A Sweetheart at Thirty

THE STORY OF A WOMAN'S TRANSFORMATION By Marion Rubincam

LETTERS FROM HOME Chapter 29

Next day we indulged ourselves in the great luxury of lying in bed until 8 o'clock. Then we ate the rest of the sandwiches and jam. But both of us had country appetites, and we had money enough for simple necessities, so we went out and walked until we found a little restaurant and there we ordered eggs and coffee, and felt better.

"This is the second time I've been in a restaurant," Violet whispered, looking about the little place curiously. "That one Bud took us to yesterday was the first. Just wait, Aunt Enid, before we're through, we're going to eat in every restaurant in New York."

"Good Lord, child, what an ambition!" I smiled. "This day was given over to sightseeing. But first we went back to our room. 'It is dingy,' I said, critical for the first time. I looked about the faded tan walls, the ornate lace curtains, clean enough, but with a gray cleanliness that made me shudder. The soul of any country woman brought up to sun-browned clothes. They were torn, too, in dozens of places, and the carpet was worn to the back. It too was a faded tan, and the counterpane had also the gray cleanliness that comes from careless washing and indoor drying. Violet went to the closet and took down my Paisley shawl, a possession of my mother's. She mounted a chair and hung it against the wall, twisting the fringe in some tacks to catch it. It made a gorgeous pattern on the long bare wall.

Then the girl, her eyes alight with inspiration, unpacked the big patchwork quilt Esther had sent us, and flung it over the terrible counterpane. Last, she brought out her yellow silk scarf and threw it over the bureau. 'There,' she said, stepping back to view the room. And indeed, with those three things she had turned a piece of dingy ugliness into one of life and color. Violet had the home-maker's touch. It was never so much what she did, as the way she did it. The woman who has that touch, carries a magic wand with her, to transform barren places into comfortable homes. Such a woman has a thousand times more chance of being happy than the one who accepts the ugly places, and complains of them, without trying to better them.

At this moment there was a knock, and Mrs. Tupper put her head in the doorway around the open door. 'I guess these is for you,' and she held out a couple of envelopes. 'Miss. One's Miss Violet Haines One's Miss Enid. Is that how it's pronounced—Haines?' 'In Miss Enid,' I answered, holding out my hand. 'In Miss Violet's suit.' 'I thought you wasn't her mother. I told 'em so too. Them at the door asked me last night when you went in. I says I knew you wasn't married.'

She did not say I looked like an old maid. Henly Falls would scarcely have been so considerate. 'I see you been doin' things to the room she went on. 'Of course if you mind—' Violet began sarcastically. 'Mind? Oh no. I never take no one but nice people. And nice people are always nice, I says. They wouldn't mark up walls for spill ink on a body's carpet. I would have fixed up the rooms myself. But since my last operation I can't do things. 'Operation' I asked politely, wanting to read my letter. 'Yes, my last,' her eyes lit up with the curiously eager gleam of her species—the sort of a woman who delights in talking of serious operations that she has endured. I have found that such women feel a curious aura of romance and importance attached to them, that grows with each operation in such sections of the city, the more operations a woman has had the greater her social importance.

'Yes'm, my last, I had a ligament took out. And ever since I can't bend over much. Without falling and getting weak. Before that I had an operation right after my last baby was born.' She gave us some intimate details of this, to which I listened. Violet turned her back, and I calmly read her letter. 'And after that I couldn't stand on ladders without getting dizzy. So sometimes there ain't so much cleaning on the walls as I'd like to see. I keep a very clean house. But of course I have to depend on help to scrub surfaces. Seein' as I can't stoop over. 'How old are you?' I asked. 'She had been so frank I had dared ask her this. 'No so old not like I look. I was 37 last birthday. That was a month ago. I used to look real young. But I kept havin' operations. I've had my appendix out—that's real frightful to have done. And my tonsils. And adenoids. But they ain't much of an operation. They don't give ether. And the ligament. Then the kidney-come. And I've had six teeth out in one year.'

Was there much of her left, I wondered? I looked at her curiously. I looked 50, she looked 60. Thirty seven! But I turned to my letter, anxious to know what made Esther write so soon. It could not be anything pleasant. 'Tomorrow—I begin to Awake

GLACE BAY, N. S., Sept. 7.—The Marconi Conciliation Board appointed under the Industrial Disputes Act to investigate the trouble between the Marconi employees, concluded their sitting last evening. The board was composed of Dr. Clarence McKinnon, Halifax, chairman; Stewart McCawley, Glace Bay, representing the company and W. U. Cotton, editor of the Maritime Labor Herald, Glace Bay, the employees. The board absolutely refused to take any sworn testimony and the proceedings were marked by a feeling of conciliation that spoke for a settlement agreeable to both parties. An agreement favorable to the men was arrived at and last evening it was mailed to Montreal for the signature of the company. While the board has made no announcement, it is well-known here that the terms of the settlement were made on a basis of the McKinnon award.

DE VALERA RECEIVES CHURCH'S LAST RITES

DUBLIN, Sept. 7.—Eamonn de Valera has received the last rites of the dying, according to the latest reports of his condition. It is known, however, that the physicians attending him, expect the crisis at any time. It is reliably declared here that de Valera was first taken ill in the North Cork district, where he took refuge at a farm house. Physicians there recommended better food, call a nurse, and more expert nursing, so the journey to Dublin was undertaken. It was on this trip that the pneumonia symptoms developed. In the revival of peace talk, it is said that influential leaders had suggested that de Valera's sick bed with its suggestions that he should call a truce. But so far no progress has been reported. Some public bodies, chiefly county councils, do show some disposition to arrange a conference looking toward peace.

FORTUNE DEPENDS ON SEX OF CHILD

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Princess Xenia of Greece, niece of King Constantine and wife of William Leeds, Jr., is at present in Paris with her husband expecting an addition to the family. If a boy is born to the Princess, she will inherit the entire $10,000,000 fortune of the late William Leeds, the American tinplate king. The Leeds provides that if there is no male issue, the whole sum shall go to the New York Lying-In Hospital. The $10,000,000 is now in the form of a trust fund, the interest on which is drawn by Princess Christian (formerly Mrs. William Leeds.) Upon the death of the American Princess the interest will revert to her son, husband of Princess Xenia. In the event of his death or that of his wife, the fortune will go to a male heir, if there be one, as the American law provides that a trust fund shall cease with the third generation. Young Leeds and his wife are living with Prince and Princess Christian at a fashionable hotel in Paris. Princess Christian's allowance to them enables them to entertain lavishly. The youthful couple spend most of their time automobiling, yachting and airplaning. They probably will accompany the Princess on her visit to the United States this autumn. Much criticism is said to have arisen in Greece over the continuing absence of Prince Christopher, who is King Constantine's younger brother. All his brothers and nephews are serving their country is the art of preparing foods that supply in digestible form all the nutriment the body needs for the sultry days when the vitality is low and the appetite is "fussy."

Shredded Wheat

is a cooling food, rich in the elements that build healthy tissue without heating the blood. Keeps the body buoyant, the mind alert and active. Contains all the bran you need for stimulating bowel movement—a peppy food for old and young.

Two Biscuits with milk or cream make a complete, nourishing meal. Eat it for breakfast with sliced bananas or prunes; for lunch with berries; for dinner with sliced peaches, apricots, stewed raisins, or fresh fruits. Ready-cooked, ready-to-eat.

WOMEN BARRED FROM PULPITS

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A resolution refusing general permission to women to conduct services or preach in the churches of the province was made public by the Provincial Synod of the Anglican Church of the West Indies yesterday after its closing session. The resolution would permit women to officiate in exceptional situations, but only with the approval of a bishop.

NORTHCLIFFE WILL DISPUTE SETTLED

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Daily Express owned by Lord Beaverbrook, announces exclusively this morning: "Through the intervention of Viscount Rothermere, brother of the late Viscount Northcliffe, the legal dispute over Lord Northcliffe's two wills has been settled. Following Lord Rothermere's mediation, the representatives of two contending wills have met and agreed upon a course of action which will obviate the necessity of further litigation. This agreement now merely awaits confirmation in court."

In the first will, although Lady Northcliffe was left a considerable sum, there was also many other substantial bequests. In the second will she was made sole beneficiary and executrix. The Daily Express also announces that Sir Campbell Stuart, managing director of the Times, has resigned his other job as managing editor of the Daily Mail. This suggests that those two properties are going to be separated definitely.

GERMANS PLAN MERGER WITH FRENCH CAPITAL

LONDON, Sept. 7.—A despatch from Berlin says that leading German industrialists are gathering in Berlin for an extraordinary important secret conference tomorrow. The object of the meeting is said to be to devise plans for combining German and French industrial interests. This will be in line with the German plan to close huge reparation contracts for delivery in kind, chiefly wood, coal and coke, directly with French private interests, and try to establish better understanding with French businessmen.

MAN WITH GOLDEN RIBS IS LIVING IN FEAR OF THIEVES

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—A young man with ribs of gold and platinum is working in a cigarette factory at Berlin. When he was a locksmith's apprentice, several years ago, he fell from the roof of a house and was badly injured. He was taken to a hospital where the doctors found that his skull was fractured and all his ribs but one were broken. The youth was in the hospital for no less than four and a half years, and finally the surgeons undertook to repair or replace his shattered ribs. A metal plate was inserted in his skull and the fractured bones were replaced by ribs of gold and platinum. Two and a half years later the man was able to leave the hospital and since then he has been working in a cigarette factory. In view of the present value of gold and platinum, it is evident that he is carrying about in his body quite a considerable amount of wealth, and it is stated that special measures are being taken to protect him against criminals.

Barlottetown No. 80 Barley

The Charlottetown No. 80 Barley has been given a great deal of prominence in the agricultural papers during this summer and many are asking for more detailed information. There are evidences that Charlottetown No. 80 is probably a natural cross. Many fields this year show strains of Old Island two-rowed barley that should be rogued out. One strain stands more erect, is taller, does not stool well and has tenacious awns. Another ripens from three to four days earlier and has a golden cast to the awns. Neither of these strains are desirable, yielding less than the true Charlottetown No. 80. Although the history of the progenitors of Charlottetown No. 80 barley is somewhat obscure, still there is fairly good evidence that the barley from which it originated was brought from England to Prince Edward Island by the early settlers. The following table will give the relative standing of this barley in comparison with three of the next heaviest yielding varieties grown at the Experimental Station, Charlottetown, during the ten years, 1912-1921, which will show that Charlottetown No. 80 has been an outstanding producer during this period:—

Table with columns: Variety, Class, Days maturing, Average yield per acre, Weight per bushel, measured bus. 1912-1921. Rows include Charlottetown No. 80, Gold, O. A. C. 21, and Manchurian.

The table shows three very desirable characteristics of Charlottetown No. 80 Barley, namely: (1) It ripens slowly and is a most satisfactory barley to sow with wheat, oats, peas or vetches for mixed grain, because it ripens more nearly at the time of the other grain; (2) It weighs much heavier per measured bushel than any of the six-rowed varieties, and therefore contains a higher percentage of meal; (3) It is a very heavy producer, yielding 7.2 per cent. more than "Gold" and 8.5 per cent. more than "O.A.C. No. 21," the highest yielding six-rowed in the province. The average yield of barley at Prince Edward Island for the five years 1912-1916 as given in the "Census and Statistics Monthly" was 29.93 bushels per acre. The average yield of "Charlottetown No. 80" from a number of field tests in different parts of the province was 51.92 bushels per acre, showing an increase of 73 per cent. over the average crop. It is unfortunate that six-rowed barley was so generally recommended for Prince Edward Island for many years, not only because of its comparatively low yielding qualities here, but because of its tenacious awns which have caused many to go out of growing barley altogether, as shown by the "Census and Statistics Monthly" reports. The 5920 acres of barley grown in 1908 have been reduced to 3600

WANTED BY BARONET A RESPECTABLE JOB

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Can any body in North America give respectable employment to a baronet? In the "Agony" columns of The Times, this morning, one who describes himself as "a baronet, aged 28, unmarried, big game shot, sportsman," asks for a position either in the United States or in Europe. The advertiser says besides: "Can speak French or Portuguese, am tactful and entertaining, and have artistic and literary taste. Can be reached care of The Times."

Coloring Living Trees

DRESDEN, Sept. 7.—A German engineer has just succeeded in perfecting a process for coloring living trees. It has been found that a whole tree from the end of its roots to the topmost leaf can be completely and permanently colored within forty-eight hours. Two Dresden firms have undertaken to exploit the patent. Furniture, cigarette cases, pen-holders and other articles are to be put on the market all made up in the new colored wood. Imitations of certain natural woods are declared possible through the process.

DRESDEN, Sept. 7.—A German engineer has just succeeded in perfecting a process for coloring living trees. It has been found that a whole tree from the end of its roots to the topmost leaf can be completely and permanently colored within forty-eight hours. Two Dresden firms have undertaken to exploit the patent. Furniture, cigarette cases, pen-holders and other articles are to be put on the market all made up in the new colored wood. Imitations of certain natural woods are declared possible through the process.
