MUCH WORSE IT IS THAN WAR

The Slocum Disaster Fatalities Estimated as High as 1,000 But Will Not Likely Exceed 750—Stories Told by Those Who Have Survived the Catastrophe.

NEW YORK, June 17.—With unceasing effort the search is going on for the bodies of the great steamship fire. At dusk there had been recovered 536 bodies, the greater part being those of women and children. The divers have completed the search of the wrecked steamer, though it is possible some bodies remain under the masses of broken timber which it is impossible to explore. At the point where the steamer lies the water is deep, the currents swift and doubtless many have been borne along with the tide. There are a number of places where the living may be landed and it is believed many now reported missing are safe and will eventually be heard from by officials. To-night, indeed, a surprising number of persons reported that they had been "saved", thus cutting down the list of the missing considerably, as well as the probable mortality list. The scenes at the bureau of information which has been established at St. Mark's Lutheran Church today, were pathetic in the extreme. There was a constant stream of people. Major McClellan has issued an appeal to the citizens of New York for contributions to a fund to provide for the proper burial of the dead and such other relief as may be necessary, and a strong committee has been given the matter in charge. The police and health department officials have placed the number of deaths as high as 1,000 and more, but to-night it would seem that the fatalities will not likely exceed 750.

Pastor Haas, of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, was not lost as first reported, but is completely prostrated. He has been unconscious most of the time since the disaster and under the constant care of a physician. His son did not go to the excursion. Besides his wife and daughter his mother-in-law Mrs. Carl Hansen, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. William Tetimore were drowned. Mrs. Tetimore's daughter Edith, two years old, is also lost.

District Attorney Garven has placed under seal a dozen life preservers taken from the General Slocum. Of these only three are intact. The rest had burst compartments, from which the cork is pouring. The canvas coverings of the cork were so rotten that an assistant of Mr. Garven who made the experiment, had no difficulty in ripping them open with his finger nail.

After questioning all the witnesses, including Capt. Van Schaick, and five of his crew, Coroner Joseph T. Berry tonight stated that he was of the opinion that the fire started in the storage room on the starboard side of the boat, forward, where there were stored oils, paints, old rope, lumber and other damage of a highly inflammable nature.

New York, June 15.—Peter J. Tremble, a deckhand on the burned excursion steamer, was arrested by the police wandering aimlessly about the beach. He told the following story:

"We left the third street dock at 10 a. m. I was polishing brass work at the port quarter, when a deckhand called my attention to smoke coming out of a forward cabin. I ran forward and helped the first assistant engineer to stretch a hose. We could not get any water. The fire spread so rapidly that we were driven to the forward promenade deck, which was crowded with panic-stricken women and children. I pulled down an armful of life preservers and distributed them. I then put a life preserver around my own shoulders and jumped overboard with them.

"It was torn away from me by the impact of the water. I managed to grasp one of the blades of the paddle wheel and climbed up in the paddlebox. The water beneath me was a perfect hell. Men and women were crawling at my legs as I climbed, and my trousers were torn away in my efforts to escape from them. I was subsequently rescued by a row boat and put on shore at the point where the police found me."

Fred Hoffman, a fireman and one of the excursionists, was unnerved and hysterical. At first all that could be got from him was that he had lost his mother and sister in law, his brother's two children and a young woman with him. He tells this story:

"I was on the upper deck with the family and little Edna, my brother's three-year-old child, was in my arms. Beside me were my mother, Mrs. Sophia Hoffman, my brother's wife, Calla, her boy, Raymond, aged four, and Jane Workman, my friend, aged twenty. I don't remember much about the fire. It seemed to come from below. I grabbed the boy and called upon the women to follow me. First the women were separated from me, then the crowd swept me and the little ones toward the stern of the boat.

I came to the surface a life preserver was within my reach and I clung to that. My strength was gone and it seemed as if I could not hold on a bit longer, when someone pulled me out of the water and took us ashore."

Edward Flanagan, mate of the wrecked Slocum, told the police it was impossible to calm the excursionists after the first appearance of the flames. He said:

"I was unfortunate that there were not more men aboard and that all of the excursionists did not understand English. Many of the poor people were so panic stricken that they actually ran into the flames and were consumed."

Charles L. Storms, who owns the lumber yard at 134 h street and the East River, says that the loss of life on the General Slocum could have been averted had the captain steered for shore when he first discovered the fire.

"I saw the flames on the boat as she passed 128 h street," said Mr. Storms, "and I signalled for her to come ashore. At the same time I turned in an alarm and almost immediately there were engines at the foot of East 122nd street. If the Slocum had turned right then not a life would have been lost. Later, when I saw how badly off the Slocum was, and saw the people running around her decks and jumping overboard, I saw a big steam yacht go right past and made no effort to assist those on board."

LOST HER TONGUE.

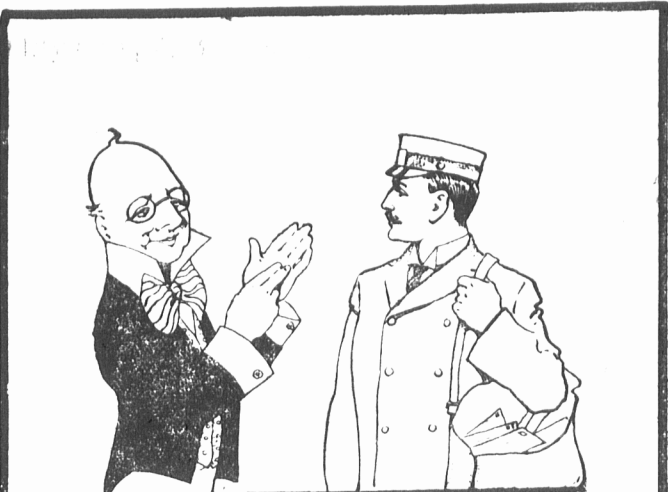

DERBY, Conn., June 14.—Licking 19-2 age stamps has cost Miss Myra Sylvernale, assistant in the Post Office at Norfolk, near here, part of her tongue. A few weeks ago Miss Sylvernale's tongue began to swell and physicians diagnosed the trouble as blood poisoning, contracted from the muir-like on the stamps. Miss Sylvernale went to the Hartford Hospital, where an operation for the removal of nearly half of her tongue was performed yesterday. The young woman is expected to recover, but there will always be an impairment in her speech.

HOW TO HOLD A HUSBAND.

The best known guide to married happiness is to hold the husband as you would the lover—by cheerfulness of disposition, patience and keeping your youthful looks. Of course a great many women are handicapped by those ills to which women are heir. The constantly recurring troubles which afflict her are apt to cause a sour disposition, nervousness and a beclouded mind.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, the specialist in woman's diseases, of Buffalo, N. Y., after a long experience in treating such diseases, found that certain roots and herbs made into a liquid extract, would help the majority of cases. This he called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Thousands of women have testified to its merits, and it is put up in shape to be easily procured and used by all medicine dealers. This is a potent tonic for the womanly system. So much faith has Dr. Pierce in its merits that he offers $500 reward for any case of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Protrusion or Falling of Womb, which he cannot cure. All he asks is a fair and reasonable trial of his means of cure.

Liberal advertising for many years has created in the public a justifiable expectation that the "Slater" Shoe combines comfort, durability, fit, shape=retention and beauty, and to hold its trade its makers are compelled to make it as good as the public expects.
