Is Seen As Midway Between East & West

PLAN JOINT SCHOOL FOR INDIANS—METIS

THE PAS, Man., Sept. 8 — (CP) — The day school at Big Eddy—five miles from here—is being enlarged and modified in preparation for becoming the first project in Manitoba by which Indian and Metis children will be educated in the same school, with expenses borne jointly by the province and the department of Indian affairs.

Alterations are scheduled to be completed in time for the fall term. Indians themselves are employed in the work. The school represents an experimental project to determine the feasibility of the new plan of joint education, which may have far-reaching effects on smaller settlements throughout the North.

Hitherto each settlement required enough Indian children to provide one school and enough Metis children for another. Many settlements could not support sufficient school population to qualify for either one school or the other.

In preparation for the start of the school term—which means one year far from home for the Indian students from isolated settlements in northern Manitoba—an aerial school bus has transported about 140 pupils to Guy Indian Residential School at Sturgeon Landing, in northern Saskatchewan.

The pre-school shuffling of the students across the sub-Arctic now has been completed. Before aircraft were used, parents brought their children hundreds of miles by canoe to the long-established mission schools, but now goodbyes are said at the homes of the children.

The new plan stipulates that the prevailing majority of either Metis or Indian children shall determine whether the school will be built by the province or the Indian Affairs department, and the majority will have their tuition paid by the responsible authority.

PRAGUE, Sept. 8 — (AP) — Communism and capitalism rub shoulders in Prague in a practical fraternalism never predicted by the theoretical mind of Karl Marx. In the city of 1,000,000 Czechs, where Communists are in a plurality, there is no soap-box campaign for class war and a proletarian dictatorship.

If there is a middle way for east and west to follow, Slovakia modestly suggests itself as an example. Bookshops feature new American volumes, and Harry Butcher's "My three years with Eisenhower" is as popular as Konstantin Simonov's works about the Red Army. Movie theatres play to capacity audiences with a budget of 80 Hollywood films a year.

A steak costs less than $1 at the best restaurant in town. The black market is dispersed if not destroyed. White-collar workers have so little leisure that they crowd the cabarets from 1 to 7 p.m. for "tea dances."

Czechoslovakia is 31 per cent communist, according to the 1946 national election, and 61 per cent of her total labor force now is employed in state-owned industries. Yet her two-year plan, aimed at raising productivity 10 per cent above the highest pre-war level, was drafted by a social democrat.

There is no taboo against honest profits. Retail trade is mostly in private hands.

Czechoslovakia is ruled by a national front of all Czech and Slovak political parties with a prime minister from the largest party, Communist Klement Gottwald.

Regardless of whether it may diverge from formal democratic concepts, the Czechoslovak coalition has smothered a host of old internal squabbles and permitted the country to concentrate on reconstruction.

A foreigner finds that a Czechoslovak visa is one of the easiest in the world to obtain. Tourists with "hard money" are welcomed with open arms.

CHURCH OF SCOTLAND PULPIT

Preaching in the Church of Scotland on September 7th, Rev. Horace Frederick MacEwen took as his topic, "The Necessity of the New Birth," expounding the interview of Christ with Nicodemus as recorded in the third chapter of the gospel of John.

Nicodemus was a ruler of the Jews and a Pharisee. The Pharisees were a sect of Jews which emphasized punctiliously obedience to the laws of Moses, and they prided themselves in self-righteousness. So zealous were they in the law that they superimposed a mass of traditional laws in addition to the written ones of the Old Testament. Paul, who was one of the sect prior to his conversion, describes his condition as "touching the righteousness which is in the law, blameless." (Philippians 3:6). Such a one as Nicodemus, a proud, self-righteous man, came to Jesus by night because he feared to be seen by other Pharisees and addressed Him thus, "Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him." Nicodemus was intellectually persuaded of Jesus' deity, and was accordingly showing concern about his own soul's condition.

Jesus told him very abruptly that "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." He even repeated the assertion in more definite language when Nicodemus showed inability to understand—"Verily, verily, I say unto thee except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." Water is typical of the word of God—"Christ loved the church and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word." (Ephesians 5:25, 26). The sinner is born again by the hearing of the word and the effectual work of the Holy Spirit in his soul.

Christ also emphasized the necessity of the cross to make the new birth a reality. "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up." This "lifting up" is a direct reference to the cross as the place of extreme degradation, for "cursed is everyone that hangeth upon a tree"—a mode of punishment inflicted by the Jews only for the most heinous crimes. Christ was made a curse for us, in that He bore the righteous wrath and indignation of God upon Himself for the sins of mankind. The way for the sinner to be born again is to put his trust completely in Him for salvation, because "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." This is not only the message to the self-righteous Nicodemus, but also to every sinner who is awakened to his need of being born again.

EAST RIVER, N.S., Sept. 8 — (CP) — Daniel Cleveland, 76, today took his own life by turning a rifle on himself, police reported. The aged man had lived alone in this southern shore community for many years.

Woman Doctor Aided British In Many Lands

WINNIPEG, Sept. 8 — (CP) — When Dr. Dorothy Barnhouse, an aesthetist at Winnipeg General Hospital, graduated in medicine from the University of Alberta, Edmonton, she had no definite plan for the future other than a post graduate course in England.

Serving Britain for six years, visiting more than 10 European countries or living for two years in Palestine was not on her schedule, yet that is exactly what befell her during 10 years' absence from Canada.

Dr. Barnhouse did post-graduate work in British hospitals for three years. Then, with the outbreak of the Second World War, she joined the Royal Army Medical Corps. Later she tried to transfer to the R. G. A. M. C., but the British needed her more, so she was posted to base hospitals.

"I was on an equal basis as major with my male contemporaries during the war," she said, "with equal pay for equal work at all times."

She was first posted to Gibraltar, then to Egypt, Syria and Persia, sometimes for a few weeks, sometimes for several months. In 1942 came her posting to Palestine.

Under Palestine Spell

Of all the countries she visited she found Palestine the most fascinating. Dr. Barnhouse said:

"I never failed to feel that I had stepped right into Biblical times when I travelled in the villages and towns—but when I returned to the city, with its modern buildings, cars and western mode of dress, I wondered if I hadn't dreamed up the other."

Dr. Barnhouse brought back a collection of carved wooden figurines of native Arabs and Jews, depicting their various occupations and mode of dress in different areas.

She returned to England in 1944 and completed her tour of duty at a British hospital in Brunswick, Germany. But she managed to visit Italy, France, Denmark and the Netherlands as well.

Dr. Barnhouse came back to Canada last fall, and after a holiday in a British hospital in Edmonton began her work at the Winnipeg General Hospital in May of this year.

KEIZER — JONES WEDDING

A very pretty wedding took place at St. James Church, Summerside, on Wednesday, Aug. 20, when Rev. Eugene Murray united in marriage Mary Dora, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jones, Emerald and William Keizer, Charlottetown.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length dress of white slipper satin. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by a heart-shaped coronet. She carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Mary Keizer, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, was attractively gowned in pink tulle with halo hat of flowers to match and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Little Iris Mulligan, as flower girl, looked very charming in a rose crepe dress and carried a nosegay.

During the ceremony, the Academician's choir of Summerside, with Mrs. Georgia Gaudet as soloist, rendered several appropriate hymns.

The ushers were Messrs. Emery Mulligan and St. Clair Croken.

The bride's mother was attired in a flowered jersey with a corsage of carnations and maiden-hair fern.

The groom's mother was dressed in blue and white silk, with a corsage of pink roses.

Following the ceremony, breakfast was served at the home of the bride, to immediate relatives and friends.

The groom's gift to the bride was a white prayer book and to the groomsmen, a Ronson lighter. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a strand of pearls and to the flower-girl, a sterling silver bracelet.

The happy couple left by plane for Moncton and St. John.

For travelling the bride chose a suit of pale blue gaberdine with matching hat and accessories.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was tendered a miscellaneous shower at Emerald Hall, where she received many beautiful and costly gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Keizer will reside in Charlottetown where the groom is employed with the C. N. R.

Sly Jinx Jousts With Sir Cupid

SASKATOON, Sept. 9 — (CP) — People get married in droves—but after what happened to one happy couple and their guests recently, people here are wondering why.

Everything went according to plan at the wedding until the reception—and then it started. Less than an hour before the honeymooners' plane left, the bridegroom remembered he had left his money and the tickets—at the church. Two ushers sped to the church, spent half an hour locating the janitor to unlock the building and finally got the couple to the airport with eight minutes to go.

But the bride's luggage had been forgotten, so the two volunteers sped off again. They returned with the luggage just as the pilot was turning for take-off.

Guests heaved a sigh of relief, and went back to the reception. But one of them lost her purse, and the soloist reported that he had almost missed the ceremony when the radiator on his car boiled over.

Two of the guests set off home, the wife dropping off at a bridge game—for which she was, of course, late—and the father picking up two children they had deposited with in-laws. The five-year-old was missing, but was found eventually minus shoes. He drove home, and couldn't find the door key. Back to the reception he went, picked up his key and started for home again.

With six blocks to go he ran out of gas.

After studying the surgical aspects of the Crucifixion, Dr. J. L. Cameron, Canadian doctor now practising in London, England, has declared that Christ had nails driven, not through his hands, as shown in this painting by Pergino, but through his wrists. Speaking at an international conference of Roman Catholic doctors in Lisbon, Dr. Cameron said that nails through the hand would not hold a body hanging from a cross, nor cause so much pain.
