With the further development of fashion in the mode, it is not surprising that the fragile beauty of lace is of importance. Chanel has accented black lace in a series of excellent models. Sometimes, lace forms the whole dress and again, it is combined with chiffon or tulle. Little lace shawls and packets are worn over plain chiffon dresses. On the LEFT is a Vogue sketch of smart lace costumes, showing a formal gown with a short and gracious train, the circular frill on the bodice ending in romantic flared wings in the back. The less formal dinner dress is featured by ruffles and lace inserts, the sheeriness of chiffon and a demure ankle length. The lace bolero has kimono sleeves, finished with double ruffles. On the RIGHT, a charming lace frock is covered by a turquoise blue chiffon velvet wrap of the new short type.—Sketch is by Vogue.

said the grocer. "I used to keep a row of bins and scoop a little out of one and some more out of another and try to make a mixture that would please my customers. It didn't please them very often, because I'm just a grocer, not a tea expert. "So I've quit. Nowadays I sell a packaged tea that is always good and always uniform. It is blended from the finest teas, selected for their flavor, fullness and strength and blended (not just mixed) by experts who have devoted their lives to the work."

GREATEST BEAUTY AID

One of my readers wrote me recently, saying: "I really cannot afford to buy more cosmetics but if you could write and tell me the one thing which you consider most important for keeping the complexion, in fact the entire body in a beautiful and healthy condition, I would appreciate it."

The answer is simple, and to those who cannot afford to buy many cosmetics it should be most heartening. The one thing which I consider more important than any other beauty aid is water. And because it is so simple I'm sure it is sometimes neglected. How many glasses of water a day do you drink? Most of you take a drink when thirsty. We all do that, for there is nothing more thirst-quenching than a glass of clear, cold water. But merely taking a drink of water when thirsty is not nearly enough for the average person. If everybody would make it a rule to drink not less than four to six glasses of water every day I know that skins would be clearer and general health would be far better. There are so many people in the world who are not really ill but whose health is in a negative state. Though not ill they never feel quite up to standard; they haven't the vitality really to enjoy living. Many of these people would be surprised to know what a wonderful tonic may be found just in taking a little more drinking water every day.

Constipation, that insidious enemy to beauty and health, can be warded off to a great extent if one will drink plenty of water. A glassful of water taken in sips a half hour before meal time facilitates the digestive processes. Often when I see a woman with sallow complexion and coarsened, sluggish pores I am tempted to ask her, "How much water do you drink each day?" If I did so I feel sure the answer of the majority would be something like this: "Oh, I don't know; I drink whenever I'm thirsty but otherwise I don't think of taking a glass of water."

That's just it. We don't think. But let's think about this simple and inexpensive aid to beauty and health. Think how the complexion, the hair and skin depend upon good blood and a healthy circulation for nourishment. An adequate amount of water will do much toward keeping the blood in good condition and the circulation active.

The pores need to be kept awake or they become sluggish and fail to carry off waste products when the result is coarse skins, sallow complexion and a general run-down feeling. Plenty of water taken internally stimulates the pores of the body to activity and health. Warm weather will soon be here and then it is even more necessary to drink plenty of water, for the temperature of the body is regulated by evaporation of perspiration from the skin and water provides the necessary moisture for perspiration.

We have spoken only of water taken internally as an aid to beauty. But don't forget that plenty of water used externally is equally important. A daily bath is the minimum requirement for any individual, and in addition to washing the body, the teeth and the hair need plenty of water to keep them clean and healthy. I can suggest no better and yet no simpler beauty splan for my readers than "Plenty of water every day both externally and internally."

The New Status of Wives Dorothy Dix Warns Against Marrying for a Living

No Longer Can Girls Look Upon Their Jobs as a Bridge of Sighs That Reaches From the Schoolroom to the Altar, for Government Statistics Prove That Marriage No Longer Provides Economic Security

Time was when marriage was about the only gainful occupation open to women. A husband was not only a Prince Charming, he was a meal ticket and a charge account at the shops. Parents heaved sighs of relief at their daughters' weddings because they felt that they had got them safely settled in life and every girl looked forward to marriage as a safe, sure way of providing for her future.

One of the reasons given as to why women are not more efficient and more successful in business is that they do not intend long to support themselves. They expect to marry a living. They regard stenography or salesmanship or accounting or whatever they do as just a Bridge of Sighs that reaches from the schoolroom to the altar, and so they never bother even to try to become experts in their profession.

So embedded in tradition is this idea that when a girl marries "she has somebody to take care of her," as the old phrase went, that it is a shock to learn from a bulletin issued by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor that marriage nowadays offers "no economic security for women."

The Government publication goes on further to say: "A large proportion of families living in cities depend largely upon the earnings of women, and in many homes the entire income is earned by the wife and daughters." In a word, as the old song used to say, "everybody works but father," and even when father works he is not able alone and unaided to support the family.

So it has blasted the rosy dream of the girl who looked forward to "quitting work," as she naively expressed it, when she got married. Unless she has the luck to get a go-getter, and all men are no more invariably gifted with financial genius than they are with tenor voices or the looks of a sheik, the girl who marries nowadays has even more necessity of earning money after the wedding than she did before and instead of bettering her condition from a financial standpoint, she has made it worse for she has added to her regular job the additional job of making a home.

The fact that the modern wife must be a crutch to her husband instead of his being a staff upon which she can lean is partly due to economic conditions which neither can control and partly to the woman's own fault.

When the man of the past was the sole breadwinner of the family, it was satisfied with bread and didn't demand cake, as it does now. In those halcyon days there were no radios to buy, no gasoline tanks to fill, no movies to attend, no night things to spend money on that we have now and without which we consider life cinders, ashes and dust.

When grandma got married, unless grandpa was a millionaire, she retired from the world to the kitchen and the nursery, and her only stepping out was to church and the prayer meeting and occasionally over to the neighbors. She didn't expect to go on running around and having a good time and being noted as one of our lions and a general run-down feeling. Plenty of water taken internally stimulates the pores of the body to activity and health. Warm weather will soon be here and then it is even more necessary to drink plenty of water, for the temperature of the body is regulated by evaporation of perspiration from the skin and water provides the necessary moisture for perspiration.

We have spoken only of water taken internally as an aid to beauty. But don't forget that plenty of water used externally is equally important. A daily bath is the minimum requirement for any individual, and in addition to washing the body, the teeth and the hair need plenty of water to keep them clean and healthy. best-dressed young matrons. She didn't have to have silk stockings to wear every day and high-heeled snake-skin shoes and chiffon lingerie and Paris clothes.

So it wasn't such a trick for grandfather to pay grandmother's bills as it is for the young man of today to pay his flapper wife's. Maybe if the wives of today cost as little for their upkeep as grandma did their husbands would be able to afford them.

And maybe, as so often happens in life, the man wouldn't want the plain little thing that was within his reach and would crave the luxury that was a rank extravagance; maybe he wouldn't be satisfied with the dowdy little wife in the cheap clothes and would yearn for one all dolled up in finery. It is hard to go back to near-beer when you have a champagne thirst.

But the main lesson conveyed to women by the Government's warning that they can no longer regard marriage as "economic security," is that whatever occupation they undertake is likely to be a life work and that they must prepare themselves for it accordingly. They must not look upon their jobs as something merely temporary. They must not do the sort of work that they can just get by with. They must not be satisfied with earning only a few dollars that will buy them enough good clothes with which to snare a husband.

For, after they catch their husband, it is written on the cards for the most of them that they are going to have to keep on earning money outside the home if they continue to live in the style to which they are accustomed or, possibly, if they continue to eat at all. They can't sit down and fold their hands and let George do, as grandma did. They have to continue to be self-supporting and, alas, not infrequently they have to support George, too.

The average boy at school does not display more intelligence nor more energy than the average girl, but when they start out to work side by side he boys soon outdistance the girls. This is because the boy expects to have to support himself as long as he lives and he knows that his success depends upon how well he does his work and how much he knows about it. Perhaps when girls realize that they have the same necessity and that marriage is not going to emancipate them from toil, they also will become more efficient.

The Romance of Your Name By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

Edmonstone

This family originated in Northern France, with Count de Edmon, a Duke of Flanders, whose son William, in 1063, went to Scotland as a special attaché to Queen Margaret, wife of King Malcolm.

The King bestowed upon him the land of Edmiston and Omet for faithful service. Archibald Edmonstone was the first of the family in America. He patented land in 1669 in Maryland and Virginia, and succeeded his father as commander of county militia in Maryland. He married Jane Beall, daughter of the well-known Ninian Beall.

Through intermarriages the Edmonstones became connected with many prominent families, among them the Ormes, who claim descent from the royal house of Stuart.

Salvation Army

The Salvation Army Citadel was full to capacity Thursday evening to accord Major and Mrs. Russell Clarke of Denver, Colo., a warm welcome to the old home corps. The visitors were in a very happy and reminiscent mood and most inspiring were the recollections of old Army days in the City of 20 years ago.

Major Clarke appeared to be in his prime and his strong spirit reflected great credit on his pursuance of life's course, entered upon, in the local corps over two decades back. Mrs. Major Clarke spoke very happy sentiments in this, her first visit to the Island, and made a very noble impression on the audience.

Major and Mrs. Clarke were heartily accorded an up-standing ovation before the service commenced after which Adjutant Martin presented "Charlottetown's Own Son" as the chairman of the evening.

The programme rendered by the Citadel Band was very heartily received by the congregation. A march entitled "Decision" was rendered in part, being the Band's first performance of the Salvation Army Brass Band Journal. Mrs. Major Clarke rendered two choice vocal solos, one being the composition of Commander Eva Booth. A cornet solo was rendered by Adjutant Martin and also a cornet duet by the addition of Deputy Bandmaster G. Austin. A new feature presented was an instrumental Quartette by Adj. Martin, Dep. B. M. Austin, Miss Elsie Austin and Bandmaster William MacRae. Also among the items was a Pianoforte selection by Mr. C. Baines. Major Clarke played the Monstrous Bass in the playing of the "Vesper Hymn" and also conducted the Band in the old hymn "Aurelia."

of courses permitted at an informal dinner? A. Four. Q. When calling, should one make apologies for the lapse of time since one was last in the house? A. No; it is bad form to do so. Q. Should one ever say "au revoir" when taking leave of someone? A. No; unless one has been speaking French, or speaking to a French person.

Household Hints By Roberts Lee

How to Varnish Paper To varnish the paper on the kitchen or bathroom walls, so that it may be wiped with a damp cloth, mix one ounce of gum arabic, three ounces of glue, and a bar of soap, dissolving all in a quart of water, and apply with a clean paint brush. Washing the Hair After washing the hair, try adding a half cup of vinegar to the rinsing water. It will soften the hair and give it a pretty sheen. Celery Allow celery to lie in water for about seven or eight hours before serving and it will be very tender.

Play Presented At Marshfield

Marshfield Hall was filled to capacity on Tuesday evening when the Marshfield Women's Institute staged the entertaining three act play "Three Pigs." All the members of the cast gave an exceptionally good account of themselves, their histrionic ability bringing forth many favorable comments. The following is the cast of characters: Emily Weston, a woman of 35, rich, cultured—Mrs. John T. Ferguson. Aunt Euphonia, 50 who sees no romance in life, does everything because of a morbid sense of duty, speaks in a whining hopeless manner—Mrs. Ludlow Jenkins. Marguerite, ill-mannered, habitual user of slang—Miss Pauline Mill. The Three Pigs: Madge, dainty, delicate in health, sweet disposition—Mrs. Leigh Mill. Peg, vivacious, earnest, sincere eager to make others happy—Miss Jessie Jenkins. Sarah, the Irish cook—Mrs. Dennis. Lizzie, her sister, the maid—Mrs. Heber Crosby. Mrs. Conti, a talkative Italian—Miss Sarah Mill. Mrs. Barclay, Emily Weston's refined friend of about 40—Mrs. Edgar Heartz.

Synopsis Act I—Sitting room at Miss Weston's. Morning. Act II—Same scene, two weeks later. Twilight. Act III—Same scene, two weeks later. Another enjoyable feature of the evening was several selections by a newly organized ten piece orchestra composed as follows: Misses Viola Dennis, Mary Ferguson, Ruth Dennis, Florence Stewart, Jessie Jenkins, Messrs. Billy Dennis, Herbert Dennis, Herbert Court, Vernon Dennis and Alex Scott.

Many complimentary remarks were also heard on the excellence of the rendition of their several numbers. Marshfield Women's Institute is indeed to be congratulated in bringing out such talent and it is a foregone conclusion when they repeat this performance in Heartz Hall on Monday, June 2nd, that this hall will also be packed to the doors.

At the conclusion of the play Mrs. Ruby Houle whose coaching was invaluable and much appreciated, was presented by little Fernie Mill with a beautiful bouquet of carnations. Mrs. Jenkins who had a most difficult part, playing against the audience, was also presented with a handsome bouquet of carnations by little Helen Dennis.

An innovation was the selling of lunch boxes throughout the audience which proved a great success.

The affair from a financial standpoint was also a huge success. BELL & MATHIESON Barristers & Solicitors Collections MONEY TO LOAN MONTAGUE

Best baby in county!

Always happy and comfortable; never has colds

OF COURSE every family has a "best" baby in it. But some babies are a lot nicer than others just the same. And that is so largely a matter of health. For psychologists and medical men say that good nature in babies is dependent largely on their comfort. They are too little to tell you what ails them. So they cry. And you have to guess it's a rash, or chafed skin, or a stopped-up nose.

That is, you guess, unless you are wise enough to prevent these troubles with the handy "Vaseline" jar.

For "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly is an essential part of any baby outfit. Apply it to the baby's skin after the bath, to the head too; then take little swabs of cotton on toothpicks, dip it into the jelly, and very gently apply to the baby's nostrils. This cleanses and lubricates them. Tends to prevent colds.

These are easy, safe things to do. Ask your doctor. "Vaseline" Jelly has been used by mothers and doctors for half a century. The very first thing they apply to newborn babies in hospitals is "Vaseline" Jelly. That's how safe it is... how necessary it is. "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly is a truly remarkable substance, provided by nature and refined by a private process to greatest purity. It is protective and healing for external use and of great benefit when taken internally.

Do get some and use it freely. And remember, when you buy, that the trademark Vaseline on the label is your assurance that you are getting the genuine product of the Chesebrough Mfg. Co., Cons'd, 5520 Chabot Avenue, Montreal, Canada.
