expects a man to devote his time to pleasing and amusing her, but the widow pets and coddles the man. Furthermore, a widow doesn't demand so much of a man as a girl does. She isn't always calling him up over the telephone in business hours. She doesn't make scenes when he is a little late in keeping an appointment. She is good-natured and sensible and easy to get along with and knows how to make allowances for a man, and that makes men think her a preferred risk in matrimony. As, indeed, she is.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Do you think that a middle-aged man who has grown children and a good, faithful wife can really fall in love with a young girl? Isn't it softening of the brain rather than love? Did you ever know of a case where a young girl ever really fell in love with an old man where it wasn't just a pretense to get his money?

ANSWER: I have never known of a single case in which an old man has divorced a faithful wife in order to marry a young girl in which the man did not bitterly repent the mistake he had made. Many men around 50 go through a period of nervous mental irresponsibility. They look at their wives and realize that they have grown old, but they delude themselves into thinking they themselves are still young.

Many a man divorces his faithful old wife and marries a young girl while in this age of irresponsibility, but no sooner is the wedding ceremony safely over than he discovers that his illusion of youth was just a pipe dream, and that he is an old man after all. Also, he soon learns that the girl he married has nothing in common with him, that all she wants is his pocketbook and to run around and have a good time with boys of her own age.

There are no more forlorn creatures in the world than the old husbands of young wives that you see sitting on the sidelines at night clubs, cabarets and restaurants, waiting to pay the bill.

DEAR MISS DIX: The young man to whom I am engaged frankly tells me that he will not be true to me after we are married. He says no man is true to his wife, that it is a physical impossibility. He is a handsome lad, well educated, has an excellent position and I thought that I was much in love with him, but since he has made this confession I am not so sure. What shall I do?

ANSWER: "Forewarned is forearmed," said the old proverb, and since this young man has announced to you that he does not even expect to be faithful to you, you will be very foolish if you do not leave him to his phantasies without involving yourself in them. As long as a man really loves a woman in the way she wants to be loved he is immune to the attractions of other women.

Evils of Prosperity

What is the situation? In a free country like Canada prosperous times are for many people times of indulgence. Every dealer of the liquor traffic explains the enormous increase in Ontario's drink bill by the free flow of money in the country. Then look at the increase of accidents on our highways and of crimes of passion and violence due in many cases to excessive drinking. Our gifts to charitable and religious causes are not keeping pace with our increased prosperity; whatever gratitude we have is not leading to larger generosity. One can hardly hold that in Canada the goodness of God is leading to repentance.

And yet many choice spirits let gratitude inspire the gifts of life

Religion And Life

By Very Rev. George C. Pidgeon, D.D., L.L.D. First Moderator of the United Church of Canada (Copyright)

One winter in Harvard there was an exchange professor from England who attended regularly the morning services of worship in the chapel. A minister, who led those services for a week was introduced to this man and expressed his pleasure at seeing him daily in attendance, and he explained in answer: "After a good night's rest and the peace and plenty which greets me here in the morning I feel like saying thanks."

This is Thanksgiving week and the Canadian who does not feel like thanking the Giver of all good must have a heart of stone.

Just look at the facts. In spite of the drought, a good harvest. Business good all over the land. Unemployment at the minimum. Social services more general and efficient than ever. Freedom of thought and speech, freedom of religion, government of the people by the people and for the people, and a system for the administration of justice which guarantees his rights to every man. Opportunity for the full and free exercise of our powers and attainments, and through the service given, a place and part in our people's progress.

Peace reigns among the nations and the threat of war is receding. Above all, we have the Gospel of full salvation through our Crucified and Risen Lord and His call to service here and hereafter. "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?"

Apostle's Sayings

There are two sayings about thankfulness in the New Testament which get added weight from their setting. One is Colossians 3, 15: "Let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts, to which indeed you were called in one body; and be ye thankful in the Lord." The other is Philippians 4, 6: "Have no anxiety about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God, which passes all understanding, will keep your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus."

One of Christ's last promises to His followers was His peace: "Peace I leave unto you; my peace I give unto you." This assurance was given in the shadow of Calvary (John 14:27). It means, therefore, calm amid surrounding storm. Paul in the two passages quoted repeats the offer of peace and connects it with thanksgiving. That is to say, acknowledgement of God's blessings in the past is the ground of confidence in His promises for the future. If you do not recognize His hand in all that passes all understanding, you will not be able to depend on His help in the future.

The striking thing about these passages from Paul's letters is that they were written from prison. He was suffering most unjustly. He was jailed not only in spite of his goodness, but because of it; he was persecuted for bringing to men the offer of salvation. Yet there is not a word of complaint; instead, there is praise to God for what he suffers in spite of his goodness; Paul, persecuted because of his goodness, writes: "In everything give thanks." In this light, how can Canadians, in all their highly favored of all nations, refuse to be thankful?

In another of Paul's letters, he writes about God's object in showering His gifts upon us. "God's goodness (or kindness) is meant to lead you to repentance." He was a moral and spiritual aim in every good thing He gives us. If we fail to see this purpose behind our blessings and act on it, we turn the sweetness of God's grace to gall.
