

Among other chesters and suitcases being shown for the first time is the chesterfield with adjustable lamps at either end and an adjustable slide to make for more comfortable lounging. Chairs are made to match all chesters and settees and are made in a variety of end tables and trays and on new suites done in modern tapestries.

STEEL CARD TABLE

Card tables in steel with folding chairs in black and silver are very smart indeed, and the little cozy cocktail table with its round laminate surface in a black and white plaid design cannot be marred or stained! An important feature.

With a reputation for the largest manufacture of beds in the world, Simmons is fully abreast of the times, as a survey of new beds, mattresses and cushions discloses. There is new charm in the graceful lines of beds, many of which are in black and silver or terra cotta and silver or such attractive color combinations in metal. Wood grained beds cannot be distinguished from burled walnut, and kiddie's cribs are gay with animal decorations.

Beauty Rest mattresses, with as many as 810 coil springs in tiny pockets, reach new heights of soft comfort, and are attractive in their blue and gold or green and gold covers. Edges are made separately and no longer have to be especially cared for. The new Supreme Ostermoor has spring hair on one side cool for summer, and felt on the other, warm for winter. Herringbone coverings are good and serviceable and the Slumberking, Slumberprince and Slumberqueen springs are used.

Departure from the old floral pattern in pillow coverings to new pastels in high shewn satins is very welcome. Newer pillows have as many as 18 little coil springs for special comfort.

VALEDICTORY

Following is the valedictory read by Mr. Alden Leard:
 As the sun slowly sinks beneath the dim horizon line, marking the close of another day, so we have come to the end of another college year.

Although this morning will stand out as one of the most momentous periods of our lives, it is none the less not without its tincture of sorrow and regret.
 Looking back over the years, we realize that we have had splendid opportunities slip through our grasp, and have failed to make the most of those that lie within our reach.

Today we leave the sheltered life of a college environment, and enter the larger one of the world. In a few years it will seem like a dream, made no less pleasant with its thoughts of intimate friendships developed during our term, within its stately walls. The past has gone. We can live it only in memory. We have received the training; it remains for us to guide our lives by it, and with the knowledge we have gained, we may be able to separate the gold from the dross in the theories and ideas which are now going about the world wholesale.

Many people outside the college are wondering just what is being done to train men and women in assisting the world towards the solution of its problems. Far too many consider a college, as simply a place, where a person may go to gain a great deal of information on a great many subjects. To be of any use this is an indispensable condition for the development of the mind, but it is by no means the whole of knowledge. There must be a digestion of that which is received, a comparison and synthesizing of ideas. Our minds only grow when we learn to relate new facts and information, to what we already know. One may still remain relatively uneducated. Hence we may justly conclude that those who think of a college as a place, where one simply amasses facts, have a hopelessly inadequate idea of its function.

our ears were deafened by the noise of the big guns, and our eyes blinded by the flash of the searchlights in a war which was to end war, we find Europe seething with internal unrest and hatred, and the Pacific Coast turned into a battle front. We do indeed live in the greatest century of all time, but we need as never before farsighted and courageous men and women to help us direct our course into the most productive and worthwhile channels.

Dr. Robertson:—To you we owe more than words can express. During our four years at Prince of Wales you have shown a kind interest in our welfare. From the bottom of my heart I wish to thank you on behalf of the class of '34.

Members of the Faculty:—To you we have doubtless been a source of trial. You alone know the skillful manner in which a student can avoid study. Nevertheless when we are gone we hope you will remember us for what we might have been rather than for what we have been. You have displayed the qualities of true scholars, and with unstinting devotion have led us through the portals of wisdom and have endeavored in us a love of truth. I wish to convey to you the appreciation of our class for the kindness and thoughtfulness you have shown on our behalf. At the close of our course we see wherein we might have lightened your burdens. We leave you with sincere regrets and assure you that your labor has not been in vain. In the name of the class of '34 I bid you farewell.

Citizens of Charlottetown:—We thank you for the way in which you have co-operated with us in our class undertakings, and we trust that the contacts between college and town will be more fruitful and genuine as the years go by. The class of '34 bids you farewell.

Fellow students:—We would remind you in parting, that your term at Prince of Wales is gradually nearing an end. Treasure the time that remains, make good use of it, so that you may go out into the world with a fuller and more complete knowledge of the obligations you owe to life. Be proud of your college, and live so that she may be proud of you. Try to appreciate the sacrifice that she is making for you, and finally in whatever circumstances you may be placed, always remember that you are students of Prince of Wales. The class of '34 bids you make True Wisdom your constant search. Farewell!

Fellow Classmates:—We stand today where rill and river meet. Time snaps the golden chain that binds us to youth, and in friendship to each other, but—
 "As over the glaciers frozen sheet,
 Breathes soft the Alpine rose,
 So through life's desert springing sweet face. Our own petty interests will be submerged in the broader and more inclusive issues of the human race. Let us, however, go forward cheerfully and with a determination to surmount all obstacles. Courage is needed today as never before. Courage to use our talents to the full, to stand by our conviction in the face of hostility and ridicule, to carry our high resolves and noble purposes through to completion. Faith too is essential. We must have faith in ourselves, in our work, and in our fellowmen.

"How high is grandeur to our dust,
 How near is God to man!
 When Duty whispers low, "Thou must."
 The youth replies, "I can!"

The flower of friendship grows.
 As we take our places in the world, we shall not find the road smooth and easy-going. Many will be the rebuffs we shall have to
