In Memoriam

MR. TYLER B. WARREN

The following obituary is from a recent Iowa exchange. The late Mr. Warren was a brother of Mr. Walton Warren, Marshfield, Mrs. Russel MacNeill, Cavendish and Mr. Legu Warren, Buxton.

Tyler B. Warren, 55, for over 20 years superintendent of the Nevada, Iowa schools, died at his home at 337 Seventh street, Wednesday, May 29th, after an illness dating back about a year. Uremic poisoning resulting from diabetes and other complications was the cause of death.

Death came during the alumni ceremonies following the twenty-first year of his connection with the Nevada schools.

Funeral rites were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the church of Christ, with his pastor, Rev. C. V. Pence, in charge, assisted by Dr. J. O. Simon of Memorial Lutheran church and Rev. Jos. M. Kennedy of Central Presbyterian church. Following the services here, the body will be taken to Pleasantville for burial. The body, now at the Morfoot Funeral Home will lie in state at the church from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m., but the casket will not be opened after the services.

Mr. Warren, who came to Nevada for the school year which opened in the fall of 1920, had served continuously since that time and was re-elected for this twenty-first year which opened last autumn.

While he suffered a nervous breakdown and other complications shortly after the close of school last year, he rallied and apparently regained his strength. He opened the school year which was just closing when he was called by death, but after a few weeks suffered another attack and has since been confined to his home.

During the over 20 years of his residence in Nevada, he was connected with many activities and had become a real force in the educational, religious and civic affairs of the community. While his affairs of the school well in hand, he had also found time to keep in touch with educational affairs of the country and state, being active in the Story County School Administrators club and of the state and national associations. He served during 1935 as president of the Central division of the Iowa State Teachers Association.

He was an active member of the Nevada Church of Christ, having served as a member of the church board and also as treasurer. He was a member of the Nevada Rotary club, the Masonic Lodge and also had been an active and useful member of the Nevada Community club.

He was born on Prince Edward Island, Canada, across the strait of Northumberland from New Brunswick, a son of T. A. and Sarah Houston-Warren, April 21, 1886. He gained his preliminary education there and graduated from Prince of Wales college. He came to the United States as a young man and became a student and later an instructor at Drake University in Des Moines. He received his B. A. degree from Drake in 1911 and his M. A. degree in 1912.

He was united in marriage to Gladys Bristow at Pleasantville in 1919, during the five-year period that he served as superintendent of the schools there. He was elected superintendent of the Nevada schools in the spring of 1920 and had been here since, having been elected to his twenty-first year about a year ago.

He leaves his wife Gladys, and an only son, Ben Warren, now a student at the University of Iowa, as well as members of the family on the island of his birth. One brother is living in Boston, Mass., and two sisters and five brothers in Canada.

In his many years of connection with the local schools, Mr. Warren had been a persistent and untiring worker, but was always able to find time to do his part in all church and civic activities of the community and his personal touch has been felt in many ways in the community.

Including the class of 47 which graduated this week and which started out in the senior year under Mr. Warren, 808 young people have graduated under him and each and every one of those young people will have the feeling of a personal loss in his passing.

FOUND TAKING YOUNG BLACK DUCKS—Catching young wild ducks before they are able to fly is still the pastime of some boys in some districts. Saturday afternoon three youths from Mt. Stewart were apprehended by the R.C.M.P. game officer in the act of chasing young ducks on McKean's marsh on the Hillsboro River. One duck had been captured but was released by the boys when the officer approached. This constitutes an offense under the B.C. Act with a maximum penalty of $10, and costs of 30 days in jail. The parents of juveniles who bring young wild ducks home would be well advised to order them returned to the game officer at once, for to be found with them in possession is inviting Court action.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

The Sunday services of Trinity United Church took the form of a response to the appeal of the Government of Canada for a day of special dedication to national service and sacrifice. In the morning, Rev. Hugh Miller, in an inspiring sermon stressed the need for each individual to give his dedication to the highest goal of life, to the establishment of the Kingdom of God upon earth and issued the challenge for each to prove their dedication in their deeds.

The music at both services was appropriate to the occasion. The choir sang the fine selection "Give us this day, O Lord, our daily bread" of the morning anthem and in the evening enriched the worship with the rendition of "Rest of the Weary, Joy of the Sad." A feature of the evening was an exceptionally fine solo by Mr. Robert Padden. The selection was "Lord God of Abraham" by Mendelssohn.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Miller preached upon the text, "Whatever thine hand finds to do, do with thy might." This address stressed the need for each individual to play his part in the redemptive mission of the church. The new order founded upon the principles of Jesus Christ.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

In the absence of the Rev. I. Judson Levy who is attending the session of the P. E. I. Baptist Association at Kingsborough, his pulpit was supplied by the Rev. F. W. Patterson D.D., President of Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S. Dr. Patterson mentioned it at his address he was basing his thought on three passages which seemed to have little in common. "First the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the sheaf." "The fullness of time when God sent forth His Son." "Who ever a man sowed, that shall he also reap." The disharmony is only seeming. There is order in natural growth, order in the process of history, order in the relation of cause and effect in individual life. For all things that come to pass there is adequate preparation, an unbroken chain of cause and effect. Events occur, as we say, and why, but they are not sudden, though they may be unexpected, as the blade, the ear and the full corn in nature so in the fullness of time develop the process of history. Even God's revelation of himself came not without adequate preparation. Behind the seemingly moral breakdowns in men have moved quietly operating factors such as "Suggestion, Delectation and finally Consent. In the fullness of time came to us Winston Churchill but with a lifetime of great preparation, in one hour to look forward and plan the better world that under God may be ours in the days ahead. "The anthem of the morning "O Lord, we trust in Thee alone" at evening service at 7 p. m. Rev. Alexander Gibson delivered an outstanding sermon on "The man who lacked vision." Miss Bernice Ward sang "Hold Thou My Hand."

DOUBLE OUR QUOTA "In the Dominion-wide financial campaign the Prince Edward Island Division of the Red Cross raised almost double its prescribed quota. This result was made possible by the combined efforts of all people of good will, with the assistance of the press and the radio. I am told that the "Carry On Canada Corps" of the Dominion of Prince County and the Women's Institutes in many districts gave particularly valuable help. Too much cannot be said in praise of the women workers for their invaluable labours of making, collecting and forwarding of supplies which are so sorely needed.

"Thumbs up" For Victory Says Mr. Dodds

many friends who made my visits here on previous occasions such happy ones. Coming from a cosmopolitan city like Montreal, one feels here a renewed sense of the continuity, the strength and the steadfastness of the national life that is bound to emanate from a people whose roots through many generations have struck deep into the soil of our beloved country.

In the year that has passed since I was last here I have heard it remarked on more than one occasion that in all the world there is no other land where the amenities of ordered civilization appear so secure as they do in Canada, and one can understand this feeling when one looks out upon the state of the world today. If that is true—and I think it is—then I think it can also be said that in all Canada there is no portion where the fundamentals that make for happiness of home and hearth are more in evidence than they are in Prince Edward Island.

The evidence of the unspoiled nature of this beautiful island lies in the extent to which its inhabitants have resisted the trend of urbanization which is so marked in the other Provinces of Canada. Here less than a quarter of the population live in the towns and cities, a record unsurpassed in any of the other Provinces of the Dominion, some of which had nearly two-thirds of the population gathered together in urban communities at the time of the last census. The new census taken this year will doubtless show a continuation of that resistance to the abandonment of rural life in Prince Edward Island.

Farm Production

The gross value of agricultural production in the island during the year 1940 compared with $15,980,000 the previous year. Over many recent years the prices of agricultural produce have been below normal but with good growing weather and with the former markets which are now in evidence, we may hope to see a restoration of the more prosperous conditions of earlier years.

I have followed the part played by this Province in our common war effort with great interest and I may tell you that the response of the people of Prince Edward Island to such a remarkable success created a marked impression upon those responsible for the direction of the campaign, which, as you know, was under the leadership of my colleague in the Bank, Mr. G. W. Spinney.

I would like also to mention the support which has been given here to the work of the Canadian Red Cross and to the progress which has been made in furthering the Boy Scout movement. These are two organizations in which I have long been interested, and on the being done will continue to count it a privilege to serve.

The generous support that the Red Cross Society is being given in this Province in its peace-time and war activities is a matter of gratification to the National Council. It must also be a source of great pride and satisfaction to all who have contributed toward the capital of this Province which is the inspiring leadership of Dr. MacMillan, President of the Prince Edward Island Division of the Society, and his able colleagues. It is not only of great benefit to the unfortunate requiring help but to the young people themselves who contribute towards it. Whilst this is especially the case in respect to junior workers it applies also to everyone who assists the Red Cross.

As regards the Boy Scouts, the war, I need hardly say, has profoundly emphasized the importance of moulding the character of nations of firmly establishing in the minds of the young the basic ideals of truth and honour, courage and steadfastness, resourcefulness and personal service. These are ideals fostered by the Boy Scout movement, which provides natural and useful channels of expression for the activities and exuberance of the young and at the same time trains them in arts and practices that open up to men wide fields of interest and usefulness. I am glad that Prince Edward Island is well to the fore in fostering this movement for the training of future citizens. With such leaders as Judge Harold L. Palmer and Mr. Kenneth M. Martin, K. C., I am satisfied that the excellent work being done will continue. Mr. J. E. Burnett has been a very good friend of Scouting for many years.

Interpreting The War

By Kirke L. Simpson Associated Press Staff Writer

The great task Hitler assigned to Nazi armies launched against Russia a week ago pales into insignificance beside the one he simultaneously entrusted to Goebbels and his Nazi propaganda vocalists.

Goebbels' experts were commanded to set about proving overnight to a stunned world that the two-year appearance of the Nazi lion and the Communist lamb lying down together was mere camouflage. The lamb, the world now is told, was the real objective of the lion all the time.

That the Russian lamb happened to be a tempting morsel, rich in such vital war juices as oil and grain, is a mere happenstance in the Hitler-Ribbentrop-Goebbels white book. It develops as they state the case that it wasn't a lamb at all with which they had so trustfully consorted, but a wolf in sheep's clothing, sharpening its fangs to eat up the lion in due course.

Eight days of furious Red-Nazi fighting on a front nearly 1,500 miles long have failed to disclose conclusively just what kind of a fighting animal Soviet Russia is. The bear is the favorite symbol for Russia and always has been. It looks from this distance as though Hitler might yet find it was a bear and neither a lamb nor a wolf he had by the tail.

This much certainly is true: Hitler is urgently seeking help now as never before from small continental neighbors as well as big. His personal appeal to Finland to join up was, no doubt, backed up with glowing promises of Finland restored and expanded at Russia's expense once Russia was crushed. Berlin could have saved Finland with a nod to Moscow in 1939-40.

Nazi picture Hitler in all Scandinavia as the white knight now turning his bloody spear against the Red dragon. All else that he has done is to be forgotten and forgiven.

Nazi-ruled Paris talks of French volunteer legions being enlisted against Russia. There are even hints that an actual Nazi proffer of alliance with Britain against Russia has been transmitted diplomatically.

If so, it was a futile gesture. Not is there yet warrant from Tokyo for the predictions made in Rome that Japan will strike at the Siberian flank of the Russian bear as an ally and to balk United States aid for Russia.

Britain accuses Nazi agents in Spain of inciting anti-Soviet rioting that centered on the British embassy. A desperate German effort to enlist Spain finally in the conflict seems to be under way. Group all the elements of the tangled maze of present Nazi words and deeds together and it sums up despite many Nazi victories into something like a mood of desperation in Berlin which led to the assault on Russia. That may be wishful thinking, yet the factors are there.

The whole pattern and plan of the Axis' new order has been changed overnight, for what other reason than desperation it is difficult to see.

India has about four-fifths of the population of the British Empire.
