"Her Sweetheart" Spiced With Tears And Laughter At Prince Edward

Co-starred for the first time on the screen, Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore bring comedy, heart interest and gripping drama to their fans in an inimitable blend in "Her Sweetheart" (Christopher Bean), currently playing at the Prince Edward Theatre. This is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's much discussed filmation of the stage success, "The Late Christopher Bean."

The two beloved figures who received Academy awards together provide vivid personalities in a vigorous story which is replete with laughs as well as dramatic interest. As Abby, the faithful old servant who finds herself suddenly in possession of a priceless painting and consequently becomes the center of intrigue and plotting, Marie Dressler gives another of her forceful and intensely human portrayals. Barrymore as the kindly old Dr. Haggerty who becomes obsessed at the thought of riches almost in his grasp, gives an equally brilliant performance.

Old Paintings Discovered

The story deals with the family of a country doctor who in the past had befriended an artist long since dead. The paintings of this artist are discovered to be worth a fortune. The old doctor, under the portrait of the servant, Abby, thus uncovering a romance of the past, and participating a striking denouement.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. ELIZABETH BETTS Mrs. Elizabeth Laird Betts, aged 102 years and 5 months, probably the oldest woman in Nova Scotia, died at her home in Wallace on Friday, Feb. 2nd. The deceased was the grandmother of Dr. F. D. Charman and Rev. M. K. Charman and Rev. M. K. Charman, minister of Brunswick St. United Church.

Death followed a cold contracted recently. The funeral was held on Monday. Mrs. Betts was born in 1831 at Tryon, Prince Edward Island. She is survived by three daughters living, Mrs. Henry Charman, Mrs. Jennie Harris, both of Wallace, and Mrs. John McCormack of Harwickport, U.S.A. She is also survived by twenty grand-children, twenty great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren.

RUBY BELL SINGLETON

On the fifth of January, 1934, she passed away peacefully at the General Hospital, Banor, Maine, the sudden death of Ruby Bell Singleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Singleton, of 11 Paul Street, Banor, Maine. She was born in Mass. The deceased had been on a visit to her grandmother, Mrs. Sarah MacPadden, O'Leary, Prince Edward Island, and was returning home when she was taken suddenly ill of pneumonia, which necessitated her removal to the hospital, but despite all that medical science could do, she passed peacefully away. Her mother had been summoned to her bedside and was with her when the Lord called her home.

The funeral service which was largely attended was held Wednesday, January 10, at 3 p. m. from the Scotch Presbyterian Church, Banor, Mass. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery. The service was conducted by Rev. Hector Ferguson, Pastor of the Scotch Presbyterian Church, and Dr. E. S. Clement, Minister of the Church of the Covenant. The text used at the service is taken from John 14:1: "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me."

"Ye believe in God"-These words spoken by Jesus leads us into the very heart of the Christian message where we find comfort in this hour of sorrow. Jesus said, let not your heart be troubled, and also gave them a reason, because ye believe in God. Our belief in God is the foundation of comfort. It is the uplifting power that sustains us in the hour of deep sorrow. Belief in God is the tie that binds us together in friendship and love. We believe in the Living God and because He lives our departed loved ones live also.

ones live also. Belief in God brings us comfort today because the loved one who has been called home believed in God and lived up to that belief. Ruby, from her childhood, lived up to a strong faith in her Lord. At the early age of seven years she united with the church and continued to witness for her Lord until called home to that larger life beyond a sorrow, not as those without hope, because we know that what is our loss is her gain. That sweet life which we learned to love is not dead but has passed on to live up to a strong faith in her Lord. The sweetness of her life left an uplifting influence upon all who enjoyed the privilege of her acquaintance. May the memory of her sweet life lead us all to set our affections on the things that are above where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Our young friend has gone to be with him in the home of many mansions, and our Lord says: "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in Me."

"Ruby had been Chairman of the Music Committee and a regular member of the choir of the Scotch Church. She was an ardent lover of music and all the hymns used were her special favorites. Mr. B. Redden, tenor soloist, sang "In the Garden" and "The Lord, Thine Own to Be," and "The Lord, Thine Own to Be," and "The Lord, Thine Own to Be." Malcolm W. Sears, organist, played the "Largo" from the New World Symphony by Dvorak, as a prelude, and the "Largo" from the opera "Karas," by Handel, as a postlude. The deceased was secretary of the Boston Christian Endeavor Union 1934 Convention Committee, and was an active member of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Scotch Church.

MESSAGE OF ARCHBISHOP

Significance Of Lenten Season Emphasized by Archbishop Worrell

Following is the text of the Lenten message of The Most Reverend C. L. Worrell, Archbishop of Nova Scotia and Primate of all Canada: "The Lent of 1934 is a time when the world is beginning to recover something of its material prosperity and is therefore a timely reminder of the oft repeated warning that the cause for the crisis in the world's affairs through which we have been groping was to be found in a forgetfulness of God and an effort to accomplish everything by purely secular means. That is what must be avoided if a still worse condition is not to follow, one from which there would be no recovery."

"The Church stands as the living force to steer a right course free from the dangers which arise from indifference or pronounced Combie and private life there would be every reason for St. Paul's condemnation of the Corinthians to be applied to us. He blamed them for the contentions among them in which every one of you saith I am of Paul and I of Apollus and I of Cephas and I of Christ. Christ is not divided and it was not Paul or Apollus who was crucified, but Christ only and only in Him can we find wisdom and all righteousness and sanctification and redemption."

"Now Lent comes to us as a mercurial break in the ceaseless round of work and worry, pleasure and excitement, and gives an opportunity of finding something in life more satisfying. It is not a thing which belongs to any party or section of the Church. It is acknowledged by Churchmen of all schools of thought and is beginning to be observed by members of other Communions. It may be said we can draw near to God at any time, and it is not necessary to have special seasons for this. But it would not be difficult for any one to see the advantage of having a period when it was universally agreed to lessen the controllable expenses of time and money for the calls of the body and so give a place for the needs of the soul-a period when you would not be distracted in deciding whether to go to a Church Service or to a dance when none of the latter were being held, and yet it would be a very undesirable thing if the forty days of Lent were to be spent in an atmosphere that would applyzate good sport and healthy pleasure. That would be as harmful as an excessive indulgence in either, both, for moderation in thought and deed is the true Christian attitude."

"It is equally unprofitable to body and soul to suppose that an extra attendance at special services will make up for any laxity of the moral life. They bring us into touch with a God and help us to learn the true sweetness of His love. They should send us forth without a tinge of pridefulness, but with renewed energy for all the duties of our daily life, and with the assurance that it pays better to recognize the fact that it is in God we live and move and have our being, and that we get the best out of life by living in His promised presence."

"A whole nation on its knees could not but have a marvellous effect if we were to believe the words of Jesus, 'If two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask it shall be done for them by My Father which is in heaven.' Or the word of the Lord which says, 'Read your hearts and not your garments and turn unto the Lord.' That is, let your coming to God, not the polish of a vest or the style of your dress, but the heartfelt desire to really follow Him as your ruler and guide. In which case you will find Him gracious and merciful slow to anger and of great kindness and ready to forgive iniquity and regretful of evil incurred."

"To the thoughtful man who looks out unprejudiced upon the affairs of the world and the generation, but with a disapproving glance upon human power to extricate them from the quicksands of selfishness and greed into which they have slipped, the only sensible course is to turn to his Creator, to turn to the supernatural."

"The call of the Church for Lent to offer practical means for following that course. The opportunity for prayers by the whole Church, a body and by each individual soul is urged and all members are presented to take advantage of this as a test of the reality of their religion in the use of the means of grace within their reach. Then when Easter dawns we may rise from the shadows of the past and find ourselves entering the bright and happy prospect of a world seeking those things which are above where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God."

Aladdin Magic

THE OLD ADAGE, "Man toils from sun to sun, but woman's work is never done," is only partially true today. Science has taken an interest in the home of late years, and has done much to lighten the burdens of household tasks.

Science has harnessed electricity to make it perform a sort of "Aladdin magic." It works for us, twenty-four hours a day-and its pay is low considering the labors it accomplishes. It furnishes light and heat. It sweeps the carpets and polishes the floors. It runs the sewing machine and washes the dishes. It toasts the bread and percolates the morning cup of coffee. It beats the eggs; it stirs the dough and bakes the bread; and last, but not least, it furnishes the power for the radio to entertain day and night.

You learn of these, and many other time and labor saving devices through the advertisements. They keep you informed of new things and give you dependable facts on which to base a purchase. These are good reasons for believing a product is "better because it's advertised."
