BISON FURNACE

With a Bison Hot Water Furnace in the basement, there is little need for brush or scraper. No place in it for soot or dirt to lodge, and its flues are practically self-cleaning. In most furnaces the water jackets are constantly covered with soot and ashes, requiring constant cleaning to enable the fire to heat the water—a dirty job. The Bison has more good heating points than all other heaters combined.

THURSDAY MAY 10, 1906.
A GREAT AND PROGRESSIVE CITY.

The great city of Glasgow with a round million people covers an area which at the time of the Roman occupation was mainly covered by the waters of the Clyde estuary. Coal and iron surround the site. The output of coal now running at the rate of 17,000,000 tons yearly, has made an aggregate in the past of 841,000,000 tons, and twice as much remains. From 1750 a steady progress has been made in improving the navigation of the Clyde below Glasgow, on which $40,000,000 has been spent, and which now gives 22 feet 6 inches depth of low water and 11 feet more at high water.

Glasgow is a great commercial port and a city of vast industries. Its shipbuilding yards turn out over half a million tons of steel shipping yearly, and it claims the largest locomotive works in the world with a multitude of other industries great and small. It has a splendid equipment of libraries and art galleries, and 15 public parks of rare attraction covering over 1000 acres in their total area. A point of peculiar interest is the extent to which the municipality has taken over and operates an extended variety of public utilities, several of which are productive of large revenue.

Not only water works and sewerage, but the street car service, gas and electric lighting, the telephone service, model lodging houses, baths and wash houses, libraries, art galleries, museums and an inebriate reformatory are carried on by the civic government. The street railway system, there known as a tramway covers 132 miles, carries 187,000,000 passengers in a year, and while it gives a half mile ride for a half penny and a two and a half mile for a penny, yields half a million surplus over the cost of operating, with interest on cost, allowance for depreciation and the sinking fund.

A most interesting feature of the beneficent paternalism of the Glasgow city government has been the expropriation of large districts of dilapidated and insanitary buildings, and laying out new and broader streets and erecting model dwelling and lodging houses. Thirty-five blocks of buildings have been thus constructed on the lands in question. These include 297 shops and business places and 1722 dwelling houses, altogether sufficient to house a population equal to that of Charlottetown. And best of all the financial results of these great changes have been more than satisfactory. Some six millions of dollars expended in these improvements will all be repaid in twenty-five years from the original outlay.

We are indebted for the foregoing facts and a further mass of information pertaining to Glasgow, not here touched upon, to a Souvenir Handbook issued by the Corporation in 1904 and kindly placed at our disposal by David A. A. Hunter of Alberton. Our civic rulers would do well, now that they are under the presidency of so capable a head as Mayor Paton, to make a study of what the most progressive Scottish city has achieved under enlightened and progressive civic government. Glasgow has done wonderfully along many lines of public improvement and has made both ends meet every time.

HINTS ON CLOVER GROWING.

by J. A. Dewar.

The first great essential to successful clover-growing is soil humus, clover is humus, and humus means clover. Stable manure is the most potent element in enriching the soil, to produce this valuable crop. It will also pay to use lime and commercial fertilizer judiciously. Soils deficient in nitrogen will not grow clover, and when the land is much impoverished, and the supply of stable manure limited, it will be necessary to plough under crops of peas, vetches, or other legumes.

We have found a shorter crop rotation beneficial. A four years rotation, properly understood, and intelligently spulled, should give double as much clover as the old eight years system.

All grain crops should be seeded with clover, even if the land is resown with grain the succeeding year, such a process will confirm the land in the clover growing habit, and help to gather from the air the indispensable nitrogen. While a rich soil is the prime essential, there cannot be complete success unless care and attention be given to combatting the evils that assail the crop.

The two great opposing forces heat and cold, which in turn may be considered friendly influences, are liable under certain conditions to become enemies.

A long sustained period of drouth will have a pernicious influence on the delicate plants, and the "early and latter" frosts acting in conjunction, will cause an upheaval which will break the roots. The work of fighting the enemy begins with the preparation of the soil. The seed bed should be thoroughly pulverized, drainage is necessary for cold wet land. Sowing should take place early to secure the moisture incident to the first part of the growing season. The seed should be well covered. Sow a sufficient amount. We have sown from three to ten lbs. per acre, and experience leads us to believe that six lbs. with an equal amount of timothy seed is sufficient.

The proper varieties to sow is important. "Mammoth" finds many advocates on account of its great bulk, the "common red" because of its superior aftermath. We are of the opinion that the bulk of the mixture should be Mammoth, three lbs. to three of asike and red, the difference in ripening will be immaterial, if carefully this should be the rule; as it gives a better aftermath, will contain more succulence, there will be less waste, and it will be an insurance for a better crop the succeeding year.

In cutting the grain order the stubble should be left high, in order to gather the protecting snow, as well as to act as a preventive of smothering out by ice. Animals should be strictly prohibited from grazing in the fields prior to the cutting of the first crop. This mischievous practice results in exposing the plants to the inclemency of the seasons.

One of our greatest writers has said "that while the monuments of art are perishable, that grass is immortal." It is equally true that we cannot divorce clover from a fertile soil. Mr. William Rennie gave utterance to a great truth when he stated that clover is the keystone of successful agriculture. We may add that "soil enrichment" is the key to clover production, and clover in turn unlocks the way to "Land flowing with milk and honey."

THE CORN AND THE LILIES.

Said the corn to the lilies:
"Press not near my feet.
You are only tillers—
Neither corn nor wheat.
Does one earn his living
Just by being sweet?"

Naught answered the lilies,
Neither yea or nay,
Only they grew sweeter
All the living day,
And at last the Teacher
Chanced to come that way.

While his tired disciples
Rested at his feet,
And the proud corn rustled,
Bidding them to eat,
"Children," said the Teacher,
"The life is more than meat"

"Consider the lilies,
How beautiful they grow;
Never had king such glory,
Yet no toll they know."
Oh, happy were the lilies
That he loved them so!

In painting you first think of the cost. Then mark this well it's the labor that makes the bulk of cost in painting—the wages paid the painters not the paint.
