EXHAUSTIVE SURVEY OF FISH MARKETING

Arranged By Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Fisheries — Many Activities of the Dept. Had Been Misdirected, He States.

(Canadian Press)

TTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7—Canadians can be induced to eat more fish and the Minister of Fisheries, Hon. E.N. Rhodes, proposes to find out how it can be done. With the immediate object of putting the fishing industry on its feet, Mr. Rhodes has arranged for an exhaustive survey of methods of marketing the catches from the Atlantic, Pacific and Great Lakes Fisheries at every stage from the fishermen to the consumer. The firm of Cockfield, Brown and Company Limited, of Montreal has been engaged to make the survey and report to the Government.

The announcement made by the Minister today outlines the first definite step taken by the Dept. of Fisheries since it was placed under the exclusive control of one Minister. Until the last regular session of Parliament the department was administered jointly with the Department of Marine.

In looking over the activities of the Department since he assumed office, Mr. Rhodes said he had found many of them had been misdirected. The methods used to improve the lot of the fishermen had been largely palliative in character. There had never been a thorough attempt to get to the bottom of the troubles besetting the industry. In the Minister's opinion the continuous spending of money on palliative measures was not justified, unless there was a construction programme designed to make the industry selfsustaining.

Tragedy Victims Laid To Rest

Whole Citizenry Join In Mourning The Departed. Funerals At United Churches In Charlottetown And Vernon River Largely Attended.

Moved as by no other event in recent years in tribute to those who have passed, and in sympathy to the bereaved, a vast concourse of people both from the City and from the whole province joined in mourning with the relatives of the departed at the funeral of Doris Adams, Eleanor Stewart, and Helen Higgins, held yesterday afternoon from Trinity United Church with interment following at the People's Cemetery. More clearly than words can relate was expressed the widespread grief and sincere sorrow evoked by Wednesday's sudden and shocking tragedy in the vast crowd of mourners, the largely attended funeral, and the visible manifestations of sympathy of many citizens. The triple funeral was conducted by Rev. Dr. Ramsay assisted by Rev. C. N. Brown and Rev. H. D. Raymond.

The funeral of Miss Isabel Bruce was held at Vernon River United Church, Rev. Henry Pierce officiating.

Many in the vast assemblage were moved to tears at the touching scene, three white caskets surrounded by beautiful flowers appropriate tokens of the sympathy of a sorrowing citizenry.

Prior to the services at the church which began at 2 o'clock private services were held at the homes of the deceased. As Prof. A. Roy Kendall at the organ softly rendered Webster's Funeral March, hundreds of people passed up the aisles to view the remains.

In the centre of the church in the seats reserved for the mourners were the members of the C. G. I. T. of Prince Street School and the fellow pupils of the deceased.

The order of service was as follows:

Hymn, "Lead Kindly Light."

Prayer, Rev. C. N. Brown

Solo "The Old Rugged Cross," R. Gillis, (by request.)

Scripture Reading and Prayer, Rev. H D. Raymond.

Hymn "Perfect, Perfect Peace."

As the remains were carried from the church to the waiting hearses, drawn up abreast, many of the spectators were visibly affected. As the funeral cortege moved off the hearses formed in line, with the immediate family following each, the mourners and general public following the last hearse.

Dr. Ramsay's Address

Two brief words have I to say to you dear stricken mourners.

The first is the word of the people, and it is Sympathy. In every heart of this crowded assembly and in every heart of our community—and beyond—there is for you the deepest tenderest compassion. No event in recent times has stirred such kindred emotion, and if we, being evil, know how to sympathize, how much more does our Heavenly Father who has not only pity—richer fuller tenderer—in His heart and also healing in His Hand.

The second is the word of the Lord and it is Support and Rescue. He is saying to you today whispering to each broken spirit.—O, so earnestly—"It is I, be not afraid." When night has settled so deeply on your spirits and your hearts are tossed in so sudden a storm, when the winds scream and the white waves yawn and the darkness shuts out the old familiar landmarks there comes towards you across the fields of your mind a fearful spectre. Is it the sinister genius of the storm riding the waves as a swift steed to finish you as he has brought low your beautiful dead, a bold and heartless fate that dominates the storm and all things? Or is it the monster of meaningless chance, whose reason is but a whim, snatching here and snatching there and having destroyed yours is ready to destroy you? It would seem so. But no! Listen with bated breath and across the storm will come in familiar tones the almost unbelievable words. "Lo. It is I, be not afraid." "I?" Who? The one the disciples came to love and trust in calmer senses, the intimate, gentle, understanding sympathizing Jesus. The blessed Lord Himself to the rescue! And so to you He comes—O, believe Him. Peter in agony cried out "If it be Thou." But put away the "if." Believe and you will know a great calm.

And one word have I for all who hear me, and especially for the young—their companions perhaps—be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh.

Cabinet Was Threatened With Disruption

(Special to the Guardian)

CANBERRA, Nov. 7.—Australia's Cabinet was threatened with disruption today when the Labor Party caucus voted out its own leader, acting Prime Minister Fenton and acting Treasurer Lyons on methods of meeting the $105,000,000 commitments falling due next month. The result of the vote is that Lyons is likely to resign from the Government.

Lyons proposed to raise a loan in Australia, but the party caucus agreed by a big majority to ask the Commonwealth bank to meet payments to bond-holders. Over the leader's protests the rebellious Laborites instructed the Ministry to issue Government securities to the bank for the amount. In case the bank refused to agree they proposed to introduce legislation compelling it, thus legalizing the whole transaction.

Careless Robbers Are Apprehended

(Special to the Guardian)

BARRIE, Nov. 7—Four hours after they admittedly had held up and robbed the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at Unionville of about $7,500, Jack Darwent, aged 25, truck driver, and Murray James Kirkland, aged 35, garage mechanic, were overpowered in a melee with police officers at Livingstone Brothers garage at Barrie this evening. Both said they came from Toronto, Kirkland giving a Hilda Avenue address.

The careless dropping by one of the bandits of two packages of bills, each containing $500 in $5 bills, on the floor at the Wilcox Inn, Staynor, led to their apprehension. Edward Lindsay of Toronto, who at the same time was having dinner in the dining room, noticed the mishap, and saw one of the accused hurriedly pick up the package. He took the automobile license number outside the premises, and immediately notified police, who spread a net throughout the countryside, and picked up the fugitives trail as they were being towed into Barrie. Meanwhile, at Staynor, 13 year-old Elizabeth Gartlan, daughter of Roger Gartlan, grain merchant, picked up a couple of sealed packages on the street, which upon investigation were revealed as containing one hundred five dollar bills, Mr. Gartlan says, she immediately told her father who forthwith notified the police. The sum of $4,900 was found on the two men when they were searched at Barrie police headquarters. Interviewed by the Globe, they stated that this was their "first job." They could give no reasons for perpetrating the hold-up, and said they had intended coming back to Toronto to spend the night, and then head north "for the tall timbers"
