ALLEN-YOUNG — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Young, Charlottetown, P.E.I., was the scene of an unusually pretty wedding at 7.30 o'clock Wednesday evening. When Mr. Young's only sister, Lillian Edith, daughter of Mrs. Gladys and the late Clarence Young, became the bride of Melvin Earl Allen, son of Mrs. Florence Conrod and the late Calvin Allen. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Donald Boothroyd, assistant pastor of Trinity United Church, Charlottetown. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Merrill Young, and Mrs. Young attended as matron of honor. George Walters, formerly of Lunenburg, but now manager of the Spencer theatre, Charlottetown, attended the groom. The bride was attired in full bridal ensemble, cut en train, with high neck, full length sleeves, very full skirt, and a cascaded full front. The veil, also en train, fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of pink sweetheart roses. Following the ceremony, a reception was held for immediate friends and relations, numbered among whom was the cousin of the bride, Mr. Charles Young and Mrs. Young of Lunenburg. A unique feature of the wedding ceremony was the preparation of a transcription record, which will enable the mother of the bride, unavoidably absent from the wedding because of indifferent health, to hear the proceedings of the service. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Allen left for a honeymoon trip through P. E. I. and other points of interest in the Maritimes. For travelling Mrs. Allen wore a rose dust wool gown with black coat, hat and accessories. On their return from their honeymoon the young couple will establish residence at 68 Bland street, Halifax. Prior to her marriage Mrs. Allen was a member of the office staff of the Nova Scotia Department of Highways, Halifax. Mr. Allen is chief operator at the Galety theatre.

AGE

She sits alone, an old, old lady. The sun-shine falls upon her silver hair. Her sweet old face is wrinkled now. That once was beautiful and fair. Her footsteps falter and her eyes are dim. But there is healing in her tender hands. And wisdom in her gentle voice. The trials of Life so well she understands.

The cares of others she is glad to share And children love her gentle kindly way. Here is a spirit placid and serene Accepting what Life offers day by day.

No one has ever asked her aid in vain For Love and Pity shine in her dear face; And quiet dignity and lovely calm Drenches her spirit with a soothing grace.

Now Life's day is slowly waning, Soon shall fall the sunset's fading light. But in her eyes there is a faith undaunted— An old, old Lady waiting for the Night. —Constance I. Heckbert.

New Grain As Poultry Feed

There does not appear to be any literature available for distribution on the damage caused by the feeding of new grain. The problem is one which occurs annually from the maturing of the earliest grain crops to about the first or second week in November. Dr. F. N. Marcellus of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, offers the following information in this connection: "Just what the factor or factors which are in new grain which are responsible for causing the acute enteritis in birds I am unable to state at the present time. The peculiar thing about this situation is that you may have new grain produced on adjoining farms and in the same case there will be no evidence of trouble even in feeding 100% new grain, especially in the scratch, while on the adjoining farm the grain is causing tremendous trouble. The first symptoms of reaction to the new grain toxic factor is the birds set usually very dark in the head and there is a marked greenish diarrhoeal discharge, and the birds drink excessively, particularly if water is the drinking supply. Tons of course tends to aggravate the diarrhoea and the bird soon becomes extremely weak and in two or three days may be dead. Post mortem examination will reveal the acute inflammation of the almost entire intestinal tract with the liver and kidneys extremely pale, a little fluid in the abdominal cavity, and the marked congestion in these organs. In correcting the trouble practically all that is necessary is to discontinue the feeding of the new grain and place the birds on whole grain and with mild laxative to speed up the elimination of the toxic material from the intestines. Unless the case is too far advanced recovery will take place in a few days. If using material such as Epsom Salts as a laxative I would not advise using over four ounces per 100 birds at a dose. Feeding molasses sometimes used at the rate of one-third of a teaspoonful of molasses to the gallon of drinking water. Do not believe that it makes very much difference what is used as long as it is mild in its action, and I would not advise repeating the dose, especially after using a product such as salts.

Christian Educationalists Visit Province

On Wednesday Sept. 10 in Cornwall U-ted Church a Sunday School Workers Institute was held. Teachers and workers from various Churches in the eastern end of the Island were present. Visiting leaders included Rev. A. Gibson, Sec'y Christian Education of the Baptist Church of the Maritimes; Rev. W. S. Godfrey, Field Sec'y of Young People's Work of the United Church of the Maritimes and Rev. H. C. Olsen minister of the First Baptist Church, Amherst.

The afternoon session opened with a service of worship led by Rev. E. R. Woodside of Cornwall who presided. Rev. D. K. Ross of Pownal assisted. Rev. W. S. Godfrey introduced the theme "The Church School Advance" in his address he pointed out that the Protestant Churches throughout America felt the urgent need in increased religious training and as a result 42 denominations were co-operating to carry on continent wide movement. The movement is not merely a temporary effort but is a carefully planned movement which will last for at least four years. Means of promotion will include radio broadcasts by experts in Christian Education, well prepared movie shorts, syndicated articles sent down through the Church papers, posters and tracts. Three major emphases are given. 1. The home. An effort will be made to have regular Bible reading and prayer in the home to create a Christian atmosphere. 2. The Church. An effort will be made to increase attendance at services of worship, and special meetings for prayer and study. An attempt will be made to improve teaching in the Church and to make Jesus Christ more real and the Church more vital in the lives of people. 3. The community. Denominations will cooperate to build up a wholesome community life. The speaker pointed out the tremendous influence of the home and said that we must have Christian homes if we may hope to have a just and peaceful world. After this splendid address a planned conversation further explaining the Advance and its importance was carried out. Then followed an address by Rev. A. Gibson who outlined the Objectives to be sought and led in a discussion of them. Objectives are as follows: 1. Reach every person. The speaker suggested that teachers list the names of all pupils in the congregation and then go out two by two to visit all homes. 2. Cooperation of the parents. He deplored the custom of many schools who close for the winter months and suggested that in many instances if parents and teachers made a special effort school need not close. "What kind of a citizenship can we expect to have in this country in the years to come, said the speaker. If the children do not receive Christian training?" 3. Church schools should provide sufficient teachers. "Choose certain suitable persons," said Mr. Gibson and then present them with Christian training of the young as a challenge. 4. Teachers would be trained. Training classes as a preparation for teaching should be carried on in the Young People's Union. 5. Create a working fellowship. 6. Use the best teaching materials. 7. Enlist all we reach for Christ and His Church. The speaker pointed out that teachers should have definite goals in view and reminded his audience of the seven objectives for Sunday School workers issued by the International Council of Religious Education. Teachers are asked to test their teaching by these objectives. 1. To believe in God as Christ revealed Him. 2. To the acceptance of Jesus Christ as Lord and Master, Saviour and Friend, and to be loyal to His Cause. 3. To the development of Christian character. 4. To membership in the Christian Church and to hearty participation in its life and work. 5. To the building of a Christian community and world. 6. To a Christian philosophy of life and the universe. 7. To a love for and appreciation of the Bible." At the supper session Rev. W. S. Godfrey led an enjoyable sing-song and Rev. A. Gibson gave an address on the Maritime Education Council (M. R. E. C.) He pointed out its importance, told about the excellent training given through Trail Rangers, Tuxis, and C.G.I.T. the official programs of the Churches, and Summer camps and training schools conducted by the M.R.E.C. At the evening session Rev. Mr. Fenwick of Hazelbrook led the period of worship and Mr. Leonard MacAulay of Charlottetown sang a solo. Rev. G. W. Tilley of Cavendish gave an address on the teaching of Religion in the Schools. Rev. H. C. Olsen of Amherst brought the closing message. He pointed out the infinite worth of our young life and said, "What is more important than taking a little child and implanting in that child the life and spirit of Jesus Christ? He added that the Religious training of the young is the world's basic industry. He pointed out that people who go to Church do for their nation. He suggested that we set at once definite goals and seek to attain them. In closing he stressed the need of a sense of urgency for the work and said, "This is something of which we need not be ashamed. It is what the world needs most."

Scout News and Notices

The Boy Scouts of Scotland have presented a $2,000 ambulance to St. Andrew's Ambulance Association.

Former Boy Scouts from different parts of the Empire and other parts of the world have formed themselves into a Deep Sea Rover Scout Crew, with headquarters at the Tweedsmuir Room, the Scout guest rendezvous at Halifax.

Plans for a three weeks' camping and caddying holiday for 64 selected Alberta Boy Scouts at Banff was cancelled this summer because of polo in certain sections of the west. The annual outing is given Scouts in return for their caddying services during the week of the Banff golf tournament. The boys, older Scouts of a required standing, had been named in fifteen different centres.

While able to find their way about the sea, two crewmen of the Royal Navy who set off on a hiking "voyage" from the sailors' rest camp operated by the Boy Scouts of Halifax, promptly lost themselves among the trees and lakes. One finally came upon a group of Scouts. The other was found by a Scout search party the following evening. They were none the worse for the experience.

A young member of the R. C. M. P. at a northern Saskatchewan post, a former Edmonton Scout, is Assistant Scoutmaster of the local Scout troop. On a recent troop meeting night he found himself encumbered with a young prisoner. What to do? He took the prisoner with him to the Scout meeting and placed him in a chair in a corner. The culprit was a lad of 17, of sulky countenance. As the Scout programme progressed he gradually relaxed. A smile appeared on his face, and finally he was enjoying the games as much as the participating.

Scouts themselves. Which suggests the thought that had he had the opportunity of becoming a Scout he in all probability would not have been on the chair in the corner, awaiting whatever was in store for him. The Argentine Government has ordered the disbandment of all Boy Scout troops not sponsored and led by Argentine citizens. The order presumably is aimed at Scout troops sponsored by German organizations in various parts of the country.

Their part in a two days' and a night's fight with a forest fire that threatened the settlement of Five Rivers, N. S. won commendation for Boy Scouts of the 1st Milton, N. S. Troop. According to the Liverpool Advance, only those on the fire line knew how critical the situation was, but the boys carried on throughout the night, and "took it like men."

In recognition of outstanding work during heavy Nazi air raids on the Merseyside, the 7th, 10th and 12th Bootle Boy Scout Groups have each been awarded a Scout Silver Cross for Gallantry.

As part of the A. R. P. messenger service the boys carried out their work with fine courage when part of the telephone service was put out of action at the peak of the raid. Sometimes on foot, sometimes by cycle or by car, throughout the terrific bombardment of incendiaries and high explosives their messages were delivered. Time bombs and raging fires did not deter them. In the words of one official, they were the V. C.'s of the raid.

Some of the Scouts had been bombed out of their homes, and their parents evacuated, but the boys kept on at their duties, sleeping at the Town Hall. When supposed to be off duty they frequently were found helping with mobile canteens, attending to the stoves or
