Dizzy Trout May Win 20 Games This Year

DETROIT, Aug. 18—(AP)—Paul Trout, the self-styled Dizzy Dean in reverse, may step out of character this season by becoming a 20-game winner for Detroit Tigers.

While he got his nickname from the great Dean, Trout never subscribed to Dean's braggadocio. Neither has he enjoyed the success of a Dizzy or a Daffy. In four years with the Tigers, Trout won a total of 38 games. This season he has 14 victories and nine defeats.

"If those Tigers keep getting runs for me and making those dandy plays, I may stumble right in with 20 victories," declared Trout today after beating Philadelphia for the 14th time.

Last Spring when the Tigers trained at Evansville, Ind., not far from Trout's home precinct of Sandcut the Hoosier Hurricane was asked by his admirers what he was going to do in 1943.

"Well, I'm Dizzy, scratching his head, "if the Tigers get 10 runs a game for me and don't make too many errors, I might be able to win few. But boy, those old Tigers are gonna have to be good to keep old Diz out of trouble."

Despite all the chatter about his own shortcomings, Trout never gave up on himself. He's the hardest worker on the Tiger staff in both starting and relief assignments. At that rate, it seems hardly possible that he can miss the 200-game bracket.

Browns Trade Veterans For Younger Men

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 18—(AP)—The tottering St. Louis Browns, whose doddering team averages 20 years of age, took a cue from Brooklyn Dodgers today and traded two of their veterans—the first step in rebuilding the club with younger men.

In the deal, third-baseman Harold Clift, 31, and a member of the Browns since 1934, and Pitcher Johnny Niggeling, 36, went to Washington Senators for third-baseman Ellis Clary, 25, rookie pitcher John Miller, 27, and perhaps $15,000.

President Clark Griffith, the "Old Fox" of the Senators, had little to lose and a great deal to gain in making the two-for-two switch. Clary, presently batting .268, is not a heavy hitter and Miller has been mediocre in his relief appearances. Whereas Clary and Niggeling undoubtedly will strengthen the Senators in their efforts to overtake New York Yankees in the American League pennant race.

Clift, while batting only .232 has a long record as slugger, hitting 34 home runs in 1933, and he still is dangerous at the plate.

Niggeling, knuckleball right-hander who won 15 games and lost 11 last year, would have had a better record than his current total of 6 and 8 if the Browns had given him some scoring support.

The continuation of wet weather has delayed sowing operations in this vicinity and has seriously impaired the quality of the crop in some cases.

Until recently a very optimistic outlook had been held by the farmers for a record yield of potatoes. The prolonged damp weather, however, has resulted in much pessimism being voiced as reports of late blight of the crop become more persistent.

Many changes in this vicinity have been noted by the writer since last visiting the community of childhood, young men and women who once played an important role in the social and economic activities of this thriving community are now completely in their absence, many having answered the call of their King and Country, now carry on in the vast and varied theatres of war throughout the Empire and the rest of the world. Others have joined the ranks of industrial war workers in various centres of the Dominion and as the marches on the grim Reaper of Death, as the writer has sadly noted, has not failed to summon once familiar faces to their Eternal Reward.

CALLAGHAN-HUGHES

A wedding of interest to many throughout Prince Edward Island was celebrated on Wednesday morning, July 28th at St. Malachi's Church, Kinkora, when Mary Lorraine, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hughes, Emerald, was united in marriage to Merritt Edwyn Callaghan, B.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Callaghan, Ebbesfleet, at present Public School Inspector in Prince County. The solo selections were by the bride, who also celebrated the nuptial mass. In the sanctuary were seated Rev. Patrick Walsh, P.P. Palmer Road and Reverend William Monaghan, P.P. Alberton. As the bride entered the Church with her father who gave her in marriage, Miss Florence Green, friend of the bride, played softly Mendelssohn's Wedding March. Solo selections were beautifully rendered during the Mass by relatives of the bride.

The bride was very charming in floor length gown of white mousseline de silk made with high neckline and finger length sleeves. She wore the conventional veil with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and streamers. Miss Della Callaghan of Boston, sister of the groom attended the bride and was costumed in a silk length gown of powder blue silk jersey and net made on the same lines as the bride's. She wore a matching blue turban and gloves and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Mr. Spencer Hughes, brother of the groom, best man, following in an ceremony they motored to the home of the bride where a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate members of both families and a few guests including St. John, Superior of N.D.A., Charlottetown, aunt of the bride and Reverend Fr. Walsh, Fr. Monaghan and Fr. McCabe.

Immediately after breakfast the bridal couple left on a wedding trip through the Province. Their many friends throughout the Province join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Callaghan many happy years of wedded life.

Chateau Is Leak-Proof Reporter Finds

By John Dauphinee (Canadian Press Staff Writer) QUEBEC, Aug. 16—(CP)—This is going to worry 100-odd reporters and a lot of security guards if they don't read more than the next paragraph.

Today I was in the closely guarded Chateau Frontenac scene of the coming Churchill-Roosevelt conference—and I didn't even need a pass. Actually it wasn't any trick at all and nobody needs to fret. I had a shave.

One entrance to the Chateau is by a small passageway from St. Louis street, and off it are a barber shop, a hairdresser's, and a bank branch. A couple of days ago the barber advertised he was still in business. So are the bank and the hairdresser.

That little corridor and the adjoining rooms are the only part of the Chateau open to the public. And the inner end of the passage is guarded the same as any other door.

Years ago the barber used to be a good source of news in any community. That doesn't hold for the one I had. He said quite gruffly he didn't know what was going on upstairs.

The only information he offered was that closing the rest of the hotel "didn't hurt business last week—maybe it will this week."

I talked to the Mountie at the end of the corridor but he was uncommunicative. He made it plain that he wouldn't be wise to step past the end of the corridor. I didn't.

But I picked up a little story about one who actually had a room at the Chateau but wandered around Quebec boasting he could get into the hotel without using it.

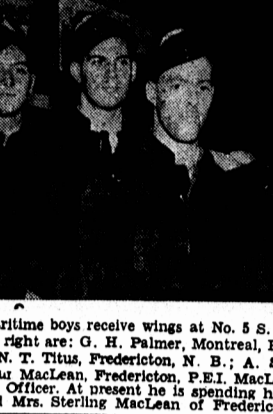

The powers that be did some investigating and decided the boast wasn't true. They recalled his name. "If he can get in without one, he won't need it anyway," said one of the guards, grinning broadly.

Just then a brass-hat walked up to the entrance. He had to show his pass before he went in.

Our pass-less friend is going to have a tough time.

Famous Cape Breton Magistrate Is Dead

GLACE BAY, N.S., Aug. 16—(CP)—A.E. MacGillivray, who became a legend during 40 years on the town Magistrate's bench here, died today at the age of 84.

One of the most sprightly judicial personalities in the Maritimes, "A.E." (He was never known by any other name) was the subject, perhaps of more anecdotes than any contemporary character in the seaside provinces.

The stories were told in such number that eventually the true and the apocryphal were bound up inextricably in the "A.E." legend. But most of them were true. And mostly they stemmed from the Magistrate's sharp gaelic wit that cracked about the head of the wrongdoer before his bar.

The classic was the yarn of the prisoner who had been convicted by "A.E." of selling liquor. "Fifty dollars and costs," the Magistrate intoned, reaching behind him. "I've got it in my hip pocket."

His Honor's Scottish drawl resumed as though there had been no interruption—and 30 days. Have you got that in your hip pocket?

There are a handful of stories such as these that sprouted up over the years from 1901 when "A.E." first took office until he retired in 1941. Everybody in town—in most of Cape Breton, for that matter—knows a few. Before the Magistrate's retirement, a good opening conversational gambit used to be: "I heard a good A.E. story today."

"A.E. himself was something to see, too. Standing well over six feet, he sported an imperial goatee and trip moustache, all topped by a head of gray hair. He had a deep voice, with which, for relaxation, he liked to indulge in the rolling inflections of the gaelic, at which he was fluent.

"A.E." was the "biggest town" first Magistrate, taking office the year it was incorporated. Before that he was Cape Breton County Magistrate.
