DR. KOO BLUSHED

Although Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese ambassador at London, has a smile on occasion and a perpetual twinkle of the eyes, London newspapermen assert that they had never seen him blush until the other day, at a Savoy luncheon, London. Then he went absolutely red as he listened to a speech made by Gottfried Keller, president of the Foreign Press association, whose guest of honour he was. One account adds: "The recital of Dr. Koo's distinctions in public life by the president was an awe-inspiring one. Apart from serving his own government in several ministerial offices, he is a doctor five times over. At the lunch all these successes were very naturally, traced to his start in life as a journalist."

When you buy terry cloth or Turkish towels a ... with "two-ply ground warp" according to the American institute of Laundering, which is the testing authority for professional laundries and textile companies throughout the U. S. Because, they report, this gives far-better resistance to the customary lengthwise strain during usage than does a single-ply construction. It is also wise to remember that the thicker and softer the pile, the greater the absorbency.

For sports are used such combinations as plain gray woollen for topcoat and skirt with gray and clay check jacket and clay accessories, or plain bright blue woollen for jacket and skirt with pillarbox-red rayon shirt.

Dorothy Dix Says—

PARENTS UNWITTINGLY CAUSE MARRIAGES TO GO ON THE ROCKS

By Constantly Criticizing In-Laws, Mothers Plant Suspicions In Children's Minds

It is natural, nay inevitable, that parents should not see eye to eye with their children when their youngsters select their mates. Mother and Father think that John must have been suffering from a brainstorm when he picked out the fluffy-ruffles little sweetie he did for a wife, instead of a sober and serious-minded young woman, with a bit of money of her own, who would have made him such a desirable helpmate. And whatever Mary saw in that lanky Jones boy that made her elect to spend the balance of her life cooking dinners and washing dishes for him, is a mystery they never fathom.

Of course, it is not strange that parents do not understand why their children marry the ones they do. The children themselves do not know why they did it. The man only knows that out of all the women in the world some particular girl happened to hit his fancy and he up and popped the question. To others she may have looked plain of face and seemed mediocre in intellect, with no charms to set her apart from millions of her sisters, but to him she was, for the time being, at least, the ONLY ONE.

The girl only knows that some lad came whistling down the street and she got up and followed him, though she knew he was leading her down a road that was going to be rough traveling. To others he was just a commonplace boy, with poor prospects and about as much allure as a ham sandwich, but she saw in him a Fairy Prince and her heart's desire.

PARENTS CAN BREAK A MARRIAGE

But while parents have little to do with making their children's matches, they have a great deal to do with wrecking their marriages, and in many and many a divorce case Father and Mother should be cited as the co-respondent instead of some glamorous blond or good-looking gigolo.

The success of a marriage does not depend upon the beauty or character or efficiency of the man or woman to whom John or Mary is married, but upon John or Mary being satisfied with her or him. As long as John thinks Mary Miss America or an angel or the world's greatest manager, or Mary considers John a runner-up for Victor Mature or a second Solomon, all is well and everything is jake. It is only when they are awakened from their love trance and made to see their husband's and wife's imperfection that trouble begins.

And it is a tragic thing that it is parents, oftener than anyone else, who elect themselves to the office of disillusioner. It is they who, almost from the day the bridal couple settle in their new home, begin chipping at its foundation stones with their criticisms and fault-findings until they bring it crashing down upon their children's heads. They don't intend to wreck their children's marriages. They don't plan to separate husbands and wives. They don't even realize that they are responsible for little children being half-orphaned, for hearts being broken, for men and women being embittered, and for the mess of scandal that smears a family.

PICKING ON IN-LAWS

They intended no harm. They were just engaging in what they considered the innocent and legitimate pastime of picking on their in-laws, and they never dreamed of what a dangerous thing it was to do, or of what its consequences might be.

Mama actually thought she was being a good mother when she pointed out all of John's little weaknesses and faults to Mary and warned her to keep her eye on him and not to trust him too blindly, and not to give in to him too much. It was Mother who first made Mary conscious that John's table manners were not Emily Post, and that he talked too much about himself, and that he had too flambuoyant a taste in neckties.

It was Mother who suggested that John should be making more money than he did and play less golf, and who said that, of course, there wasn't anything in it for Mary to worry over, but someone had seen him at lunch with his secretary.

Left alone Mary would have been satisfied with John as he was and gone on blindly worshipping him, but once Mother had opened her eyes to his imperfections and made her suspicious and jealous, everything was over but the trip to Reno.

And John never would have found out that Mary was a poor housekeeper and that she peeled the potatoes too thick and put things in the garbage can that should have gone into the soup pot, and that she played too much bridge, and went to too many parties, and had too many outside interests if Mother hadn't called his attention to it, but when once he perceived these faults they shut out all his vision of how pretty and sweet and jolly and easy to live with she was. And another marriage was on the dump.

The moral of all of which is that no matter what parents think of their in-laws, mum's the word.

A Morning Smile

ANSWERED

He sat mooning over his cup of coffee and making sheep's eyes at the pretty waitress until she was fed up.

"Is there anything else you would like, sir?" she asked distantly, as a hint that he could move on.

"Just a soft word," he sighed.

"Putty!" replied the waitress as she whisked the cup off the table and tripped away.

EXPLAINED

The captain, taking inspection, noticed Private Brown had no tooth brush.

"Where's your tooth brush?" he demanded.

"Here, sir", said Private Brown, producing a large scrubbing brush.

"You don't mean to tell me you can get that thing into your mouth?" shouted the captain, angrily.

"No, sir," replied Brown, without changing his expression. "I take my teeth out."

WHY NOT HAVE
BABY SLEEP THROUGH NIGHT

YOU and your baby both need sleep. There is a sure and easy way to get it. Let Mrs. B—, Jr., of Winona, Ontario, tell you in her own words: "Night after night, as soon as we would get settled in bed, 'Baby' would start crying. . . . Baby's Own Tablets changed all this. What a blessed relief."

In no sense are these "sleeping" tablets. They contain no opiates or stupefying drugs and are absolutely harmless. But they promote healthful sleep by promptly making the ill baby well. The well baby sleeps soundly.

Baby's Own Tablets bring quick relief from teething troubles, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic, simple croup and colds. Try them. 25 cents. Your money refunded if they are not effective.

KING'S PUDDING

Take what you have of prosperity,
no matter how little it be;
Raised with the leaven of thankfulness, twill increase to full three times three.
Then out in some hospitality and a quantity of good will;
A goodly portion of cheerfulness gives a pleasanter flavor still
A... over it well with charity,
—be sure and use plenty of that
For lacking this one ingredient, the whole will be tasteless and flat.
And spice it with fun and merriment, and with many a timely jest,
And bake it on the family heart—
of all places that is the best.
When served with pans of kindness
'tis a pudding fit for a king.
For it cannot be bought or paid for; it is far too precious a thing.

Dishes and pans in which eggs have been cooked or served will wash more easily if soaked first in cold water. Hot water causes eggs to harden and stick to the dish.

COLLARS FOR SHOES MAKE ONE PAIR SERVE FOR MANY

Collars for shoes have made their appearance in London shops. These novel and attractive shoes collars are designed specially to enable women to make one pair of plain court shoes take the place of several. Made of leather, lizard skin or a strong, durable tweed such as Harris, many of these collars are studded with brass buttons, regimental badges or ornamental lacings. They are carried out in a wide variety of colors.

Fitting snugly over the arch, they are fastened under the instep and, being detachable, a woman can, by judical ringing of changes, make any one court-type pair of shoes match different tweed or leather handbags, as well as ensembles.

DON'T FORGET YOUR BEST FRIEND ON HER DAY

It's a wise child who knows his own mother's weakness — especially around Mother's Day — when devoted sons and daughters are eager to give "something different," something which will appeal to her sense of luxury for the few moments she has to herself after a tiring day of canteen work —a few moments to make her feel utterly feminine. It requires only a slight knowledge of feminine psychology for the wise child to realize that his mother has a special warm spot in her heart for a gift which flatters her and appeals to her vanity—a scented bath oil to make her morning bath a delightful ritual, or a gay irrepressible fragrance to make her spirits soar.

To be sure of winning smiles of approval on May 10, let her find on her dressing table a fragrant gift set. A travel kit is a very handsome gift, attractive and practical.

For these stirring times, when mother's busy days are spent away from home, doing her bit to help this handy "cosmetic purse" is perfect to have along for a quick freshening-up. It is supplied with all the essentials for a day or week-end away from home—creams, lotions, powder, rouge and lipstick.

For a simple inexpensive gift to delight every mother a charm box will meet her requirements in an excitingly compact way. It contains three beauty preparations each serving a purpose of its own —face cream, make-up, foundation and face powder.

A little olive oil mixed with dry peanut butter will make it spread more easily.

Use your favorite recipe for cream puffs and fill them with softened cream cheese. These are delicious served with a crisp fruit salad on a warm night.

All the early flowering shrubs should be trimmed after they have ceased blooming. Do not leave this work until next spring. This applies to spiraeas weigelas, syringas and lilacs. The way to trim them is to get right down to the bottom of the old stalks and cut them out entirely, leaving the new wood to do the flowering. Nothing is accomplished by going around with the pruning shears and nipping off the ends of the branches.

Lovely Glass Gardens Are Easy to Grow

Cake Pan Makes "Lake" Bottom

Hills, lakes, trees and flowers in a glass box—it's easy to have a miniature of your favorite view.

With panes of glass and tape, or fish bowl, a terrarium is easy to have. Loamy soil covered with green moss makes hills and valleys. For trees use tiny spruce seedlings and budding twigs of forsythia.

In the humid atmosphere of a terrarium the forsythia flowers quickly and lasts for weeks.

To make the beautiful lake with its winding rill, fill a cake pan with water and fit it at the bottom of the terrarium. Over it place a sheet of tin, as our sketch shows, from which a "lake" shape was cut with an old pair of scissors.

You may also make desert scenes, using cacti and sedums, and place a tiny donkey and Mexican of pottery in their midst. Many lovely glass gardens—in jugs and jars—grow a single plant to perfection, a begonia, orchid, gardenia.

Our 32-page booklet shows how to make all kinds of terrariums, grow pine and palm, cactus and orchid, African violet, begonia, croton and many more flowering and foliage plants. Also has directions for dish gardens.

Send 20c in coins for your copy of "Glass Gardens and Novelty Indoor Gardens" to The Guardian Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and the Name of booklet.

NEW YORK STYLE LETTER

FROM
ANNE M. GRIFFIN
Peerless Fashion Service
121 West 19th Street

The throngs who drank in Van Gogh's sun-drenched canvases of Arles; who sought to unfathom the surrealist fantasies of Dali and Miro; they're flocking to the Metropolitan Museum to see "the painter of painters," Rembrandt. And they're carrying away with them a sharp impression of the great Netherlander's control of contrasts ... of sunlight playing upon florid flesh tones of candle-glow on earthen pottery and polished brass and — most striking of all — of crisply laundered ruff collars rising dramatically from shadowy garments and dusky backgrounds.

Too challenging to pass unnoticed by those prime sleuths, the seekers after fresh fashion inspiration, the vivid value of light lingerie against dark fabrics has been exploited in the new Spring showings. Watch for frou frous of frilly jabots spilling from the front of dark failles, moires and gabardines. Watch for dark sleeves ending in languid ruching to make hands look extraordinarily delicate and elegent. Watch for dark hats frosted with an unexpected clot of lace or fluted pique.

Soviet victories have stimulated interest in samovar styles. Blouses and skirts distinguished for their diversity of detail are adding a picturesque gaiety to daytime gatherings. We've seen those familiar peasant smocks with self belt to control the fullness and small, embroidery outlined pockets. Copiously shirred blouses decorated with the hand-smocking that is distinctively Slavic shown push-up sleeves and either low square necklines or high Cossack collars. Becoming as can be are the Russian dirndls, with shirring placed under the waist-band for added freedom.
