A WOMAN'S PROMINENCE

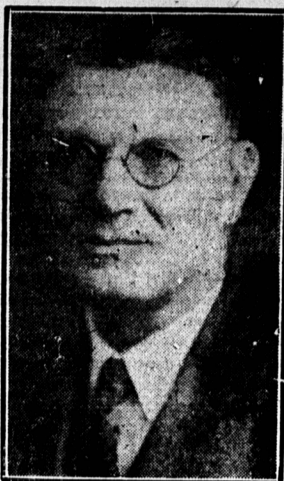

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 29.—(By The Canadian Press)—The Tribune says editorially on the "Women are Persons" decision:—Few will quarrel with this judgment: But it should not have been necessary to take an expensive appeal to London to obtain it. It was a woman, Queen Victoria, who nominally gave Canada the British North America Act in the first place. Surely the same act which took no exception to women holding seats in the House of Commons did not intend to discriminate where the Senate was concerned? We know now, on high authority, that it didn't. But it has taken quite a lot of money to find it out.

However the lawyers doubtless enjoyed their little trip across the Atlantic. The Edmonton Journal says:—The chief credit is given by one of their number, Mrs. McClung, to Magistrate Murphy, who we are told made the discovery that any five subjects could ask for an interpretation of any point of law and who undertook the labor of bringing the issue to a head.

A REPUTATION OF 30 YEARS IN FUR BUSINESS

A pioneer in the fur business in this Province and one who has maintained a foremost position as fox rancher, buyer and exporter of raw furs is Mr. J. D. Jenkins, of this city. Mr. Jenkins has been buying furs in Charlottetown for the past thirty years; he has seen the very beginning of the industry and has personally handled many of the early skins.

Discussing the early phases of the fur business with a Guardian reporter, Mr. Jenkins said it was curious that among hundreds of red foxes bought in the early days there were no crosses or patches found. He recalls that in 1910, he purchased 350 red foxes at an average price of $3.00. Today's average price for the same quality would be $35.00. In 1910 mink were plentiful here, about 500 being bought at an average price of $2.00. Today's average price would be $25.00. 15,000 muskrats were purchased in 1910 at an average price of 25 cents. The price, which rose in 1911 to $4.00, declined that fall to 50 cents. The present price is between $1.00 and $2.00. He also recalls purchasing a few otters in 1911. This fur-bearer is now extinct in Prince Edward Island, the last one being trapped in 1912 at Riverton by Mr. Hayter, which proved to be a very large dark male.

Naturally one would expect to find Mr. Jenkins with a good selection of silver foxes, and this is true. His Hillcrest Fox Ranch is widely known throughout the trade. When one wants quality and color, it is available to look for the Canadian National Registration letter "J," which is in the right ear of all the Jenkins foxes. Many of the foxes are going to Norway this year, where they have already made a name for themselves.

Beginning November 1st Mr. Jenkins' fur cleaning plant will be in operation and ranchers can have their furs cleaned in an up-to-date cleaner in charge of competent men.

About November 15 a fur buyer from Paris will be in Mr. Jenkins' office and will be in the market for large quantities of silver pelts. Full particulars will appear later. Small furs are purchased by Mr. Jenkins at all seasons, including mink, muskrat, racoon, skunk, weasel, red and patch foxes.

He'll Be There

Some foxmen say you can tell a Prince Edward Island bred fox "by the cut of his jib." This fellow seems to be looking forward to a while of a time at the Fox Show this week.

Although not in robust health for sometime he was able to be around till two weeks before his death when he took suddenly ill and all that kind and loving care could do was of no avail, and on the above mentioned date his soul passed to his eternal reward. He leaves to mourn one daughter Flora in Winnipeg and two sons Joe in Winnipeg and Jerry at home. Perhaps the strongest testimonial of the esteem in which he was held was the large number of friends who followed the remains to St. Charles Church where Rev. L. P. Callaghan sang requiem High Mass. Rev. K. C. MacPherson officiated at the grave. The pall bearers were Angus Gallant, Wm. Ryan, J. J. Burke, Isadore Peters, St. Charles and James MacCormac and Temple Whalen, Rollo Bay. Requiescat in Pace.

The death took place on Oct. 21st. at the home of his son Isaac, of Gilbert White, aged 86. Funeral took place Wednesday to St. Ann's Church.
