

A crowning achievement of MARCONI Radio Engineering

Sensational! The New ONE DIAL MARCONI RADIO

YOU have only to hear this Radio Receiver once to realize the difference, the big, vital difference, between it and any other Radio you have ever listened to.

Never until now such tonal realism, such true selectivity, such accuracy, such pleasing volume and such operative simplicity.

Sensational is the only word to describe the performance of this New 6-Tube One Dial Marconi Radio. Designed for you by Marconi engineers, it expresses in fullest measure the standard of perfection which assures lasting satisfaction in your Radio investment.

Battery Operated or Batteryless

You can have this supreme New Radio either way. There are two Battery operated Receivers — the Table Model, as shown, at $115; or a handsome Console Model, with built-in speaker, at $165.

The New Batteryless One Dial Marconi is in one style, a beautiful Console, with built-in speaker. No batteries. No aerial. Plugged into any lighting socket, it proves its leadership in the field of "no battery" Radio.

In justice to yourself and before you decide on your Radio investment, you should see, hear, operate these wonderful New One Dial Marconi Receivers. Only then will you know the heights to which Marconi research and engineering skill have carried modern Radio performance, in both the Battery Operated and Batteryless fields.

entirely different about the whole affair.

His face was white and puzzled.

"You will before the end of the month," she replied, recklessly.

"Violet was eyeing them with her usual curiosity, so he was forced to pass on. But when she was leaving the office at 5 o'clock he stopped her, saying, 'I'm going to take you home.'"

"I'm with Maxine," she objected.

"I'll take you both, then," snapped Franklin.

INSTALLMENT XV.

When they reached the apartment Maxine ran in, leaving Sonia with Franklin.

"Now I want you to know," he insisted, "what you mean my that threat you made."

"I wasn't making a threat, I merely said 'you'd understand soon.'"

"You said in a month."

"All right, that's what I meant."

"Something is going to happen in a month to show me?"

Sonia was annoyed at her unusual lack of reticence.

"If you wish to put it that way, yes."

He was silent a moment, then he begged, "Whom are you going out with to-night?"

"That doesn't concern you."

"But it does. Because I love you, sweetheart, just as much as ever, is it Walter Henderson?"

"Feeling her heart soften at his changed tone, Sonia took refuge in brusqueness."

"Suppose it is?"

"Because if it is, I won't stand for it! I've suspected his little game all along. The dirty dog!"

"He has asked me to marry him."

"Sonia cried angrily. 'And I am thinking seriously of doing it.'"

He stiffened with amazement.

"Sonia, you wouldn't! He's so much older, you can't!"

"You'll see," she cried, stung into fury. "And if I do I shall consider myself very fortunate."

She jumped from the car and ran in without another word. She heard him tearing down the street, but did not look back. Then she went inside and dressed carefully.

Walter Henderson. She accepted his kiss without flinching.

"I'll get used to it after a while," she thought, complacently.

They dined at the Blackstone. He left her at her door with a tenderly affectionate farewell. And to the second time since her quarrel with Franklin she fell into deep, childlike slumber.

But the next day when Franklin did not appear at the office she felt herself stopping her work to look for him. When Walter telephoned, his well modulated voice grated on her tense nerves.

"I'll have to go to bed early to-night," she said.

That night she sat before the open fire, listening to the telephone above the wind and rain. But it

At midnight she went to bed to lie, wide eyed, staring into the dark.

Franklin did not come to the office again that week.

On New Year's eve she hurried home from the office to dress for her engagement with Walter. She was feeling utterly drained of life.

The prospect of a gay party at the Congress held no allurements. The future stretched bleakly before her.

"It will be like the rest of my life," she thought, grimly. "All Walter's kindness can't help me."

Walter's kindness can't help me. I will dress, evening after evening, for dinners and theater parties and dances, but there won't be any kick to it."

As she came up to the apartment she found Franklin's car at the curb. He sat at the wheel, looking ill and miserable. But at the sight of him, waiting for her in the rain, something, which had been silent for days, broke into wild sweet singing in Sonia's heart.

"What do you want, Franklin?" His voice was broken with fear, misery and longing as he replied.

"Won't you let me talk to you, Sonia, please? I suppose you're going out with Henderson, but it won't take me long."

Her eyes, meeting his, were sad but very kind.

"Come inside," she said.

He followed her into the living room. It was dark and Sonia only turned on one lamp. Standing in its orange glow she faced him, waiting with a suddenly racing heart.

He was very humble.

"Sonia, I am trying to be reasonable. I realize that I have no right to attempt to influence you."

He waited, hoping perhaps for her contradiction. But she said nothing, so he was forced to conceal his feelings.

"As I have explained to you, I cannot alter the fact of my own engagement just now."

"But so long as I don't want to be anything to me?"

"We can always be friends."

"Oh, what possibility is there of friendship between us, ever?"

The riot of excitement surging through every vein made her agree.

"Sonia, we love each other. In reality nothing is different between us. You know that I'm engaged, but there is no real difference in our relations."

"My knowing it makes all the difference in the world to me," she contended.

"Why should it, when I have explained that it can never come to another application or two, you trust me, hair becomes beautifully dark."

SPORTING COMMENT

By "Teo"

"Time to Sit Up"

The expulsion for five years of S. F. Doyle and L. B. McMillan at the recent Amateur Athletic Union of Canada gathering at Edmonton for alleged defiance of constituted authority calls for more than mere passing notice. When one takes into account the standing of these men among our citizens as public officials holding responsible positions as athletes of sterling quality and athletic promoters of acknowledged ability, this unusual action of the A. A. U. of C. cannot be characterized as other than cruel, unmerited and capricious.

For upwards of forty years the names of McMillan and Doyle have been well known in the realm of sport, both men famous football and hockey players, and both shown on the cinderpath. McMillan as a former Maritime half mile champion, and Doyle as a Maritime champion bicyclist. Doyle not only fitted himself brilliantly on the local football gridiron, but was a star player at Saint Francis Xavier College and was a member of an all Maritime team which some years ago was invited by Harvard University to display Canadian football to an American gathering.

Not only by active participation in athletics did these men become known as honest fair-minded players, but their endeavors were successfully carried into executive prominence. McMillan on two different occasions was elected Secretary of the Maritime Province Branch and did a great deal of spade work in fostering Maritime interests. Doyle for several terms held the high position of President of the M. P. B. and received the hearty commendation of all Maritime Clubs for his endeavor to assert Maritime rights. In this Province both men are so well known as active enthusiastic supporters of athletics, ever striving to advance it in its branches, that mention in this regard is not necessary. I feel sure that not only will the citizens of Charlottetown resent this high-handed, severe and uncalled treatment, but that clubs throughout the Maritimes will raise vigorous protest.

It is understood that already clubs in the other provinces have wired protesting the action taken and calling for a complete break-away from the A. A. U. of C.

No doubt the many athletic clubs in the Maritimes were surprised at the procedure, and were more greatly surprised when they were informed by President Fraser that he did all that he could. He could have done much more when three of the country's leading sportsmen were expelled or suspended for a period of five years. That well known French phrase, "it is to laugh," just about fits the bill.

Doyle and McMillan were only two of an executive of five which reinstated any athletes this year. Where are the other three, are they suspended?

On the occasion of the emergency meeting held some months ago with an idea to reorganize, Doyle and McMillan resigned from office. Wasn't this enough without "rubbing it in," as the saying goes. No, it did not seem revenge enough for the late President McVicar, who put the screws on good and plenty as a fitting climax to his career as leader of the Canadian Union. No doubt more will come of this as time goes fleeing by.

Is Canada to lose to the States another of her athletic champions? In last week's press despatches came the announcement from Saint John, N. B., that Charlie Gorman, amateur skating champion of the world, was to leave shortly for Detroit, where he would make his permanent residence.

Coming on the eve of the Olympic trials this decision by Gorman is not without some significance. And do not be surprised, says an exchange, if Canada is without the services of Gorman in the 1928 games at Amsterdam. Gorman in a press statement a few days ago said he would not take part in the

It will grieve me, will release me instantly. You are young, dear. Would it be so hard for you to wait?"

"It would be impossible for me to pass the evening with another girl."

He took her hands.

"For you to do about me. Besides, he is too old for you. His life is half lived. You couldn't endure it after a few months. Would that be fair to him?"

"If I marry him I'll play the same."

"But you won't marry him, will you, darling? Life is too long. Years are ahead of you. Or us."

(To Be Continued.)

Olympic games unless he was given plenty of time to train and under conditions where the important event would take place. Which suggested that Charlie would like to spend the winter abroad training for the big test in which he would be pitted against the world's best amateur speed skaters.

And it may be probable that Gorman is disgruntled with his treatment by Canadian Olympic officials, or that he has received an offer from Detroit sports. At any rate the proverbial "colored gentleman" appears to be cavorting about somewhere in the woodpile.

Phil Scott, British heavyweight, is returning to his native heath after a rather unimpressive stay in the United States. Phil's latest setback was at the hands of Johnnie Risko at Cleveland last Wednesday night in which the Britisher was knocked down twice and lost the decision. He expressed himself as being disappointed at Risko's boxing ability and announced that he would return to London for the winter, but expected to come to the States again next year to remain indefinitely.

Risko's defeat of Scott brings him a step nearer the goal to which he is aspiring—a crack at Gene Tunney's crown. His consistent improvement and smashing victories in his last few battles show him to be a formidable contender for the heavyweight crown. Risko will feature in Tex Rickard's elimination contest to decide an opponent for Tunney next summer.

"Scoop" Ross in the Amherst News referring to Maritime representation on Canadian Olympic committees writes as follows:

Just when one begins to believe that sport affairs are to be straightened out in the Maritime Provinces the A. A. U. of C.—that august body of "pure bred sportsmen" omit to give the three Eastern Provinces representation upon the Olympic Committees. The honors were virtually divided between Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba with Toronto gathering in the bulk of the credit—as usual. These selections happened after a long list of Maritime reinstatements, apparently got the go-by, despite the desperate fight waged by President D. Webster Fraser to secure a general recognition of Maritime rights. The recent action will not create any additional sympathy in the East for the A. A. U. of C. President Fraser and his officials had the situation well in hand, but there will be a number of outbursts against the A. A. U. C. in future months. Amen to that! I certainly would like to hear Scoop's views on the famous "expulsion" of Doyle, McMillan and McKiever of Moncton.

Ice making at the local Arena is more or less of a trial these days. The weather man is no respecter of persons, but cheer up fellows Jack Frost is just around the corner and due to show up any day now.

Much interest locally is manifested over the coming Grad—All Nova Scotia hockey game. The question arises can a team be picked from the many U. S. clubs good enough to give the Olympic aspirants a real good game? Many will not forget the splendid showing of the Abegweit just four years ago when they stacked up against the Granites in Saint John. According to onlookers that surely was a game of hockey, the like of which has never been seen in the Maritimes since.
