A "Planned Economy" Advocated For Furnishing The Home

These days we hear much about "Planned Economy". This term could be aptly applied to Holman's Home Plan, for it is a plan by which the article you need can be purchased immediately. Hundreds of our customers are using the Home Plan, because they found it more convenient than paying cash—and the majority of them could have paid cash in full had they desired. Remember—it was designed to assist customers. When you're buying a new Electric Washer, Chestrefield, or Kitchen Range ask about the Home Plan.

KING VISITS OLD BAXTER HOMESTEAD

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 8.—Hon. MacKenzie King spent a few hours today in surroundings familiar to his grandfather, William Lyon Mackenzie, leader of the Upper Canada rebellion of 1837. Returning to Ottawa from Kingston Mr. King stopped to visit Catarauqui Grange, the old Baxter homestead where Isobel Baxter, MacKenzie's wife, spent her girlhood.

The old stone house was built at the beginning of the 19th century and is well preserved although it is no longer owned by the Baxter family. Its historic associations are not confined to MacKenzie for its story recalls memories of Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first Prime Minister and founder of the Conservative party, and Sir Richard Cartwright, prominent Liberal leader of the post-Confederation era.

Sir Richard's grandfather obtained the land on which it stands under a grant from George III. He sold it to Peter Baxter, Mr. King's great grandfather. Later it became the home of George Baxter, Peter's son and Isobel's brother. George Baxter was headmaster of the old Royal Grammar School at Kingston and two of his pupils were Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Richard Cartwright.

The rebel leader was a frequent visitor at the house as he wooed Miss Baxter. In later years after the rebellion when he was permitted to return to Canada from his exile in the United States he lived in the house for a time until he returned to Toronto and again entered public life.

The property has changed hands only three times since the grant from the Crown. It was in the Baxter family for six generations and was recently sold to T. H. Lockett, the present owner. Mr. King also paid an unannounced visit to the relief camp at Barrieffield and spent a short time chatting with some of the men.

FISHERMEN LOCATED (C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) YARMOUTH, N. S., Aug. 5.—Edward Boudreau of Wedgeport and Harvey O'Neill of Digby, two fishermen who had been the object of an extensive search since they left port five days ago in a small dory, returned to their homes quietly today. They said they did not know their absence had caused any excitement.

Lord Luke, Chairman of Bovril Limited speaking recently to the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris said: "Advertising is one of the most economical as well as one of the most effective means of obtaining adequate distribution."

Early Days Of League Of Cross Band Recalled

The following was taken from "The Saunterer" column of the Worcester Evening Post: Bill Cantwell, who lives out May Street Way, is an employee of The Post, but that won't prevent us from using him as the subject in this column. Bill has a weakness for brass bands and he says that the street or "on the air" he will be found all attention while they are playing.

It seems when Bill was just a printer's apprentice and also a moving spirit in a boys' organization he and his pal organized a brass band in the home town, and would you believe it, that band is still functioning, though its membership has been completely changed over the period of 40-odd years of its existence. At first, when the boys went on parade they had a bass drum to keep them in step. A suggestion was made to Bill that there should be good band "timber" among the 100 or more boys in the organization so it was followed by action and the band organized. Bill states that he played the hardest instrument in the outfit—the baritone—as anyone who knows will agree.

The recent death of William Crosbie who organized Crosbie's Band in South Worcester many years ago, brought back memories of Bill's trying to break in with Mr. Crosbie when he first came to Worcester, but he didn't make it, for the good and sufficient reason that Bill's teaching was in the "treble" clef, whereas the Crosbie Band played in the "bass" clef. However, Bill's band is still in the running, and it looks as if it will continue indefinitely, which is something to be proud of.

Mr. Cantwell is a native of Charlottetown and the band which he had a part in organizing was the League of the Cross Band. The only surviving original charter member at present living in Charlottetown are Mr. William Brown, who was the first bandmaster and Mr. H. E. Cantwell who later succeeded him. Mr. Cantwell is a brother of the Bill Cantwell mentioned above. Rev. Father Hogan, of St. Dunstan's Basilica was spiritual director of the Band when it was first established.

Mr. Bill Cantwell was at one time an employee of The Guardian.

St. Andrews Presbyterian Ch. Anniversary

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Cardigan, will observe the 75th Anniversary with special services morning and evening Sunday, Aug. 11th, and an anniversary supper on Wednesday evening, Aug. 14th. Many friends and old members of the congregation are expected on this occasion, both on Sunday and Wednesday.

The history of the church really goes back to a remoter date than 1860, but, unfortunately, owing to disastrous fires some years ago, many of the church's records were destroyed. Cardigan is an offshoot of one of the first Protestant churches in King's County, namely, of the little log built church established on Brudenell Island about 120 years ago by the early settlers, but the connection has been that old church and the Cardigan Church cannot now be traced with any definiteness. A church was built on land belonging to William Alley sometime around 1860, but thought it is rather late should be much earlier. This was locally known as Alley's Church and for some years formed a joint pastoral charge with Georgetown. The first minister of whom we have any definite information was Rev. G. Lockhead, M. D., a native of Scotland, who died in 1864. Other ministers serving the church during its joint pastorate were: Revs. McWilliams, Melville, and McKinnon.

Fifty years ago, in 1885 it was decided to enlarge the church and the land upon which the present church stands was purchased and the new church was opened for worship in 1888. The church is situated upon one of the beauty spots of the Island, facing the Cardigan River and is surrounded by a beautiful grove. Ministers serving during the last fifty years were: Revs. Iwan Jones, John Gill (S.S.), Gunn, Smith, Fraser, Martin, McVicar, Genge (S.S.), Gibson, Davies, Lewis (S.S.).

Ninth Birthday Of Talking Screen

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 5.—Tomorrow is the ninth birthday of the talking screen. Shirley Temple wasn't born then, Mae West was just a stage name, John Gilbert was still making cinematic love to Greta Garbo, and "Willie" was singing in the footlights on that Aug. 15, 1925, when New York saw the world premiere of Vitaphone. It was just a novelty, was the consensus in Hollywood after the first talking screen program which featured Will H. Hayes in an address celebrating the occasion, Marion Talley and Giovanni Martinelli of the opera singing arias, and Mischa Elman playing a violin solo. The feature "Don Juan" with John Barrymore, was "silent" except for a synchronized score. It was mainly the Warner Brothers concern, which had exposed vitaphone as a last hope in the movie struggle, that took the occasion very seriously. Then Hollywood began a frantic revolutionizing of its industry. In 1928 none of the "ten best" pictures were talkies; in 1929 there was not a "silent" on this "film dally."

CENTENARY OF CANADIAN RAILROADING IN 1936

MONTREAL, Aug. 6.—Plans for the celebration of the centenary of Canadian railroading on July 21, 1936, are being developed by the Canadian Railway Centenary Committee. The first train to operate in Canada ran from Lepperville to St. Johns in the Province of Quebec on July 21, 1836. It is proposed to build an exact replica of the original train; all Canadian trains will be expected to carry suitable signs and at night beacon fires will be lit along the railroad.

"Divine Healing" Subject Of Forum Lecture

The subject of "Divine Healing" was considered by Evangelist F. W. Johnston at the Forum last night. He first spoke of the miraculous healing performed by the Lord Jesus Christ and his apostles when by a word or touch the dumb spake, the deaf heard the lame walked and many other diseases otherwise considered incurable were instantly healed. Nor is this power confined to apostolic times so Mr. Johnston said; for people today he said could be the beneficiaries of divine help if only they would fulfill the conditions laid down by the Lord. Wherever genuine faith was manifested back in the days of Christ and the apostles there was no limit to the power of God, and the same would be true today if only people in modern times would exercise the same faith. It was the faith of the ones who sought healing that brought the desired results and wherever faith was lacking even Christ did not accomplish anything. He quoted Rev. 13:14 in support of the latter statement.

But as Mr. Johnston said that even though these marvellous miracles were intended to be seen among the true followers of Christ yet notwithstanding this there is a danger of people running after miracle men, for Satan who today the unlimited power of faith will also succeed in duplicating many of the miracles that were performed by Christ. Not all who perform miracles so Mr. Johnston said were necessarily connected with God. He quoted Rev. 18:14 where the Revelator says that in the last days the spirits of devils would work miracles, and Rev. 13:14 where it says that many would be deceived by means of miracles. He also read 2 Thess. 2:9 where it says that Satan will also work signs and lying wonders. Mr. Johnston referred to the magicians of Egypt who in the days of Moses and Aaron and quoted Ex. 7:8-12 and verses 19-22 and Ex. 8: 1-7. This power of Satan's will be manifested in the latter days and will be seen among certain religiousists who will even use the worthy name of Christ to work their deceptions so said the evangelist and quoted Matt. 7:22, 23.

But said Mr. Johnston most of the victims of twentieth century faith healers are people who have certain functional disorders and not organic diseases. He spoke of an instance where a certain woman had what they call a hysterical tumor and went to a certain hospital for an operation. When placed under the anesthetic the tumor disappeared, but when after coming out from the ether and found that no operation had been performed the so called tumor returned, the doctor then performed a fake operation, merely cutting the outer cuticle so to speak, and the patient believed that there had been an operation and the result was successful. For several days there was no return of the tumor. But a careless student told her the operation was a fake and the whole thing returned. The doctors so Mr. Johnston said could not tell the difference between things about people's imaginations, how that on certain occasions they give sugar pills to people for stomach trouble etc., and charge a big price and it cures them. He referred to an instance where one woman was afflicted with imaginary headaches and kept a bottle of something to rub on every time she felt it. One night however when she had one of those attacks her husband fumbled around in the dark and got what she thought was the bottle and rubbed it on and cured her. In the morning however, he discovered he had used the ink bottle for her face was all black, but it did the trick for she thought it was the right one. The evangelist referred to many other amusing incidences too numerous to mention which he said showed some of the specimens for modern fake healers. Many people run to the doctor for treatment for many things they never have and the doctor is almost compelled to give them something for otherwise it would do no good to give it to them for nothing.

Mr. Johnston however said that there is such a thing as genuine healings by the almighty power of the Lord, and said he himself had experienced and witnessed many instances of miraculous healings. But since there would be counterfeits in the world he urged all to be careful and to put miracle men to the test of the Bible. If they go contrary to this so Mr. Johnston said it is evident that their miracles are not of God.

NEW U.S. TAX BILL DRAWS SENATE FIRE

Senator LaFollette, Wisconsin Progressive, an advocate of an inheritance levy, immediately countered by inserting the record the statement made before the Finance Committee by Roberto H. Jackson, counsel for the Internal Revenue Bureau. This statement said it was obvious the Ford Company would not have to close and the most to be anticipated would be a liquidation of stock which would transform the huge motor concern into a "widely owned" rather than family owned business. Speaks On Own Behalf Vandenberg told the Senate he spoke for himself and not for the Fords. He said that assuming Henry Ford's estate was $300,000,000 at the time of his death—or three-fifths of an assumed net worth of the business today—the proposed inheritance levy, together with the existing estate laws would take $270,000,000 of it. He added: "Where do you get your $270,000,000? You cannot take the factories. Without motivating changes behind them, they are little brick and mortar. You cannot sell off the livelihood of the greatest single group of high paid workmen in the world. You cannot take government title to the stock and submit the institution to political management and control. That would be the final absurdity. "Whence comes this hypothetical $270,000,000? Counsel for the internal revenue bureau has itself volunteered the only answer. You must sell Ford to the bankers and then to the public. "Suppose this happens in an hour of economic depression when investment funds are not available? You have sacrificed vast values by forced sales. No matter when it happens, you have destroyed the dynamic integration—the personality—the dedication—the institution.

Debate Centres Round Ford Motor Company and Proposed Inheritance Taxes.

(By Harold Oliver) (Associated Press Staff Writer) (A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—A charge of "confiscation" which "in death" would turn the vast motor company "over to Wall Street," today was directed at the House tax bill by Senator Vandenberg, Michigan Republican. He took the Senate floor only minutes after the finance committee ended nine days of public hearings and planned to start work on amendments tomorrow. Organized business closed the testimony with new demands that tax legislation be deferred until January. Prepared Statement The proposed inheritance taxes and their application to the Ford Company were the subject of the 1,000-word prepared statement read to the Senate by Vandenberg. "Bluntly," he said, "it (Ford Motors) will be drove into the hands of Wall Street of its equivalent; and the money changers, who have striven vainly in years past to achieve this end, and whom this administration says it proposes to drive from the temple will have been handed the dominion which in no other manner could be obtained."
