

WINTER REVIEW OF PROTESTANT ORPHANAGE

The Protestant Orphanage has passed thus far through the winter without serious happenings of any kind.

The average number of inmates for the last few months has been unusually high which shows that homes are not being found for placing them in, sufficient to offset the number coming in.

Perhaps the general depression has something to do with this for it has been necessary to care for a number of children from homes that were not able to provide.

The school in the home continues to give satisfaction under the licensed teacher. The number enrolled is twenty six. Some idea of the work to be done in the orphanage may be had from the fact that there are twenty five children in the nursery alone.

Funds since the new year have been coming in very slowly. It has been very pleasing to receive donations from several of the Women's Institutes as well as some private and fraternal amounts.

We are practising the strictest economy just now. It is an established fact that we solicit subscriptions but once a year and so we have to make our one collection spin out.

It will be noted that there was no Orphanage play this winter, but in its stead so far one tea and sale of fancy work was held in Zion Church Hall. This was very successful and the sum realized gave us great help.

In connection with our Endowment Fund there seems to be a wrong impression as to its amount. It should be remembered that the splendid bequests of the late Mr. Alex Stewart of Charlottetown and Mr. Harry Spears of Summerside have not yet come into our hands.

The former is not due till 1932 and the latter will likely be paid late this year.

Requests received during the last few months have been from the estates of Rev. W. H. McEwen, $100, Mr. George Jenkins, $25, Mr. James Stewart, $500, and Mr. W. A. Weeks $300.

The whole world has heard the hard times cry, prices of all commodities have been tottering; there are unemployment lists in all countries and many relief proposals have been submitted.

Prince Edward Island has not been seriously affected but once let us begin to think and talk depression and we will soon be backsliding.

It is not proposed to cry hard times in the work of the Orphanage. There frequently has been difficulty in making ends meet but for years the Institution has continued to grow in usefulness and with that the cost.

The public on whom the Orphanage has depended for funds, has never failed, and the children rescued and cared for, are the reward.

Many homes in the province are in need of the mischievous pranks and happy laughter of youth. In the spring one is considering ways to brighten up the home—in the Orphanage one can find the answer.

Nothing can brighten it quicker than one of these healthy, happy kiddies, lovely and lovable boys and girls. Happy homes make happy communities. The home is the basis, and giving and getting, the province is smiling through."

Hour and a Half Speech

Mr. Bennett spoke an hour and a half in comparison to the four and a half hours occupied by Mr. King. He encountered a good deal of interruption from some Western Liberals but the somewhat astonished silence in which they heard this politically important parallel with the Laurier policy must have warmed his heart indeed.

The Prime Minister was greeted by a volley of desk-pounding and cheering from his supporters. The demonstration lasted some minutes. "It may be a one-man Government, but certainly it has more than one man's support," were the Premier's opening words, accompanied by a glance at his enthusiastic followers.

He at once entered a denial of Mr. King's charge that the September tariff revision had not been mentioned by him in his campaign speeches. He had told the people from one end of the country to the other, he said, that his party would give them legislation dealing not only with unemployment but also to give the men equal opportunity with their competitors.

"There were no promises to special interests," Mr. Bennett declared, employing the term used by Mr. King yesterday, "but a promise to the people from one end of the Dominion to the other."

When Mr. King was defining the word "humbly" yesterday, the Premier said he could not but think that the word was being defined so clearly in order that the people might know how aptly it had been applied to the administration of the past nine years. Free-traders had sat beside protectionists and all had called for national unity.

The Premier grew derisive as he uttered the last two words. Amid thunderous applause he coupled national unity with Mr. King's statement regarding aid from Canada to the British navy, and beyond that with the pre-election roorbach published by La Presse of Montreal last July.

A similar inconsistency was the Opposition leader's declaration regarding the embargo on Russian goods. Who was the head of the Government in 1927 which broke off relations with Russia, Mr. Bennett asked. It was just after discussing the great spiritual things that Mr. King had turned to the possible material loss through the Russian embargo. "That perhaps illustrates the true meaning of the word 'humbly,'" said Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Bennett threw his supporters into a high pitch of excitement as sinking his voice almost to a whisper, he asked what Mr. King's four and a half hour speech was all about.

Where Liberals Failed
If the leaders of the former Government had looked to the future, Canada would have been spared its economic disaster, said the Premier. The Opposition benches roared. Where would the country have been he asked, if it had not been for the Fall session of Parliament? How many men on half pay or out of work before July 28 were now working full time, he asked.

Mr. Bennett asserted that more than 200,000 men had been given employment by reason of the work of the Fall session. "Conditions now had as they were," he said "are not comparable to what they would have been if we had not taken action when we did."

He strongly contradicted Mr. King's allegation that this was a one-man government in which the Premier acted without consulting his colleagues. "I doubt if there has been for years a government in which relations inter-se have been more harmonious," he asserted. Those behind him applauded, with the cabinet ministers joining enthusiastically.

As regards the number of portfolios held by himself he held one more than Mr. King had as Prime Minister. As to the finance portfolio, the reasons he gave for retaining it at the Fall session were the reasons why he held it still. He had made certain very definite promises to the country as regards fiscal policy. After acceding to office he had gathered certain information here and at the Imperial Conference regarding matters in various parts of the Empire.

"When the conference was adjourned," he continued, "I believed it was desirable, rather than endeavor to hand over to someone else the knowledge I had gained, the information that had come to me, that even though it might involve greater toll than I felt at my age to undertake, it was my duty to carry on until that conference was ended. And with the help of Providence I propose to do that. That is all I can say in that respect."

Parallel to Laurier
Mr. Bennett turned to the main point of his speech regarding the Imperial Conference. He approached it by quoting Richard Jebb the historian of the conference, as saying that Mr. Bennett in 1930 "offered no more and no less" than Sir Wilfred Laurier had offered in 1902. Sir Wilfred's preferential offer, Mr. Jebb wrote, was still lying on the table.

Moreover, he quoted Sir Wilfred as telling the conference of 1902 that if the other countries and the colonies were not prepared to accept Canada's offer, then Canada should deem itself free to take whatever action the circumstances warranted.

The English press, with one exception, said Mr. Bennett had secured

As a reply to the financial barrage fired by Mr. King, Mr. Bennett quoted figures showing that taxation under the King Government had steadily risen until it touched the highest peak in the country's history in 1929. "Less taxes have been imposed in the last eight months in the past 10 years," he declared. The Liberals laughed.

Turning to trade figures, he asserted that from Aug. 1, 1930, to Feb. 28, 1931, Canada sold to Great Britain 90 million bushels of wheat compared to 65 million bushels sold during the same seven months last year. He admitted that the wheat sold under his Government brought only $87,000,000 compared to the $88,000,000 brought by the lesser amount of wheat sold from Aug. 1, 1929 to Feb. 23, 1931.

In an interchange with John Vallance (Liberal, South Battleford) Mr. Bennett asserted that it was the wheat sold in England by Russia last fall which knocked down the price. Mr. Vallance interrupted so frequently that Mr. Bennett finally appealed to the speaker to maintain order. "These mutterings of discontent with the truth are not new at all," the Premier commented. "They are as old as time."

While he was in England last Fall, Mr. Bennett said 200,000,000 bushels of Russian wheat were offered on the British market. All did not reach the English market but more than 60,000,000 bushels of it had, he declared.

With a copy of the official report of the Imperial Conference in his hand, Mr. Bennett turned to Mr. King's charges regarding Empire relations. He first of all swept aside charges by asserting that he had told the people of Canada in the election campaign and in Parliament that he was going to conference to secure "reciprocal preferences."

Slapping the blue-book with his free hand, Mr. Bennett emphatically asserted that when Mr. King compared his conference proposals to the way of China, it showed that the Opposition leader either had not read the report of his speech at the conference or else had deliberately misinterpreted it. Amid booming applause he asserted that no Canadian worthy of the name could have said less than he at the conference. He read where he had specifically stated that no attempt should be made to exclude from the Empire market the goods of other countries.

Other Dominions Agree
Reading excerpts from the speeches of other Dominion Premiers at the conference who had agreed with him that the principal of preference must first be accepted, Mr. Bennett charged that Mr. King by interpreting these speeches otherwise, had deliberately endeavored to make next Fall's conference here a failure.

Mr. Bennett pointed out that the suggestion of quotas as an alternative to his own proposal had been considered at the conference. It was decided that for lack of information this subject should be left until the resumption of the conference at Ottawa. Mr. Bennett read the statement he had made assuring the conference that Canada was prepared to consider a quota scheme.

"I am content to leave myself to the judgment of the House and country," said Mr. Bennett, "as to whether or not the attitude taken by Canada was not the attitude that was taken by the representatives of every one of the Dominions represented at the conference."

"Some of them spoke in terms somewhat stronger than I used with respect to the desirability, nay, the necessity of immediate action being taken by the Government of the United Kingdom to change its attitude on some of these questions."

As to his manner of presentation, an observer not a delegate had declared his 17-minute speech there to be clear and incisive. The Liberals laughed, "Howard Ferguson," they suggested in chorus as the name of this observer.

"No it was not," Mr. Bennett replied. "I can only say if any honorable gentleman opposite ever approached him in brains or capacity, he would be well endowed."

Perfect Real Estate
FLORA, Ill., March 19—Perfect titles to real estate are rare things according to Attorney George W. Lackey, who recently uncovered his first correct title in 30 years abstract of titles experience.

The discovery was brought to light in the settlement of the estate of a Robert F. Jones, who died about a year ago. The title is to 40 acres of property near here. It includes three perfect papers all of which were on file, according to Lackey.

In explaining the scarcity of perfect titles to real estate Lackey said that the cause to record patents was the cause.

pressed gratitude that he had endured the day of platitudes, that finally some one had put the issue plainly. "There was not talk there of severing relations," Mr. Bennett added. He refuted Mr. King's assertion that the late Government had lifted the cattle embargo, claiming that credit should go to Sir Robert Borden and others associated with him. As to coercion, Mr. Bennett asserted that English wheat producers were losing five pounds per acre under the present British fiscal policy. "The English producers," he said, "is crying against foreign wheat. He is crying against Russian imports."

Prestige Never Higher
Contrary to Mr. King's view, Canada's prestige in England never was higher.

As to election promises of improvement in conditions the Government was implementing its pledges as quickly as possible.

"It cannot be done in eight months," he said. "It never was suggested that it would be. But the Government will continue to give effect to its convictions with regard to these subjects."

As an example of the former administration's foresight was its treaties with New Zealand, Australia and France. The New Zealand muddle had resulted in a condition where relations between the two countries were now so strained it would be difficult to see them worse.

Every business man knew why the Government had raised the tariff last Fall before sending its delegation to the Imperial Conference. It would have been impossible to go to England and "bargain or make a deal" with the tariffs as they had been. Mr. King had deplored bargaining. Yet what was England's present relation with the Argentine but a direct bargain made by the British ambassador to the Argentine.

Mr. Bennett concluded with the assertion that there would be no driving of legislation at this session. He welcomed full discussion of every measure. But he did not propose he said, to put up with the tactics adopted at the special session by certain Western Opposition members whose only object had been to wear down the patience of Ministers.

WINS BATTLE

Tuesday. The passengers remained on the train during that time.

The first night they slept on the train in a second class car which was really a converted tourist car and received their food supplies from a farm house.

Owing to the breaking of a hose the steam heat went out of commission but fortunately the tourist car was heated with a stove at each end and the passengers although chilly for a time were very thankful for the heat they received. As there were no blankets or bedding, most of them slept in their overcoats. After reaching Tormentine they boarded the car ferry about 11:30 on Thursday morning, the steamer leaving shortly after. About half way across after slow progress the steamer was finally held up by the ice and remained stationary for several hours.

Sometime after midnight she got free of the jam and docked about three o'clock this morning. They slept on lounges and settees, being provided with pillows and blankets.

At the present time there are a large number of cars scattered on the various sidings throughout the Province. At Tormentine refrigerator cars and cars of general merchandise consigned for various islands points are held up.

The tie-up has caused serious inconvenience to local business men who are receiving articles of merchandise by express, members of the Transportation Committee of the Board of Trade state. Perishable articles have been held up at Tormentine, are late for the market, and it is not known in what condition they will arrive. The present situation shows the value of air mail service to the Province, as it is possible to make winter flights from Moncton except in the case of a snowstorm. It is thought that in a few years a large number of passengers may be able to travel in the same way.

IN MEMORIAM
WILLIAM SUTHERLAND MCINTYRE
The news of the sudden passing of the late William Sutherland McIntyre, of Montague, which occurred in the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal, on Thursday, the twelfth, was received with deep regret by all who knew him.

The deceased, who was a student in medicine at McGill University, had been enjoying excellent health until about a week before his death when he contracted a slight cold. A few days later complications developed, and it soon became apparent that he had no chance of recovery, notwithstanding the fact that he was under the care of the most skilled physicians.

The late Mr. McIntyre was a son of the late J. D. McIntyre, and of Mrs. McIntyre of Montague who survives him. He is also survived by four brothers and one sister, James, George and Dr. Preston, all residing in Montague; Dr. Heath, of Charlottetown, and Mary, Mrs. R. S. Goss, of Nashville, Tennessee.

The remains arrived in Montague on Saturday evening, accompanied by Dr. Preston McIntyre, brother of the deceased. They were conveyed to the home of his mother. The funeral was from the United Church on Monday, the sixteenth, and interment in the new cemetery at Montague.

The service was conducted by the Rev. John Sterling, assisted by four other clergymen, the Rev. Mr. Armstrong, Rev. Mr. Gibson, Rev. Mr. Sinclair, and the Rev. Mr. Waterworth. Very beautiful and impressive music was rendered by the choir and male quartet.

The pall bearers were six local friends of the deceased, namely, Messrs. David L. Mathieson, George R. Thompson, Allison McLean, Harry Younker, Cecil Hynes and Ethan Stewart.

The Rev. Mr. Sterling, in the course of his eloquent and appropriate service, paid tribute to the memory of the father of the deceased. He also paid a high tribute to the sterling qualities of "Billie" who he affectionately referred to him, who had been taken while on the very threshold of a promising career.

The late Mr. McIntyre had pursued his studies at Prince of Wales College, Dalhousie University and McGill University and at the latter in-

Silver Foxes Win Second Section 5-0

Trounce Queen Hotel In Fast Clean Exhibition Of Hockey.

The Levin Fur Co.'s Silver Foxes won the second section of the Junior League by defeating the Queen Hotel last night after the Abegweits-Amherst game by the score of 5 to nil. The Queen Hotel having won the first section, these same two teams will play off Monday evening for the Kelly and MacInnis trophy.

The winner of the trophy will play off in the near future, if present plans materialize, with Jack Ingraham's Junior Moncton Athletics for the Junior Hockey Title of the Maritime.

G. Whitlock and Stewart, dynamite forwards of the Levinites by their fast and neat combination, accurate shooting, and quick work around the nets accounted for four goals. The other Levin forwards although not in the scoring column were big cogs in the game. Ferguson, MacKie and Fraser "bodied" like big fellows and O'Neil in the cage turned in a fine exhibition.

The Queens never gave up trying and up until the last minute of play were endeavoring to break through for counters.

drew him out and scored on an open net. Five minutes later from a mixup Stewart circles Queens' net and pokes in the rubber.

Eight minutes later Stewart shot from left wing and caught Reardon napping, the puck going in between his skates.

Two minutes before bell G. Whitlock took puck from face off, circled Queens' net shot and scored on his own rebound.

Third Period
About half way through the period Whitlock scored on a neat pass from Stewart.

Abegweits And Ramblers Play Drawn Game

(BY "TEC")
wared every call sent out—and they had to in order to hold the Nova Scotians. "Hickey" Nicholson was in great shape last night—"shades of Campbellton," and although he failed to score on numerous brilliant break-aways, he was nevertheless outstandingly effective on almost every attack. Squarebriggs too, was very much in the limelight, on every sortie, Johnny, the play-maker nursed the much abused rubber to within scoring position only to be baffled by the Amherst defense, or a good stop by McDonald.

"Chick" Williams, was a little off last night, due to an injured shoulder sustained in the Campbellton game. Williams played hard hockey all the way, but being marked by the Amherst forwards, was another great handicap. He was forced to leave the game in the last period.

Walter Lawlor made his appearance on the local lineup last night, but the long lay-off and painful injury he received earlier in the season slowed this great little centre man up considerably.

Doucette, of Bathurst, working on the Abbie forward line, was great throughout. He easily lived up to all the good things said about him this winter. The other members of the team turned in a great game, and had they been going as good all winter, perhaps a different page would have been written in the Island book of hockey.

Game Tonight Likely
If the Amherst hockeyists remain over the week end, they will meet the Abegweits again tonight—game starting at 9 o'clock.

Amherst, by their great defensive play, showed the fans last night just how they kept rubber from frequenting their nets too often this winter. In "Bubbles" McDonald, they have a great goalie, and Cormier and Elderkin out in front—well they look mighty sweet to the writer—"believe it or not." The front line, Dalton and Fraser, White, Chapman and Easterbrooks—they're there with the berries—bucketfuls.

Truly, Les Bickerton has a great tribe—and I don't mean maybe. The good of Abegweits. Led by Bill Gillespie, these boys just about answered stiffness, had almost completed his fourth year in the study of medicine and surgery, when death overtook him.

He was a young man of ability, a great student and his personality and thoughtfulness for others made for him many true friends, wherever he was known. He possessed in a marked degree, the qualifications necessary to fit him admirably for a life of service in his chosen profession, had he been spared to reach his objective.

The respect and esteem in which the departed was held was evidenced by the large concourse of people who attended the funeral and by the many and beautiful floral tributes.

The sympathy of a wide circle of friends goes out to the family in their sad bereavement, especially to the mother, who has borne her sorrow with such courage and fortitude also to the sister, Mrs. Goss, who unfortunately was unable to come home owing to family ties and to the difficulties in travelling at this season of the year.

ANGLER CATCHES RARE FISH
OSHKOSH, Wis., March 19—R. M. Dunham, who has been fishing for nearly half a century, is seeking a name for one of his latest acquisitions—a member of the yellow perch species, colored white on the belly, and a clear azure blue, with black stripes on its back. According to Dunham, such coloring common as it may be in tropical waters, is a rare characteristic of fish in North America.

—SAD BEREAVEMENT—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie J. DesRoches of Summerside was saddened on Wednesday when the angel of death took their little daughter, Josephine, to her heavenly home. Miss Josephine was only 12 years old and had only been ill for eight days from spinal meningitis. She was a bright and lovable child and will be sorely missed in the home and by her companions. There are left to mourn besides her sorrowing parents, nine sisters and three brothers, namely: Mrs. Frank Morrison, Halifax, N. S.; Dorothy, Philomene, Hilda, Lumina, Florence, Dina, Irene, Verda, Raymond, Francis and Eric, to all of whom much sympathy is expressed. The funeral took place on Friday morning at St. John the Baptist Church at Miscouche, Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Martin Monaghan. Interment was in the R. C. cemetery adjoining the church. The pallbearers were the deceased child's friends in Miscouche, where she had lived with her parents until quite recently.

Hemorrhoids
Dr. Chase's Ointment
It is a serious matter to have piles and one person in four has them at one time or another. The annoyance and distress is great. It is difficult to obtain lasting relief. So much so that a surgical operation may be considered necessary. That is unless your physician is familiar with Dr. Chase's Ointment for many doctors recommend this treatment to their patients.
For nearly half a century Dr. Chase's Ointment has been the never failing relief for itching, bleeding and protruding piles. It is now very generally known by the medical profession, and the public generally, as the standard treatment for this torturing ailment.
Ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Ointment for "users are boosters" in this case. Relief comes quickly and you can't tell the ointment at any drug store.
