...sian godparent by the name of Omar and it must have been the vald of Lincolnshire, England, that was introduced into a post and London that made Dicky Milnes into Lord Houghton. But why should cool New England ancestor and environment have produced that genial soul Oliver Wendell Holmes, and which variety of fairy was in attendance at the Gladstones when Highland came presented her Lowland husband with a fourth son just as the old year was making way for the new?

"Anyhow, that old year must have slipped into the past with a smile of satisfaction, for no year before or since can boast of so many gifted children. Indeed a whole century might be proud of the richness and variety of its descendants without counting still another birthday of 1899 which is marked with a star, one that to the Kemble family was worth all the others. Thus, on the 27th of August, 1899, a little girl was born. It was in the autumn of the twenty-seventh of November, that Mrs. Charles Kemble gave birth to her second child, a daughter, who heretofore was a blend of France and England; here environment was to be a blend of Europe and America.

Belonging to a famous theatrical family, Fanny Kemble had knowledge of but no love of the theatre and when she made her sudden stage debut at the age of nineteen, she took to it with a preparation for "Romeo and Juliet"—it was solely to "ep her father and his beloved Covent Garden out of debt. Her husband, who had been the founding and left no further doubt or choice of a career.

This career soon took her to America where she met her first husband, independent, fair-minded nature, and her intense interest in everything soon led her into difficulties with her husband and his somewhat narrow minded family. Her ready and evident sympathy with the slaves of her husband's plantation in Georgia widened the breach and she finally returned to England where the publication of her journal "A Residence on a Georgia Plantation" was said to have been the final means of preserving her nationality in England, heretofore inclined to favour the South in the American Civil War.

Her life was saddened by separation from her two daughters by death, and the faculty of making and keeping friends, and she was wholeheartedly adored in London by young and old.

Fanny Kemble and her aunt, Mrs. Siddons, the "Tragic Muse" had their portraits painted several times by well known artists—Sir Joshua Reynolds, Thomas Gainsborough and Sir Thomas Lawrence. The first two were at one time rivals for the first place in the art of eighteenth century, England. As well as a noted portrait painter, Lawrence was also the valued friend, adviser and critic of Fanny Kemble.

The following—"An Old Air: Scarlati" was written by Lenore A. Pratt Grand Falls, New Brunswick and appeared in a recent Toronto Saturday Night.

Step forth, ye figures of another day,
Tread now a measure to this matchless air;
Dance lightly, lightly, lords and ladies gay,
And lure the peacock down the marble stair,
Or charm her pure reflection from the swan!
The shadow on the sundial fades away,
The rose leaf scatters on the dewy lawn,
Beauty and youth we would but cannot stay,
O doves and fountains and green, glossy vines,
O single cloud in summer sky serene,
O pinks and poppy brids and columbines,
And butterflies afloat above this scene—
Ye all must vanish like the rose leaf's scent,
When this clear, sparkling jet of sound be spent!

The minutes of the last convention were read by the secretary of Murray Harbor North, Gaspereaux, Sturgeon, Pembroke and St. Mary's of Mass. Institutes. The convention was pleasantly entertained by a recitation by Miss Emma Llewellyn, Pembroke, singing by the Misses Stella and Irene Graham, Sturgeon, and a reading by Mrs. Thomas Jackson, Sturgeon.

Mrs. Benjamin Graham, Winthrop, Mass., was present and gave an interesting talk on her club work at home. She told of their problems and how they solved them; and also some of the good times they had in the Rural Clubs in Massachusetts. Mrs. Lester Mellish, Montague, Provincial President was welcomed and spoke briefly on the provincial convention, and some encouraging words to the weak Institute, stressing the point that the small things are always the beginning of big things. Mrs. Wendell Graham, Pembroke Institute was appointed delegate.

Election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Wendell Graham, Pembroke; Vice President, Mrs. Willard McClure, Murray Harbor North; Secretary, Miss Belle Hicken, Pembroke; Executive Committee, one member from each Institute: Pembroke, Mrs. D. Refreshments were served by the members of Pembroke Institute and a pleasant social hour spent. There was a good attendance of members and visitors.

In Memoriam

MRS. OSWALD MCDUGALL
Relatives and friends on the Island will regret to learn of the death on August 26th, at Rossland, B. C., of Helen, dearly beloved wife of Oswald McDougall, formerly of Fairview, P. E. I. Although in delicate health for some years, her death, coming quite unexpectedly was a great shock. The funeral, which was held from their home in Kaslo, was attended by a very large circle of friends. Deceased was the daughter of the late Daniel Bruce of Valleyfield, later of B. C. Besides her sorrowing husband she leaves to mourn their loss, her mother, in Kaslo, B. C., and one brother, Harley Bruce, of Chicago. ### HO, COME TO THE FAIR

When the great throng pushes its way through the main gates to the Exhibition, it enters an atmosphere of glitter, geyon and noise unknown to any other form of educational entertainment. For beneath the bally-hoo, the trappings, the thrills, the exhibits, the races, the acrobatic stunts and the whole glittering panoply is the ubiquitous money motive. Indeed everyone in any way connected with the Fair should be honest enough to admit it, like Miss Bunce, who, when asked why she wrote her book, said simply, "I wanted money."

However, the altruistic aim of the annual Fair is educational entertainment for its patrons, presented in an unique way. Notwithstanding the general effect of garishness (created to a great extent by the noise and glare of the Midway), there are many points of beauty. Perhaps that of the plants and cut flowers in the main building is the most striking. Yet here the exhibits are so densely massed on long tables that the noise and glare wherein the individual loveliness of the gem is lost. The Creator has expressed His supreme artistry through the flowers, and 'tis a pity that man may not express his in the arrangement of them. However, the wide array of softly blazing color are breath taking in their loveliness. Again, beauty, the product of skill and talent, is displayed in the Domestic Science exhibit, in the Handcraft, in the Art work. It was somewhat amusing to overhear, in the vicinity of the hooked rugs, a visitor remark, apropos of the beautiful work and its exhibitors, "Well, they haven't anything else to do." One can almost hear a chuckle from West Cape to East Point.

Down in the barns and stables stands the cream of the Island livestock. Sleek and satin-sided, the animals bear testimony to scientific feeding and careful grooming. Whether it be the Prince Edward Island babies, as are scientifically cared for, or are these beauties of the show ring. Of course no self-respecting baby would stand for the trimming, shampooing, "bluing," oiling and polishing these prize winners get. Beauty too, is expressed on the race track in the graceful form, the spirited movement and speed of the horses; in the startling gymnastics of the vaudeville performers.

What is this part of the Exhibition is the big attraction for many is evidenced by the crowds that pour through the gates each day from twelve o'clock on. Although the afternoon entertainment does not begin until two, the best seats in the stands are occupied before one sits. Happily the discomfort of sitting for five hours, more or less, on the hard, wooden seats, is forgotten, for a time, in the passing pageantry of people, racing and vaudeville people, from a psychological standpoint are perhaps the most interesting of all for many types are present. The women as a rule, are well-dressed, and the men, in their "braces." But who can blame them, with a thermometer climbing into the dizzy heights of the aerial acrobats!

Just before two o'clock the white-garbed orchestra swings into lulling tune "Oh, Mama, go get that boy for me," and later into the cheering marching song of the Seven Dwarfs. What a burst of applause would have rocked the stands if the funny little men had marched across the platform; if Dopey had danced "by proxy in the long-tailed coat!" While the white-garbed orchestra swings into lulling tune "Oh, Mama, go get that boy for me," and later into the cheering marching song of the Seven Dwarfs.
