Planning A Will

Once it has been decided to make your Will it is necessary to use the utmost care in planning it. The same style of Will does not by any means suit all cases.

It is not wise to use the stereotyped form. It might so happen in your case that this form did not adequately cover all the bequests you wish to make. Litigation might result involving unnecessary expense to the estate.

This Company's officers, who are experienced in this class of business are at all times ready to assist in planning your Will. The Company will have the Will drawn by your own or our lawyers.

For particulars on request.
