'Tis Jittery War For Interpreter Of Daily Doings

WASHINGTON, April 1 (CP)—When Kirk Simpson as a young reporter developed a liking for guns, he began a chain of experiences that led him through one war as a volunteer reporter watching a Washington reporter watch his country's expanding defense drive...

and trenches and cooties, a war could be pinned to the map and would stay there for days. Now a war interpreter scarcely gets his war nailed to the map with bright yellow and amber pins before it leaps somewhere else.

A DIFFERENT WAR

When censorship restrictions hampered the flow of news in the last war, it became Simpson's job to furnish analytical interpretations of events on the active war fronts. "It was not a very difficult assignment," he said. "There were big scale maps plenty to memorize. They showed the battle terrain in detail. Every mention of the capture of so-many-meter-high France would be plotted on the map and its possible or probable effect on that particular battle was reasonably obvious."

Bruins Slight Favorites For Crucial Game with Toronto Leafs Tonight

BOSTON, April 2 (CP)—Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs arrived back in Boston to wind up in a sudden-death game tomorrow night, their four-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series that is deadlocked at three games each. Bruins fans, who read eagerly of the way in which Clapper and company came back from the brink of elimination to square the battle in Toronto last night, promptly installed their heroes as favorites...
