First Winter Taxed Spirit Of Loyalists

Shipwreck, Cold, and Near Starvation Endured By Saint John's Founders

SAINT JOHN, N. B., April 24—(C. P.)—Fifteen days out of New York, a fleet of 20 transports bearing some 3,000 United Empire Loyalists sailed into Saint John harbor on May 11, 1783. Inclement weather and lack of land habitations kept the passengers aboard for a week. May 18 next, the sesquicentennial anniversary of their landing will be an occasion for celebration in this "Loyalist" city, first settled by these "friends of the government" who paid with hardship and lost homes for their allegiance to Britain when 13 American colonies fought for independence.

Ships in the history making "spring fleet" were the Camel, Union, Aurora, Hope, Otter, Spencer, Emmett, Thames, Spring, Bridgewater, Favourite, Ann, Commerce, William, Lord Townsend, Sovereign, Sally, Cyrus, Britain and King George.

Discomfort before and after landing was the lot of the Loyalists. Rain and unseasonably cold weather, together with lack of accommodations on shore, made a miserable combination. Epidemics such as measles broke out in the overcrowded transports during their stay in the harbor.

A few men from the Union explored the St. John river and decided upon a place of settlement on the shore of Bell's Bay, 30 miles from the river mouth. All 309 passengers on the Union and their possessions were transferred to a sloop and taken to the Bellisle district of absolute wilderness. "The women and children did not refrain from tears," wrote one of the group.

Before disembarkation was made from the rest of the fleet on May 18, brushwood had to be cleared away from the landing place at Upper Cove, now known as the Market Slip in the heart of Saint John's business district. Excepting a small clearing around Fort Howe and a hamlet at Portland Point, the site of the present city was densely wooded.

The Loyalists' first concern was for shelter. While clearing the land they lived in tents and other temporary dwellings. They had been provided with necessary building supplies and by winter every family was comfortably sheltered in a substantial residence. The first frame structure was a place of worship. One year after the first landing, 276 dwellings and stores had been erected.

At that time John Parr was the Governor of Nova Scotia, then in London, and some months after their arrival here the Loyalists gave the name of Parr Town to that part of the present city on the eastern side of the harbor. A plan of Parr Town dated December 17, 1783, laid out the place in 1,454 lots, granted to Loyalist families. On May 18, 1785, the city was incorporated at St. John, the "St." later being spelled out.

A second important contingent of Loyalists arrived from New York on June 29, 1783, thirteen transports bringing 1,972 passengers. Other ships continued the work that summer and many made repeated voyages.

To facilitate the emigration, a notice was published on August 14 that all desiring to leave New York before the "final evacuation" must give in their names before the 21st inst and be ready to embark by the end of the month. In a few days 6,000 names were entered for passage and evacuation proceeded as fast as the number of transports permitted. Four weeks later a more emphatic notice stated that all Loyalists were expected to embark by September 20, and that those who neglected to embrace the opportunity could not expect to be conveyed at public expense.

Officers and men of Loyalist regiments, with wives, children and servants, formed the majority of passengers on the "fall fleet" of 1783. The officers had requested assistance in settling in some of "His Majesty's American provinces" so that they and their families might live under the British Government. This application meeting favor, the principal Loyalist regiments were ordered to prepare for embarkation and disembarkation after the voyage. No attempt had been made to maintain the normal strength of these regiments after the preliminaries of peace were signed, and at the time of sailing for Saint John they numbered about a fourth of their original strength.

Excepting one ill fated ship, the Martha, this fleet arrived at the

MAY DRAFT PROTESTANT CONSTITUTION

Nazis Seek Further Control Of Protestant Church Life In Germany.

BERLIN, April 23—(A.P.)—In furtherance of Nazi efforts to control Protestant German Church life and to create a United German Evangelical Church Union, Herman Kapler, President of the German Evangelical Church Commission, has summoned leading theologians and pastors as advisors to co-operate in the drafting of a new Protestant constitution.

It was reported Chancellor Hitler and Herr Kapler will meet Tuesday.

A communique telling of the summoning of the advisers said a United German Evangelical church will be formed on the basis of the strictest observance of the rights of faith.

It also was emphasized the church shall retain full powers required for cultivation of the entire German Evangelical church life and its relation to the people and the state.

While Protestant church authorities in the state of Mecklenburg-Schwerin took cognizance of the appointment of Walter Blohm as Church Commissioner, the Supreme Church Council of state and the Government composed differences over the appointment by decision that he will not act for the moment pending a final solution. This is expected next week-end.

Pastors in all churches at Rostock declared in their sermons today that installation of the church commissioner had not been completed and denied that the Supreme Church Council had resigned.

The pastor said they regarded the attempt of "forced encroachment" as dangerous and as "contradicting the Chancellors solemn assurance that he would not interfere with independence of the churches."

GARDENING

In preparing the soil it be deeply and well enriched, using well rotted manure or bone-meal and commercial sheep manure thoroughly mixed and the soil well solidified. Before setting, the ends of the long roots should be nipped off and when planting the roots well spread out in the hole so as to avoid doubling back. The soil must be firmly pressed about the roots which should be covered about two inches deeper than the union of the canes with the root system. Before the hole is completely filled with earth it is well to pour in a generous quantity of water which will assist in bringing the soil and the rootlets into close contact. If planted on a warm day it is well to set up a shade of some sort to prevent the drying of the stems before the roots have commenced to function in their new setting.

New plants require even more severe pruning than is recommended for established bushes. All of the weak canes must be removed close to the stem and not more than two of the stronger ones allowed to remain from four to five inches above the soil.

Gay Society Comedy At Prince Edward

WEDDING REHEARSAL, SPONSORED BY CANADIAN LEGION, GAY, WITTY, AND ARTISTIC.

That British pictures have wonderfully improved in the past year is well evidenced by Wedding Rehearsal now playing at the Prince Edward under the auspices of the Canadian Legion. Scenically beautiful, with a brilliant cast, witty dialogue, Wedding Rehearsal is a production that even Hollywood would be proud of.

Criticism has been occasionally leveled at British pictures for lack of distinction in dress, but this cannot be said of Wedding Rehearsal which is one of the best dressed pictures to come from England. The loveliest frocks for every hour of the day are worn in the picture.

Wedding Rehearsal is also notable for many striking studio sets and lovely exteriors. Some of the scenes were taken in North Myrmas Park one of the most beautiful estates in England. A brilliant cast headed by Roland Young, especially from Hollywood, George Cross-Smith, Lady Tree, both well known on the English and American stage and others who are on a par with the best Hollywood has to offer. Those who enjoy a really polished and entertaining picture should on no account miss seeing Wedding Rehearsal.

Blind Breeder Finds Success On Chicken Farm

WRENTHAM, Mass., April 24—(C. P.)—George Hagopian has developed what is said to be the largest breeding establishment of Rhode Island Red chicks in the world; yet he has been blind from birth.

Twenty two years ago when he came home to Wrentham from the Perkins Institute and the Massachusetts School for the Blind, the odds seemed all against him. To-day his huge poultry farm employs 25 men and Hagopian's spacious private office with its two secretaries suggests the big business man rather than the successful poultry farmer.

The measure of success met by the sightless breeder has not been attained without a hard struggle. Hagopian started out at first with only 35 hens and practically no capital. His knowledge of poultry was limited to what information he could glean from his Braille reading.

Slowly, by this method and by often unprofitable experience his knowledge of the work grew. And his business expanded in proportion through the years. The little group of hens from which Hagopian received his start has increased to 21,500 breeders, all pedigreed and State blood-tested. Some of them have come to his farm from points as far off as the Virgin Islands. And next year, the blind poultry raiser promises, he is going to have 30,000.

SPAIN IS ELIMINATED

BARCELONA, Spain, April 23—(C. P. Cable)—The United Kingdom today eliminated Spain from the Davis Cup tennis contest, winning all four singles matches, but losing the doubles.

In today's singles matches Fred Perry defeated St. Dreu 6-1, 6-3, 6-0 and was never threatened. Henry W. (Bunny) Austin downed Ernest Maier 8-6, 7-5, 6-1.

The Britons showed themselves clearly superior in all four singles encounters, none of which went more than three sets. Last Friday Perry won from Maier 7-5, 6-1, 6-1, while Austin defeated St. Dreu 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

In the doubles yesterday, however, the visitors found the Spaniards all there, and were defeated, after a valiant five-set struggle. The result of the match in which Perry and G. P. Hughes opposed Maier and Durrall was 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

Dorothy Dix' Letter Box

But he makes a mistake where women are concerned because the loathe a dirty, slouchy man and are ashamed to be seen out with him.

And the man makes an even bigger mistake in business if he thinks that his appearance doesn't count. Little as he may like it, he is largely judged by his clothes, for these furnish us with pretty reliable tips as to his character. It is a safe bet that the man who is so careless that he gets soup and gravy stains on his coat and lets his trousers bag at the knees will be equally careless about his work; a two days' stubble of beard is an infallible indication of lack of enterprise and knowing how to make the best of an opportunity, nor does it need any Sherlock Holmes to deduce that the man who wears dirty linen rather than change his shirt is one of the easy-going slobs who will never amount to anything in the world.

If a man hasn't enough personal pride and pep to keep himself looking spick-and-span, it is hard for a wife to do so, but I knew one wife who accomplished this by removing all of her husband's clothes when he went to bed and substituting for them a complete new outfit. It was just as easy to put on the clean ones as the mussy ones, so he did it. And that is about the only way you can deal with a lazy man.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Won't you please say something to daughters who do not want their mother to look young? I have four married daughters who think I ought to wear elderly clothes. I have white hair that I want to have dyed, but they say that will be a disgrace. They also don't think I should go to parties. I do not mean anything wrong by dollsing myself up, but I have a jolly disposition and I think white hair should not mix with gayety and I like to go to parties. My daughters are also making their father jealous.

R. P.

Answer:

Tell your daughters to mind their own business and get you as pretty clothes as you like. But don't dye your hair because that always looks dyed and that is ugly. You will see plenty of white heads at parties. Look at all the platinum blondes.

Cultivation

As with any other crop the surface soil of the rose bed should be kept loose by frequent, shallow hoeing or raking. This practice not only keeps down weeds, but allows the air to enter the soil. If after the leaves open, plant lice make their appearance they should be washed off with a garden hose or sprayed with nicotine solution, known as Black Leaf 40, at a strength of one teaspoonful to a gallon of water.

Varieties

The beginner in rose growing would do well to stick to hybrid Perpetuals for a season or two before attempting to grow hybrid Teas, which though more continuous bloomers are less hardy and less vigorous in their habit of growth. Safe varieties for the beginner are Hugh Dickson, red; Mrs. John Laing, pink; Frau Karl Druschki, white. Of the climbers the new red, Paul's Scarlet and the pink Tausendschon are hard to beat. A rose that is commanding great attention is the new Climber Blaze, a beautiful red that continues to bloom throughout the season. Hybrid Tea varieties that figure prominently in rose shows and have become popular for their vigour and pink; Dame Edith Helen, pink; yield include Madam Butterfly, flesh Earl Haig, red; Betty Uprichard, salmon pink and Julien Potin, yellow or Souvenir de Claudius Pernet.
