FEW GEESE APPEARING—An unusual and alarming scarcity of Canada Geese in Prince Edward Island waters is reported by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who have just completed a survey of the situation in Queen's County. At this time of year it is usual to see large numbers of these birds stopping in their northward flight to feed on eel grass in the rivers and bays of the Province, but this year there has appeared, it is estimated, only about five percent of the usual number of geese. The almost complete absence of eel grass in Island waters this year is blamed for the condition. If the geese do not appear in larger numbers during the next few weeks, it is possible that there may be a closed season on shooting for several years. It is feared that as there is a scarcity of eel grass elsewhere, these birds may have suffered from famine.

BRIT. SUBJECTS

Only two of the men were first released on bail and the British Government instructed Sir Esmond Ovey, British Ambassador to Moscow, to make strong representations to the Soviet Government of the grave view the British Government took on the matter.

Sir Esmond consulted with Russian officials and was allowed to visit the prisoners. He was then recalled to London by the Government and made complete reports of the position, his reports included alleged mal-treatment of the prisoners and told of "third degree" measures taken by the Russian officials in the early questioning and cross-examining.

The British Government then introduced a bill which they termed an "enabling bill" that would give them power to put an embargo on all Russian imports. The bill was rushed through the House of Commons despite Labor opposition and this evening was given final reading in the House of Lords.

In the last week five of the men have been out on bail but have been instructed to tell no one of their cases excepting their own Russian counsel.

Lord Hallsham, Minister of War, piloted the bill through the Upper House this evening. The Government, he said, would "leave no stone unturned to secure justice for the British men now in peril in Moscow."

Stressing the Government did not want to have to put the power of the bill into effect, Lord Hallsham indicated his doubt of the treatment received by the engineers when he said it "took a great deal to produce such effects upon Englishmen and Scotchmen in only three days."

He was referring to the statement of Sir Esmond Ovey that the men were "terrified and utterly afraid to speak" when he visited them in the prisons.

Lord Passfield, former Labor Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, criticized the bill but welcomed the Government's assurance it would be used for no further purpose other than the defence of the six engineers.

SYDNEY, N. S., April 11—The municipality of Cape Breton is in no position to finance long jury sessions in Supreme Court. After hearing County Treasurer Frank Rowe serve this warning, Mr. Justice Hugh Ross presided over the selection of a panel to try civil cases and then dismissed the other jurors for the full term.

MAY FUR SALES

which time they were due to commence selling a great number of people were reading and discussing a notice posted at the entrance to Beaver Hall, which was that owing to the suspension of all Foreign Exchange by the London banks for the reason stated above, the sale was postponed until some decision had been reached by a Committee of Financial Experts, which had met to discuss the question; at noon, however, it was announced that quotations were again available for all foreign currencies other than the United States dollar and at 1 p. m. the sale started, and lasted until the following Monday afternoon, with a good representative gathering of those in the fur trade present until the close.

About sixty percent of the offering was sold, but in value only about forty per cent. There was only a limited demand for medium and better grade skins. Bright quarter and Medium Silver, with size and volume of fur up to £9 and £10 respectively were in demand. Low grades are still selling above their relative value and the market since the sale is still very active for merchandise up to £9.

The Paris sale on March 24 showed practically the same results as the London sales. Since January weather conditions in Europe have been against the Silver Fox scarf trade, but with the summer-like weather of the latter part of March, the merchants look for an improvement in the trade.

Grave Situation in Germany

The fur trade in Germany was more or less demoralized on account of Hitler's attitude towards the 900,000 Jews who live in that country, and if his campaign against them is carried out it will no doubt have a very disastrous effect on the fur trade of Germany, as the Jews represent a very large proportion of these in the fur trade and in consequence of the German attitude toward them, they have had to cancel large shipments of furs from the London sales.

There is every indication that Silver Fox at the May sales will show an advance over the previous sales, if no grave development arises as fur dealers consider that the article is one of the safest investments of the trade on account of its resale possibilities.

No Russian Competition

In speaking of the Russia fur market Mr. Callbeck said Canada has nothing to fear from that quarter and quoted a fur dealer as follows in connection with fur sales there.

"At Leningrad, Russia, week of March 6th, the Leningrad Fur Auction held their regular sales, when they offered for the Soviet Government 1,161 ranch-raised Silver Fox Pelts and sold 982 for an average of $32.86. (American dollars). In conversation with a London fur

U.S. Tariff Policy Will Be Outlined In Coming Parley

(By F. G. Voeburgh, Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, April 11—America's new tariff policy to be launched during the forthcoming Washington conversations with leading world statesmen including Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada was set forth today by Secretary Cordell Hull as intended to destroy no sound industries in this country but rather to establish them on a more prosperous basis.

At the same time, the Secretary of State emphasized anew that regardless of whether the representatives of several nations are in Washington at the same time the Government proposes to converse with them separately.

He made this statement when informed that former Premier Herriot of France had moved up his sailing date by two days in order to join in the Washington discussions between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain.

In the face of reports of dissatisfaction among the smaller nations at not being included among the 11 invited to send special representatives, Secretary Hull said he had not yet had opportunity to consider the matter of extending the list of invitations.

He pointed out that all countries will be given full opportunity to join the discussions through their regular diplomatic representatives here.

Going further into the matter of a new tariff policy aimed at reviving international trade, Hull characterized as antiquated, obsolete and bewildered the contention which he said had been raised first some 60 years ago that the result would be to flood the country with the products of cheap foreign labor to the detriment of the American workman.

He remarked that persons taking this view should go out and talk with the 13,000,000 American wage earners who, he said, have been thrown out of employment under the operation of the highest tariffs in American history.

For every dollar of curtailment of American imports, Hull told reporters that from $3 to $5 of goods which might have been exported are held within the United States.

There are many commodities, the Secretary continued, which could be exchanged with other countries in return for products which the United States does not produce at all or in sufficient quantity to meet demand. Products which this country could take to advantage in return for its surplus manufactures, minerals and foodstuffs, he said, include specialties or hand made products.

Woman Who Burned Indian Idol Whipped

(Special to The Guardian)

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 11—Governor San Francisco Loretto, of the Jemez Pueblo, who recently was charged with his fellow council members with allowing a young woman to be publicly whipped, told Government officials that the woman had burned an Indian idol in violation of tribal religious beliefs. The woman, Mrs. Andrea Frague, charged the council with whipping her because she professed a belief in the Bible and Christianity. Loretto said the council would not interfere with her Christian worship, but did reserve the right to discipline Indians who interfere with the Indian religion.

The Nova Scotia Legislature today as the House considered a resolution calling for negotiations of a trade treaty in natural products between the two countries. The resolution was introduced from the opposition side yesterday and amended by Premier Gordon S. Harrington to give approval to any trade pact only in the event that the interest of Nova Scotia's primary producers were protected and Imperial Economic agreements safeguarded.

Overseas Shipments Prove Successful

(Special to The Guardian)

SACKVILLE, N. B., April 11—The recent experiment in finishing western cattle in the Maritimes focused attention on this new development of live stock trade in these provinces at a meeting of farmers held in Sackville yesterday. One of the speakers, A. W. MacKenzie, Superintendent of Agriculture for the Maritimes, Canadian National Railways, commented upon the recent experiment and stated that the 104 steers which were brought from western Canada last fall and finished at Woodstock, N. B., had been shipped overseas and marketed at a good profit.

He suggested that a few carloads of steers to be used as feeders be brought from the west to the Sackville district as a way of further development. The suggestion created a great deal of discussion and farmers and representatives of government live stock departments are getting together with the idea of working on the scheme co-operatively.
