Claim Violation Anti-Trust Laws

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 — (AP) — The United States Department of Justice sought today to restrain perpetually the Associated Press from enforcing any by-laws which would permit the news-gatherings co-operative, in passing upon applications for membership, to consider "the actual or potential competition" between an applicant and a member newspaper in the same city.

Three other restraints were suggested by government attorneys in a proposed order of judgement, filed in the United States district court. A special court on Oct. 6 upheld the right of the Associated Press to pass upon admission of applicants, but said the by-laws "in their present form" violated the anti-trust laws.

The government sought in the civil suit filed Aug. 26, 1943, to compel the Associated Press to admit membership any newspaper willing to pay its proportionate share of the costs of gathering news.

The additional restraints, as outlined by the government and to all of which the Associated Press has 30 days to make counter proposals, would:

1. Nullify the by-laws which "withhold the right of the Associated Press from persons other than members of the Associated Press."
2. Nullify the by-laws which "restrict the members of the Associated Press and persons in their employ from furnishing spontaneous news gathered by them to persons other than the Associated Press and its members."
3. Declare illegal the exclusive news-gathering agreement between the Associated Press and The Canadian Press.

The proposed decree would permit the AP to apply for modification of these three provisions "upon furnishing satisfactory proof that they have amended the by-laws...in conformity with the opinion of this court."

The court directed that the by-laws be changed to prevent a member in the same field (morning evening or Sunday) in the same area from applying for imposing conditions for admission.

The court said it would "not attempt to fix what conditions may be imposed" and left to the AP the adoption of "substitutes which will restrict admission." It indicated that if "admission to AP were properly liberalized," the by-laws providing for the exclusiveness of local news of the AP dispatches to members, and the contract with The Canadian Press would be within the law.

In conformity with the court's opinion, the government agreed to dismissal of its complaint charging as illegal the proportionate share of the cost of gathering news of the AP of wide world photos from the New York Times.

The final form of the judgment will be fixed by the court after the AP files its counter-proposal to the government's proposed judgment and its findings of fact. An appeal may then be taken by either party to the United States Supreme Court.

John Henry special assistant to the Attorney General, said when he filed the papers today that the government has no present plans for an appeal.

Gloria Jean In Movie Romance

Gloria Jean, Universal's youthful singing star, has her first movie boy friend in "Get Hep To Love," the breezy romantic drama coming to the Capitol Theatre.

The boy friend is talented Donald O'Connor and he is co-starred with Gloria in the entertaining new film. Jane Frazee and Robert Paige have headline roles in the supporting cast which includes Peggy Ryan, Cora Sue Collins and the Jivin' Jacks and Jills.

In the story, Gloria, as a child singing celebrity, runs away from home to live a normal life after a near collapse from overwork.

Gloria's remarkable soprano voice is declared to be more attractive than ever in the rendition of several selections which include "Villanelle," "Siboney," "Drink Me Only With Thine Eyes," and "Sempre Libre" from La Traviata.

Fred Astaire Musical Teaming Joan Leslie Has Romantic Basis

Ten days and nights of dancing romance comprise the theme of "The Sky's the Limit," starring new musical vehicle for Fred Astaire and Joan Leslie now playing at the Prince Edward Theatre.

The sparkling plot is woven around the adventures of a fighter pilot on brief leave of absence. He decides to take his fun in Manhattan in civilian clothes instead of in uniform, bringing about a hilarious series of misunderstandings when he falls for an energetic young girl who is a useless slacker.

The hectic affair between the two is complicated by the fact that the heroine's millionaire employer, who years to marry her but doesn't quite know how to go about it, sends her to the city for two days last week on business. Mr. Astaire, who has just returned from his fishing trip, is found in a very good return.

A few fishing boats were out two days last week and report very good catches of cod which will be salted and dried for the winter market.

The stars are supported by a brilliant cast headed by Robert Bentley, Robert Ryan, Elizabeth Patterson, Marjorie Gaton and Freddie Slack and his orchestra.

Three new hit tunes by Johnny Mercer and Harold Arlen are featured in the picture.

Fred and Joan have two sensational dance routines, with Fred giving two solo dances in addition, making the film one of the season's most entertaining offerings.

E. H. Griffith directed the David Hempstead production for RKO.

Bristol and Vicinity

Some much needed coal arrived here last week but it is difficult to supply the great demand. Owing to the great shortage of help to cut wood, more coal will be needed.

Fire discovered in the living room of the home of Mrs. George Lavigne, almost destroyed the house and furniture a few nights ago, clearing the way for burning wood Mrs. Davoux opened the door to find the room in flames. A fire alarm was sounded and the flames under control.

Mr. and Mrs. Stannis Lapierre, were visitors to the city for two days last week on business. Mr. Lapierre, who has just returned from his fishing trip, is found in a very good return.

Poultry Comfort HAS WIDE MEANING

Whether the poultry house is permanent or temporary, comfort for poultry is necessary at all times in order that the highest egg production may be obtained. So far as poultry are concerned, the meaning of the word comfort has a wide application and includes many essentials such as housing, insulation, ventilation, feeding, warmth, and the avoidance of overcrowding. In the matter of housing, the first thing to be considered is ventilation to insure pure air and a good house is apt to be a damp house and poultry particularly require a degree of warmth in order to do well. The birds have a high body temperature—106 degrees—and an accompanying rapid respiration rate. The water they drink and clean fresh water is an important item—is exhaled from the lungs.

Overcrowding is a common danger, and in the arrangement of the poultry house wearings and pullets of different ages should be separated. While any room or out-building that is dry, light-walled, and well-lighted can be adapted for poultry, the same care has to be exercised as in any specially designed house. Windows of the house should face south. Pens of good depth are preferable, whether the house is of the two or three-story type or not.

SHORTAGE OF FRUIT TREES

(Experimental Farms News) — Lack of trained labour and scarcity of root stocks is making it difficult for nurserymen to produce adequate supplies of fruit trees. Accordingly, wise orchardists will lose no time in placing orders for trees required for planting in the spring of 1946. In fact it will be to the advantage of all concerned if orders can be placed now for trees to be delivered in 1946 and 1947. This will ensure propagation of the varieties which are desired, states A. J. Mann, Dominion Experimental Station, Summerland, B. C.

The shortage of nursery stock makes it more important than ever to take care of young trees which must be protected from deer, mice, rabbits, gophers and other pests. A few trees become girdled during the winter in spite of precautionary measures if a good plan to lay in a supply of scion wood suitable for use in bridge-grafting in the spring. Well-matured shoots of one year old wood about one foot in length are desirable for this purpose. They keep dormant a long time when placed in damp peat or sawdust in 32 degrees F. storage. If cold storage is not available the next best thing is to bury them on the north side

Bombers Attack Railways In France, Italy

LONDON, Nov. 12 — (AP) — With a brilliant 48-hour burst of co-ordinating air power, Allied heavy bombers ranging thousands of miles from both British and Mediterranean bases closed a strategic grip today around the three most important supply funnels feeding the German armies embattled in Italy.

In a 1,400-mile round-trip mission, R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers last night crossed France to smash the vital Riviera railway in the vicinity of the resort city of Cannes, and in the preceding daylight United States bombers operating from Mediterranean bases attacked the Anthon Viaduct on the same rail artery and also near Cannes.

The Americans, whose attack was announced at Allied Headquarters in Algiers, crossed the Alps to reach their target. A cluster of bombs fell across the railway and the adjacent highway and both were believed to have been cut. Anthon is 15 miles west of Cannes. They also bombed a coal-burning plant and the railway yards at Anney, in the mountains of southern France 30 miles south of the Swiss frontier.

It was the second successive night that the big British bombers were out in force breaking up French bottlenecks for German supply trains.

The R.C.A.F. bomber group in Britain did not join in Wednesday's attack but last night the Canadians sent along at least four squadrons, including the Moose squadron.

There were no Canadian planes lost. The night's raid, and accompanying intruder operations over western Europe by Mosquitoes in which the R.C.A.F. shared, cost the R.A.F. seven bombers and one fighter.

The British Bomber Command last night once more sent Mosquitoes over Berlin — the first time since Oct. 18.

The seven R.A.F. bombers missing, gave the R.A.F. a total loss for the month to date of 25 bombers in three major assaults.

Farm And Garden Seed Prices Revised

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 — (CP) — The Prices Board today announced revision of its order which fixes maximum retail prices for such farm and garden seeds as vegetable seeds, field root seeds, alfalfa, clover, grasses and cereals.

Officials said the order, while adjusting prices in a number of instances, does not increase prices above the schedule established by the Board in February, 1944, except where the prices of commercial grains have been increased by order. In such cases, prices for the corresponding seed grains are adjusted.

The children certainly go for Schwartz Peanut Butter in a big way. They KNOW it beats everything else for sandwiches. Sis says it makes adorable fudge. Mother praises it for cookies. And Dad votes it best as a bedtime snack, spread on bread, with a glass of milk.

Now its popularity is enhanced by the scarcity of other spreads. So, it too becomes scarce. Keep asking, however, and your turn will come... Say Schwartz and be sure!
