PERSIFLAGIAN CYNICISM.

Chief characteristic of the Present Prime Minister of Great Britain—Cynical Premiers of the Past.

To treat everything in the lightest tone of persiflage—never for one moment to relapse into seriousness—to hide real feeling and to advertise unreal feeling, so that it is always impossible to say where reality begins and affectation ends—this is the dominant mode in large sections of English society to-day, and that mode finds its highest, boldest and most lucid expression naturally in the man who holds the highest office in the State. There have been plenty of cynical Prime Ministers in our history. Melbourne was a cynic; Palmerston was a cynic; Disraeli was a cynic, but it was the cynicism of the world-weary, or the astute, or the adventurer. It remained for Mr. Balfour to display the cynicism of persiflage. There are few personalities in political life, therefore, whom it is more difficult to understand than the Prime Minister. If you talk even to people who are intimate with him, it is hard to find two who take exactly the same view of his character. There are those who will tell you that he has no human feeling at all, or that if he has any it is strictly confined to one or two individuals, and these individuals do not belong to the ranks of the men who are his leading political colleagues. On the other hand, there are intimates of Mr. Balfour who claim that he is a man of warm personal feeling and of strong personal friendships, and who declare that of all the men they know, he is the one above all others to whom they would go in a moment of stress and difficulty. Again, who can tell which is the real Arthur Balfour as regards his ambitions and his treatment of other men? Is he what he once said of himself, as a little child who has got to his great position and is able to retain it, almost in spite of himself, without conscious effort—with as little calculation of consequences as though he were playing a game of golf or writing an abstruse metaphysical essay? Or is he a man of inordinate ambition, who pursues his purpose with all the cold astuteness of the race to which he belongs, and who uses and then casts off other men as they suit his policy and his purpose?—F. O'CONNOR, in M.A.P.

Tobacco in Japan.
 Tobacco is both cultivated and consumed on a large scale in Japan. The plant was introduced by the Portuguese in the seventeenth century, and the trade in it is a government monopoly. Tobacco is almost universally used in a small pipe.

Banyan Trees.
 Banyan trees are remarkable for the fact that their branches droop down to the ground and take root as separate stems.

Pianos, Organs

Sewing Machines!

We have now in stock, and will sell at prices and terms, consistent with the high grade class of goods we handle, a line of the World famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS.

Those pianos have taken prizes wherever exhibited. In 1886 at the Colonial and Indian Exposition held in London, Her Majesty the late Queen Victoria deputed Sir Arthur Sullivan, Court Musician and Dr. Stainer of St. Paul's Cathedral to select one for Windsor Castle. After carefully examining the piano exhibits they decided on a Newcombe Grand which was placed in Her Majesty's Audience Chamber.
 Her grandson, Now the Emperor of Germany was so delighted with the piano that he had one sent to him. In 1900 at the Paris Exposition the Newcombe carried off the Gold Medal in competition with 300 of the World's famous piano makers. In our own city it is used in the homes of Premier Peters, Senator McDonald, W. Weeks, Benj. Hertz, Edward Bayfield, Chas. Hyndman, C. R. Smallwood, Geo. W. Hyndman, L. W. Watson, Organist St. Peter's Cathedral, and at St. Dunstan's College, who all agree that the Newcombe Piano excels in sweetness and power of tone any piano manufactured in Canada.

We also carry a large stock of Mendelssohn Pianos and Thomas Organs.
