

I Wonder?

When lying on an operating table I watch the surgeon working on my throat, I wonder if his efforts will enable me to get my health, or will he 'get my goat'?

CANADIAN AUTHORS FETED IN EDINBURGH EDINBURGH, Scotland, July 26 -The 70 members of the Canadian Authors Association touring the United Kingdom were entertained at luncheon by the City Corporation of Edinburgh yesterday.

The function was one of many that have been arranged for the visitors at various parts of the British Isles, most noteworthy perhaps being the luncheon by the Royal Society of Literature at which Rudyard Kipling was chief speaker last week.

Replying to the toast to the guests proposed by the Lord Provost, Howard Angus Kennedy of the Canadian party expressed regrets the stream of migration from Scotland to Canada had been checked in later years. Canada had room for millions of Scots if they showed as much intelligence in reform systems of co-operative settlement as had been shown in other forms of organization, he declared.

Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordon ("Ralph Connor") is among the visitors. Are better far than any Worldly Gain.

So if I hear 'the Truth that I have spoken 'Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools, Or see the work I gave my life to broken,' I'll stop and build it up with sharpened tools.

Regaining health, rebuilding nerve and muscle To serve my Will, I'll start my work afresh; And give old man Disaster such a tussle He'll wish he'd never caught me in his mesh!

I'll find life's Good in Helping, Leading, Serving, And play the game as squarely as I can; Hoping, at least, that I may be deserving To think, and feel, and call myself a Man.

ESHRDLURDL E. H. Rayner London. 12th July, 1932. APRES Should all ye editors decline this verse I've written while I battle with my ills; I will not whine and fume and swear And think upon a nobler, higher plane; Honour and Justice in all life's relations

HEALTH RECOVERY IN FINANCIAL MARKETS

By John L. Cooley, Associated Press Financial Writer. NEW YORK, July 24.-(A.P.)-Recovery was striking in many of the financial markets today. Stocks rallied swiftly during their three hours and closed with net gains of roughly one to 10 points, thereby cutting a wide swathe into last week's losses. Bonds were generally higher, while the same was true of commodities.

The latter opened before stocks, which began their day's work at noon, and the higher prices for grains-at Chicago and Winnipeg-as well as better quotations for cotton, silver, rubber and other staples undoubtedly contributed to the initial strength of equities. Stocks started with a rush, calmed slightly under quick profit-taking and additional offerings from weakened speculative accounts, and then swung into a sweeping advance that recalled their performances of the spring and early summer. Turnover was 3,414,100 shares.

Brisk short covering as well as orders from "bargain hunters" and a general reaction from last week's puncturing of the speculative balloon served the market well. At the close advances of two to six points were liberally spread over the list, while a number of "specialties" did much better. Metal, alcohol and rail issues were prominent, but the rise proved to be inclusive.

National Distillers gained 10, Industrial Rayon, Cerro De Pasco, Celanese, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Illinois Central, American Commercial Alcohol, Western Union, Norfolk and Western and Auburn seven to nine or so, American Water Works, Commercial Solvents, General Mills, Hercules Powder and Bethlehem Steel in the neighborhood of five and six. American Telephone, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, Dupont, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, New York Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Baltimore and Ohio, Westinghouse and Johns-Manville lifted one to four or better. U. S. Steel, American Can, Union Carbide, Kennecott, Anaconda, International Nickel and Chesapeake and Ohio added at least two points. U. S. Smelting boomed up 11% to a new high.

Perhaps the most important means of developing regularly and of avoiding constipation is to adhere strictly to a regular time. The visit to the toilet should never be deferred, irrespective of the lack of any urge at the time. It is this regularity in habit which keeps the bowels regular and which practically obviates any necessity for further attention. Regularity can be assisted, by proper diet, including the use of sufficient fluids and by exercise or other physical activity, particularly of the type which brings the large muscles of the abdomen into play.

The use of cathartics indicates failure to follow the above rules or suggests that we have thrown the machinery of digestion out of order by overloading it or by abusing it with an undue amount or the wrong kinds of foods. It should be pointed out that just as long as we rely upon cathartics, we will continue to be constipated, in that normal evacuation will not occur. It should also be realized that cathartics may do very serious harm if they are used for abdominal pain which may be the result of some abnormal condition, such as an inflamed appendix. It is safer and more preferable, in all ways to secure eliminating through habit, diet and exercise, and to avoid the use of cathartics.

FORTUNE LOCATED AFTER 130 YEARS

AMSTERDAM, July 26.-A cargo of gold and silver, worth nearly $10,000,000, which has been lost beneath the waters of the North Sea for over 130 years, may be raised within the next few months, thanks to the enterprise of a Dutch engineer.

It is the treasure of the famous British man-of-war, the Lutine, which was wrecked off the Dutch coast in 1769 while carrying an enormous cargo of precious metals to Hamburg.

The money-insured for $10,000,000 at the time-was destined to subsidize the nations of the Continent in their fight against Napoleon's armies, but every penny was lost in the wreck, and the only one of the crew of 273 who escaped died soon after reaching land.

Effort after effort has been made through 130 years to recover the treasure, but only a tiny proportion has been salvaged.

The ship's bell, the famous Lutine Bell of Lloyd's in London, only sounded when important shipping news comes in, was one of the recoveries.

And in 1866 some $788,000 of gold was brought to the surface. During the war the buoys marking the wreck were taken away by the Dutch Government, and though they were replaced in 1919, not a single effort was made to locate the wreck since has been successful.

A Dutch engineer, whose efforts, over many years no one took in the least seriously, has just succeeded, however, in locating the site of the wreck.

It lies about 100 yards from the official buoys, and by means of a specially-constructed conning-tower, the details of which have been kept strictly secret, M. Bekkers hopes to be able to salvage $1,840,000, remainder of the precious cargo.

He has already succeeded in bringing to the surface part of the munition which the frigate was carrying.

M. Bekkers states that the wreck lies under 42 feet of sand, and 9 to 15 feet of water, according to the

Chicago Market Falls In Late Dealing

CHICAGO, July 24.-Suspension of a big speculator, whose dealings aggregated millions of bushels, divided interest today with reopening of grain business and temporary sharp advances in prices. Despite active commission house purchasing which at times hoisted values three cents a bushel, the wheat market reacted in the late dealings, and closed at the lowest quotations allowed under emergency rules. Large scale offerings due mostly to weakened marginal accounts, did much to curtail price gains as the day drew to an end, especially as the bulk of traders were apparently disposed to adopt an attitude of caution pending the outcome of a national conference of grain trade representatives in session at Washington.

Provisions reflected the weakness of hog values and of corn. In much of the day's business, the climbs in the provision markets amounted to 75 cents compared with Thursday's close. Wheat closed steady at the average of the closing prices of Thursday, with corn, unchanged to 1 1/2 up, oats unchanged to 1 1/4 higher, rye unchanged to 1/2 advance, and provisions 50 to 75 cents off.

Address And Presentation On July 2nd, the people of Savage Harbor and adjacent districts assembled at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Douglas to participate in a social entertainment given in honor of Mrs. Hazel C. Corbett, retiring teacher of Savage Harbor. When the guests were all assembled, music and dancing were indulged in and continued until a moderate hour when the assemblage departed for their respective homes. A main feature of the evening was an address and presentation, given by Miss Corbett by the members of the Savage Harbor Women's Institute. Miss Corbett thanked her fellow members for their kind remembrance, assuring them that she would not forget her pleasant associations with them.

Following is the address: Miss Hazel Corbett, Savage Harbor, Dear Hazel.—By the continued possession of an object even one of great value, people sometimes become so accustomed to it that they in a measure cease to realize its sterling worth and only when the treasured object is lost do they once again become cognizant of its rare value. This fact has been strikingly brought home to us, the members of the Savage Harbor Women's Institute when we were informed that you were no longer to be a resident of Savage Harbor, and thus no longer a member of our institute. You have ever been a faithful member and a willing worker for the good of the Institute and only now do we realize fully how much you meant to its success.

We know that you will not forget your fellow members of this institute, nor the many occasions we met in its interest, yet we wish to offer you this token as something tangible to aid you in remembering your pleasant associations with us in the past.

Signed on behalf of the Women's Institute of Savage Harbor, Mrs. Allan Morrison and Miss Muriel Coffin. (Patriot please copy)

IRISH FREE STATE SEEKS BRITISH CATTLE MARKET

LONDON, July 24.-(C. P. Cable)-Discussions are proceeding between the Governments of the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State with regard to the importations of Free State cattle. A voluntary arrangement is being sought which would restrict the number of cattle imported into Britain. The negotiations form part of the consultations being held with the Dominions on trade questions. They have no reference to the financial dispute between the two countries. This originated more than a year ago when the Free State withheld land annuities, amounting to $15,000,000 a year, the action precipitating a tariff which has disrupted mutual trade.
