SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MALACHI REBUKING AND ENCOURAGING JUDAH.

Mat. 3: 7-18.

GOLDEN TEXT.

"Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts." - Mat. 3: 7.

POINTED SUGGESTIONS.

By Rev. D. W. Snider. The character of Malachi is of that earnest sort which compels admiration and respect. His convictions are deeply rooted in a rich personal religious experience.

Ingratitude is at the root of the causes which superficially may be stated as leading people away from God. Indifference, skepticism and any such like brood of character-destructiveness are the progeny of ingratitude, which is the sordid and self-centred failure of a soul to cordially and reverently recognize the source of all his good and goods.

The essence of ingratitude is robbery. It would possess without earning. It would withhold without giving. It would accumulate at the price of another's unwarranted loss.

How shall men who have become separated from God by a sin so heinous and by a spirit so repugnantly satanic return to him? Their action has been treason. The way of their return therefore, must clearly indicate the return of their allegiance.

Tithes and offerings may be taken as a worthy evidence of the surrender of man's allegiance and of the free tender of his affections to God. They give proof of the fact that he yields to Him and that he willingly obeys and steadfastly loves Him as Lord and Father.

Perfunctory or formal service is the father of profitless service. When one begins to feel that his duty-doing is without profit to him, immediate and definite and open to his sight and the sight of his fellows, he is only one remove from asking, "What is the use? Does it pay?" He is on dangerous ground.

He is asking the reason, next of the good times and the care-free prosperity of others. His basis of judgment has fallen from the spiritual ideal and level to the sensual. The rewards he seeks are temporal. If he may secure them he will watch with approval and praise faithful record of those who worship him in spirit and in truth.

Such worship and service beget experience. And that experience is so rich and full and joyously unique that it seeks the fellowship of those with like precious faith. When they meet the Lord meets, and the place of their meeting is the treasure-house of blessing; but the sources of it are exhaustless. There is not room enough to receive it.

But the place of the dwelling of such followers of God is a delightful some land. Beautiful acres and had neighbors do not spell delight, but poor acres plus Christian neighbors may spell heaven.
