PILES

Ended Without Cutting or Salves
If you think a surgical operation is the only way to get rid of itching, bleeding or protruding Piles, because you haven't heard of the harmless internal medicine discovered by a prominent western physician.

After years of study, Dr. J. S. Leonard found the cause of Piles to be internal-congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the hemorrhoidal plexus. The bowels walls weak, the parts almost dead. Right away the doctor set to work to find a real internal remedy. He succeeded, and after prescribing it for 1000 patients, with success in over 900 cases, he named his prescription HEM-ROID.
The doctor wants every Pile sufferer to benefit by his discovery, and so there will be no doubting or delay Hughes Drug Co., Ltd., and druggists everywhere are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end Piles in any form.
So why waste time on external treatments or think of an operation when HEM-ROID tablets are guar-

CANADIANS FACE TOUGH TASK TODAY

When Davis Cup Team Meets Americans at Montreal in Zone Finals.

(Canadian Press) MONTREAL, May 17—Canada's leading tennis players take the court against the finest in the United States in the opening singles matches of the North American zone finals in Davis Cup competition tomorrow afternoon.
Dr. Jack Wright, Vancouver veteran, takes on Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas, in the first match, and Gilbert Nunn of Toronto meets Ellsworth Vines, ranking no. 1 in the United States, in the second game.

The Canadians start undefeated against one of the most formidable tennis teams that ever sought the historic mug. With Vines and Allison in the singles, and the renowned team of George Lott and Johnny Van Ryn contesting the doubles the Canucks have an uphill battle in front of them and they are ready for it.

Allison has never met Wright, and Vines has never played Nunn. Wright will match his stylish game against the forceful volleying tactics the U. S. captain has so well developed. The Canadian will probably try to keep his opponent away from the net by going in there himself.

Young Gilbert Nunn, playing in fine form this spring, has a tough assignment in Vines, victor over the best players in the world during the last two years. Nunn will rely largely on his powerful forehand drive.

The drab gray background of the old House.
"Announcement of the Lieutenant-Governor's entry into the legislative chamber brought an abrupt end to opposition leader A. S. MacMillan's criticism of the Franchise Act. And just as the King's representative crossed the threshold of the Chamber, Premier Gordon S. Harrington performed the last act of the session by flinging the Public Accounts Committee's report on the clerk's table amid cries of protest from the opposition side of the House, at delay in tabling the report.

Bringing Up Father

GERMANY

formed followers the Nazi leader delivered his address standing in front of a high swastika banner, beside which hung a black, white and red flag, emblem of the Old Empire.
Reiterating the demand for equality of armaments, the Chancellor asserted the equality is moral, legal and sensible.
"Germany wants nothing she is not ready to give to others," he said.

PRESENT MILITARY POWER

Turning to Germany's present military situation the Chancellor said:
"Germany has disarmed. Our army consists of 100,000 men. The strength and quality of the police are internationally regulated.
"Assistant police, established during our revolution, have an exclusively political character. After the victory in the revolution this police organization already is being demobilized and will be completely dissolved before the end of the year."
"Germany now has the moral right to demand that other nations also fulfill the obligations of the Versailles Treaty.
"The equality promised last November was not realized."
Then dealing with the desires of the French Government with regard to security he asked:
"What concrete safeguards does France demand beyond the international obligations already assumed. What safeguards in Germany to have?"

FAVORS MACDONALD PLAN

His Government, Herr Hitler, said, considers the MacDonald plan for disarmament presents a possible starting point for the solution of the arms problem. This plan calls for transformation of the Reichswehr into a conscript short-term, army, and referring to this the Chancellor said:
"Germany must further demand that transformation of the present system, which was not desired but was forced upon Germany, shall proceed apace in proportion as other states actually disarm.
"Germany is ready to regard a five-year transitional period as adequate for re-establishing her national security in the expectation that at the end of this time Germany will really be on equal footing with others.
"Germany is further ready to renounce instruments of aggression if during that time other nations likewise destroy theirs."
(The abolition of aggressive weapons was one of the proposals contained in President Roosevelt's world-wide appeal of yesterday.)

EQUALITY FOR ALL

"Germany will reject no arms ban as too far going so long as applied to all powers," the Chancellor continued. "Insofar as arms are conceded to other powers Germany alone cannot be forbidden defensive weapons forever. We are ready to use our equality only to the extent laid down by negotiations.
"All these demands do not imply arming up, but exclusively the desire that others arm down."

FORCES OF FRANCE

Dealing with the armed forces of France the Chancellor said that it was unfair to omit from the numbers subject to limitation the trained reservists on leave, while counting the police forces as part of the German army when they are only armed and trained for police purposes.
"It is totally impossible," he said, "to count organizations which solely serve political or educational or sportive purposes, and which enjoy no military training or possess military equipments, as part of

Desires To Negotiate

"The German Government desires to negotiate with other nations peacefully and amicably concerning all difficult questions of a political and economic nature. It knows that every military action in Europe, even in the event of total success, is out of all proportion if measured by the sacrifices entailed, to the possible gains."
The Chancellor made it very clear, however, that Germany would not sign any treaty which perpetuates her existing "disqualification."
"Any attempt," he said, through threats to impress the Government and people will no longer be able to make an impression. It is conceivable that Germany will be involved in contravention of every right and every moral principle, but it is unthinkable and out of the question that such an act will be given legal validity by ourselves through a signature.
"If in newspaper articles and unfortunate speeches an attempt is made to threaten Germany with sanctions, then such monstrous procedure could only be regarded as punishment for demanding the Disarmament Treaties' fulfilment."
This reference to "unfortunate speeches" evidently was pointed at

Would Leave League

"As a nation under a perpetual stigma, it would also be difficult for us to remain within the League of Nations."
Germany, the Chancellor said, fully comprehends the gravity of the world crisis. He pictured the misfortunes and miseries of the German people since the war, "the vast extent of which the rest of the world cannot imagine."
These woes and sufferings, the Chancellor declared in closing, are witnesses against the spirit and fulfilment of the peace treaty, "from the effectiveness of which not only the rest of the world but also millions of men and women in Germany once expected blessings of grace."
"May the other nations, however, understand from this, Germany's firm determination to close at last a period of human errors, in order to find the way to real conciliation, all upon a basis of equal rights."
