THE CATHOLIC CHURCH AND THE LIQUOR TRADE.

The Pioneer, an earnest advocate of temperance reform and prohibition, recalls the fact that the first Plenary Council of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada, held in Quebec last year, made an important and weighty deliverance on the temperance question. This was embodied in a pastoral letter and addressed to the clergy and laity throughout the Dominion. We subjoin three of the six paragraphs of this memorable pastoral, which was signed by thirty-eight Archbishops, Bishops and Administrators of the church. Here are the first two paragraphs of the pastoral letter:

"Among the social evils which have already wrought untold harm in our country, we wish especially to single out that of intemperance. Few are the vices more prolific in destructive-ness than it is; none there are that open more surely and more rapidly the way to every abasement, physical, intellectual and moral. Alcohol is a poison whose awful property it is to attack at the same time both soul and body, of which it paralyzes every energy and dries up every life-spring. The gross insatiable and abnormal appetite that it develops in the senses is one of the most degrading and the most hopeless passions known to men. Its victims are an object of scandal and horror to society until at last they go to swell the list of those who fill up hospitals and insane asylums.

"An already long standing and ever-renewed experience shows us the fate of wealth when made subservient to this all-absorbing passion; it shows us too how the wages of the workman, instead of bringing to the home the daily bread and the modest comforts it requires, are often wasted on the way, to fall into the hands of the genial tavern-keeper, who sells for that paltry gain the honor of the husband and father, and the misery and shame of the wife and children. An examination of statistics reveals to us an annual expenditure in our country for intoxicating drink of more than one hundred million dollars. Now, the bulk of this sum represents the fund that goes to support vice, while squandering the treasures of physical strength and intellectual and moral vigor with which God has so abundantly endowed our people."

The third paragraph sets forth that the church is not giving away its visionary fears in banding its members together beneath the standard of the Cross to battle against this giant evil, and cites the example of Bishop Laval, who in the early days of Canadian history took a resolute stand against the greedy liquor traders whose traffic threatened to destroy the new-born civilization on our shores. He was indeed a valiant apostle of temperance and the pastoral goes on to say: "Successors of this great Bishop, we feel it our duty to continue to-day the crusade of which he was here the fearless initiator."

Coming to the duty of legislation and administration in regard to the liquor traffic, the pastoral speaks with no uncertain sound. We quote:

"Almost everywhere the civil authorities have given their weighty co-operation, and have devoted themselves in a truly Christian spirit to the checking of this plague. It has above all been realized that the evil should be attacked at its source, namely, that the traffic in intoxicating liquors should be suppressed, or where that is not possible, at least restricted and more severely controlled, and that legislation should be enacted on the point, tending to restrain vice and render easier the task of good citizens in averting danger and putting a stop to disorder."

This then is today the message of this great church, delivered with all authority to its people throughout Canada, that "the traffic in intoxicating liquors should be suppressed." That is what we are trying to do here in Prince Edward Island, and the churches Protestant and Catholic alike are behind the movement.

CANADIAN SHIPPING.

The list of Canadian vessels on the registry books dwindles from year to year. It reached its maximum in 1878, before the adoption of the protective policy, when Canada stood fourth among the great ship-owning countries, and the Maritime Provinces foremost in Canada. In other lines of industry and development, trade and mineral production the Dominion has taken gigantic strides forward since 1878. But her shipping has gone back, back.

The list now shows 7,768 vessels of 718,533 tons. It will be seen at a glance that the average size of these vessels is under 100 tons each. And the Maritime Provinces have been the heaviest losers. St. John was thirty years ago one of the great ship-owning ports of the Empire. Nova Scotia ranks below both Quebec and Ontario, and New Brunswick has less than half as much tonnage as Nova Scotia still retains. On December 31st last the several provinces had the tonnage tabulated below:

Ontario.....	298,652
Quebec.....	175,370
Nova Scotia.....	169,286
British Columbia.....	92,746
P. E. Island.....	19,154
Manitoba.....	5,987
Yukon.....	2,984
Saskatchewan.....	290

It is to be hoped that at last we have touched bottom in this matter of lost shipping, although last year 246 vessels were removed from the list by wreck, sale or removal, while only 166 new vessels were added and these mostly small, a net loss of 80 vessels. But there is some promise of new steel shipbuilding at St. John and Halifax, and something is being done at Toronto and other lake ports to supply steel tonnage for inland waters. And we are to have some warships also. Even now the sun of the tide, if it has come, has arrived sadly late.

ASHES AND OPTIMISM.

Later gleanings from the Campbell on disaster tell that the earlier statements underrated the population of the town, the number of the homeless and the property loss. It is said the population was six or seven thousand instead of five thousand as reported, and that the property loss is twice as much as the $2,500,000 first stated. Many of the people have gone away. Those that remain must be housed and fed. And in the short summer already half-gone, there is scant enough time to prepare for a cold winter coming.

The town has a bonded debt of $300,000, and this remains, and will all for interest though the town is swept away and so many of its people have lost all they possess. Surely these are hard circumstances and call for aid from sister towns and from the Government of New Brunswick. But the temper of the Campbellton people seems to be hopeful and calm under their most disastrous experience. Premier Hazen who returned from a visit to Campbellton the other day described their case as one of "ashes and optimism." Optimism under such conditions is truly admirable as well as extraordinary.

WHISKEY THE MOVING CAUSE.

With regard to the tragedy at Alberton one thing stands out clear as in letters of blood, that whiskey was a prominent factor. So it has been in other tragedies in Alberton and elsewhere, ten thousand times repeated. Who sold that whiskey? The wheels of justice move but slowly in our land too often, but when inquisition is made for blood, the distributors of the whiskey curse should surely be looked after. Whoever sold that whiskey will sell more when the chance offers quite regardless even if every bottle sent a fellow-being to a dishonored grave.

Whiskey selling in Prince Edward Island is forbidden by law. Notoriously it leads to every offence and crime from abusive language to murder. None knows it better than those entrusted with the administration of justice, and justice is but blind and dumb and useless if it does not seek out and punish the liquor-seller. Wherefore, we ask again, Who sold the whiskey which was so obviously a factor in the Alberton tragedy? It is somebody's duty to find out, to prosecute and prevent if possible a repetition of what has occurred.

The birds, which have been flying for ages, have acquired an instinctive facility in the use of wings. They soar aloft, balance themselves in air, adjust themselves to the billow currents on the instant and without thought. Man cannot acquire this in a day or in a life-time as the birds have it. The race can never acquire it fully. Artificial wings can never equal the wings of birds. Thirty-five out of a limited number of aviators have already met their death.

The Examiner makes The Guardian say that "the electors (of Cardigan) will vote as they voted before, only more so." This is a gross perversion of our statement. The Guardian said the "stalwarts" of both parties would vote that way, and they will. We ask The Examiner to make the necessary correction, if only by quoting the last two sentences of our article to which it refers.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen.—Last August my horse was badly cut in eleven places by a barbed wire fence. Three of the cuts, (small ones) healed soon, but the others became foul and rotten, and though I tried many kinds of medicine they had no beneficial result. At last a doctor advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and in four weeks' time every sore was healed and the hair has grown over each one in fine condition. The Liniment is certainly wonderful in its working.

Sir John Macdonald when proposed the protective policy talked of fostering the "struggling industries," and the country has been fostering them ever since. To this end heavy duties were imposed on iron, steel, cotton, wool and other imports. When the "infant" and "struggling" iron and steel industries had been thus fostered for five years a bounty system was added, so much per ton on pig iron, so much on steel. Under the present Government the bounty system has been continued and extended, and since 1896 these bonuses have amounted to $15,480,329. The people pay this as they have paid ten of millions more in duties on iron and steel for the protection of the steel magnates. The "infants" are now of age, but are still palled in this fashion. How much longer will the dear people stand it?
