

Modern Indian Warrior

Today's Indian warriors in the Canadian army draw $130 a day like all other soldiers—plus "interest money" paid to all their tribes in recognition of their ancestors' fight in the revolutionary wars to keep Canada British. Some 20 youths of the Six Nations are returning on leave to the Brandon reserve to collect the annual payment of $3, which goes to every man, woman and child of the Onondagas, Mohawks, Tuscaroras, Oneidas, Senecas and Cayugas.

Years and years apart are these two Indian fighters. Cast from melted-down cannon captured in the Crimean war and presented to the Indians by the British government is the striking monument of Chief Joseph Brant, famous Indian warrior, which stands in Brantford. As bronzed and alert a fighter as Chief Brant is Private Ed Likers, an Onondaga of the Six Nations, posted beside the monument. He enlisted with the Dufferin and Halldmand Rifles to help Canada fight a new war.

Provision made To safeguard Bacon supplies

OTTAWA, May 25—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced today that further monetary provision had been made to safeguard Canadian export bacon supplies in the event of further price gains in the United States which might result in Dominion hoards being sold across the border. The announcement came less than a month after the Canadian bacon board advanced the price paid to packers for bacon by $1 a hundredweight because a major movement of Canadian hogs to the United States was in prospect due to higher prices prevailing there. Officials said today the United States prices generally were not so attractive that Canadian producers were selling in quantity. If the price rose to $1 a hundredweight it had not been available, quantity sales in the United States would have been made and now additional protection may be necessary. The additional $1 was carried by the United Kingdom but further outlays which may be necessary if the United States market continues strong will be borne by Canada. Mr. Gardiner's announcement said that in accordance with the proviso in the recent revision of the price to be paid by the British ministry of food for bacon, money now has been made available to the bacon board to provide for any further increase in the price of export bacon that might be necessary should hog prices in the United States advance beyond a parity of 85 shillings.

In Memoriam

MRS. JOSEPH R. MACDONALD
The community of Panmure Island and the neighboring districts were again saddened when it was learned that on Sunday, April 27, Mrs. Joseph R. MacDonald died peacefully passed to her eternal destiny.

The late Mrs. MacDonald was born in Sturgeon seven years ago. She was a kind, gentle, and amiable woman, a kind and amiable wife, and an obliging friend whose memory will ever be cherished in the hearts of those left to mourn.

During the past two years she had been in failing health. Last July she had entered the City Hospital for treatment but her condition was found to be such that little could be done to alleviate her suffering. During the past winter she was nursed in her home and at all times she bore her suffering with Christian patience and fortitude. She was consoled in her illness by frequent visits from her pastor who also administered the last rites of the church.

She is survived by her husband, one son Aloysius, and one daughter, Mrs. Carmelita, (Mrs. Lawrence Dyer), and also one brother, John Martin, of Sturgeon, and three sisters, Mrs. Thomas Troy, Greenfield; Mrs. John Thomas Fisher, Port Edward, N. Y.; and Mrs. Art. Kennedy, St. John's. She also has four grandchildren and one adopted daughter Jeanne Bernard.

The funeral took place on Wednesday morning at St. Paul's Church, Sturgeon, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by her pastor, Rev. Fenelle Mullaly, who, assisted by Rev. Owen Kiggins, officiated at the service at the grave where she was laid to rest beside four of her children who had died in infancy.

The pall bearers were Messrs. John W. Jameson, Basil Lanigan, Michael Lanigan, Alex. Jameson, Nell Campbell and Billie MacDonald. Mr. Maurice Daly was hearer driver.

Canadian seamen Aboard Hood?

OTTAWA, May 26—(CP)—Word from relatives indicated tonight that at least one Canadian seaman was aboard the British battle cruiser H. M. S. Hood, sunk by an unlucky hit in her magazine Saturday in a naval engagement between Greenland and Ireland.

Mrs. Effie Burnham, Vancouver nurse, said tonight she had received a cable from the British Admiralty notifying her that her brother, Leut. Thomas An-Nis 45, of Toronto, was killed when the Hood went down. Leut. An-Nis was a code decipherer on the battle cruiser.

A letter received here by Mrs. W. M. Stewart from her nephew, Midshipman F. L. L. Jones of Revelstoke, B.C., said he and four other Canadians were aboard the battle cruiser April 11. There was no way of ascertaining whether Jones and his Canadian companions were aboard at the time of the engagement.

In his letter Jones mentioned the names of two other Canadians—Charles Beard, son of Cmdr. Charles Beard of the Royal Canadian Navy, and P. James F. Lynch whose two sisters, Dora and Dolly, live here.

A Canadian Press dispatch from London said it was believed Jones and C. J. B. Norman, another Canadian Midshipman, were aboard the Hood.

A third Canadian, L. B. Jensen, was said in the dispatch to have left the ship May 1 after completing his term at sea. At Victoria, relatives of Leut. E. L. Borradaile of Ganges Harbor, Salt Spring Island, B.C., said Leut. Borradaile was serving recently aboard the Hood.

Mr. Hyndman of Edmonton, son of Mr. Harry Hyndman and the late Mrs. Hyndman was reported in an Edmonton dispatch to have been transferred from the Hood three weeks ago.

Forest fires Still rage in Gogama area

(By The Canadian Press)
Only scattered showers were predicted by the weatherman last night for the tinder-dry uplands of Northern Ontario and Quebec where hundreds of firefighters continued the week-long struggle with forest fires which have already destroyed millions of dollars worth of timber and pulpwood.

While most fires seemed to have been brought under control, Ontario forestry branch officials at Sudbury said only a heavy downpour could check the progress of the 600-square mile fire blazing on a 65-mile front in the Gogama area. The Gogama fire had already burned completely over nine townships, destroying standing timber valued at $1,000,000. Five more camps stocked for next winter's cut have been wiped out.

Rainfall came to the aid of 300 firefighters in the Falconbridge area near Sudbury, bringing under control a fire which had blazed for several days. In the Gatineau Valley district north of Ottawa, forest rangers were confident all but one of the 11 bush fires they had battled during the weekend were under control. The unchecked fire is in the Eagle district, 20 miles north of Maniwaki, Que., and it is soon expected to be under control. More than 100 men are fighting the fire, some having been rushed from other fires now under control. While damage has not been estimated it is believed to be extensive.

Bush fires north of Edmonton continued to burn but were under control. Three hundred men stopped one fire at the edge of the town of Newbrook, 83 miles north of Edmonton.

Heavy pulpwood losses were reported from the Port Arthur district where all fires are under control. One mill on cords of pulpwood were burned in that section in the last week. Overnight rains helped quench the hotbed fires. Quebec forestry officials said fire conditions in the province had improved and that most outbreaks were under control. New fires were reported from the Lake St. John district 10 miles north of Ch'oulin where a sawmill and several small houses were burned and the village of St. Honore threatened temporarily.

Flax Scourge Is Killed

RESFACU WORK
To flax growers in Australia, Canada, Egypt, the Argentine and India come the news that British scientific workers have discovered how to control seed-borne flax disease.

After patient research in Northern Ireland, Dr. Musket and his group of assistants can show increases from 10 to 20 per cent in the yield of scutched fibre as the result of the treatment of seed with a new chemical compound. Careful observations during the growing of treated seed and untreated has demonstrated the striking increase in yield of seed treated with the new compound.

C.C.F. Leader Raises question Of Millionaires

OTTAWA, May 26—(CP)—Examination of income tax returns might give "some indication" of the number of new millionaires, if any, created since the war, but it would take "an immense amount of research," Finance Minister Isley told the House of Commons today.

Discussion of "war millionaires" cropped up in the House this afternoon during discussion in committee of the bill to amend the Excess Profits Tax Act in conformity with changes announced in the budget.

M. J. Coldwell, acting C. C. F. House leader, who raised the question some weeks ago during the budget debate, introduced it again today.

Mr. Isley said he was "morally certain and entirely satisfied that these statements as to there being any particular number of millionaires in Canada are wholly invented."

"That remark does not apply to the honorable member for Rose-town-Biggar (Mr. Coldwell) who, as he stated, did not make the statement that there were some 20-odd new millionaires."

He said he had heard it said and he wanted to know if there was any information that could be given the House in that connection. Mr. Isley replied.

The House speedily dealt with bills to amend the Excess Tax Act and the customs tariff, putting them through all stages, ready for the Senate, but debate developed on the Excess Profits Tax. All bills are incidental to the budget taxation changes.

Mr. Isley also introduced the new Succession Duties Act so members might examine it. He said it would not be proceeded with until Wednesday at the earliest.

The bill to amend the Excess Tax Act, as well as effecting the increases on malt and beer as provided for in the budget, set up a new system of taxing tobacco, putting raw leaf preparation on the same basis as manufacturing.

Mr. Coldwell, when he brought up the question of war millionaires, said he had examined reports of 28 of the 33 largest corporations in Canada and found that after paying all taxes in 1940, they made about $8,400,000 more profits than in the previous year.

He mentioned the report of new millionaires being created and expressed the belief that after examination of this year's operations further changes in the Excess Profits Tax Act might be possible which would effect a great contribution from corporation profits.

Mr. Hanson said he believed the source of such information as that on which the millionaires charge was based, should be revealed.

"I understand the honorable member for North Battleford (Mrs. Nielsen) has said that she had been told there are 40 new millionaires in Canada," Mr. Hanson added.

"Where did she get that information? This is part of the propaganda of the have-nots against the haves and it is based upon the imagination of someone who wants to do a disservice to Canada in wartime."

Both Food and Beauty In Lima Bean Vines

Heavy Yielding Pole Beans Make Fine Garden Screen.

Rich, dark green leaves of lima beans form one of the best of coverings for a garden fence, and the pole varieties bear a heavy crop of large and small seeded beans, bearing larger beans, but fewer of them. The small seeded lima have been improved recently and new varieties have larger beans, while still producing them abundantly. For the home garden, it is best to consult your preference.

Small seeded bush lima mature in about 65 days, large seeded bush and pole lima in about 80 days. As they cannot be sown until late spring in most states, the harvest comes late. Pole lima have a long season of yield, and will provide beans for the table until frost kills.

millionaires there were in Canada, nor how he could find out for himself. The tax returns showed only incomes.

J. J. Kinley (Lib. Queen's-Lunen-burg) said he could not see how anybody could become a millionaire in Canada under present conditions. He discussed the tax exemptions accorded wheat co-operatives in Western Canada which he said, were making large profits.

"Why should anyone in this country, especially in these critical days, escape the payment of a tax on any excess?" he asked.

"But we find that the wheat pools, which operate under the guise of co-operatives though they are becoming a commercial dictatorship in the country, do not pay income tax."

This interlude threatened to precipitate a general debate until it was ruled out of order by the chairman of the House committee.

Smart Leg-Work

Burmese seamen open row boats with their legs, wrapping them around the short oars.

A curious Yorkshire sweetmeat, Pomefract "cakes", is becoming a popularity overseas. It looks like a black coin for it carries a stamp by which it has been known since the days of George III.

"These tiny 'cakes' are made from liquorice, a plant grown in the south Yorkshire town in the 16th century. A hundred years later, George Dunhill made the first Pomefract 'cakes' by mixing the extract from boiled liquorice root with sugar and other ingredients.

Since then the number of these round black sweets sent overseas has reached an astronomical total. The United States and Canada in particular are taking even more of them than they did before the war; a huge consignment, weighing 25 tons has recently been shipped to Canada.

Churchill's Daughter Helps Three Americans To Entertain England

Bebe Daniels, Ben Lyon and Vic Oliver A re Busiest U. S. Actors in Beleaguered Britain

By PAUL MANNING
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON—Three Americans and Winston Churchill's daughter Sarah are the biggest names in entertainment in an England where so little is entertaining today. They are Bebe Daniels and Bebe Daniels, old-time screen stars, and Sarah Churchill's husband comedian Vic Oliver.

They were big attractions in peacetime, but now they pack diversion-seeking provincials into the aisles when they go on a tour, like the one they just finished at Cardiff.

Undoubtedly part of their popularity is due to the success of their radio program, "Hi Gang", which has been running for a year now and is the most successful entertainment program ever broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

They're all living close together in the country about fifty miles from London. Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels have been living there ever since a daylight raider dropped a stick of high explosives down their street one Sunday morning and demolished buildings on both sides of the house and rendered their home uninhabitable.

When they outline a program, the scene is just like a New York or Hollywood story conference—which is one big reason for the success of the program. They toss around words like "colossal" and "magnificent," get tremendously excited about ideas and eventually whip into shape a very bright program. It sparkles even more brightly by comparison to the ordinary British radio program which is usually dashed off about three hours before broadcast time.

With the winter theatrical season drawing to a close and their air show about finished, each of these top stars in England is about to start making a moving picture. They are about the only members of the U. S. film colony left in London today. War and the blitz, followed by evacuations back to America, have left only a handful
