—RECEPTION AT SPRING VALLEY—A large number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Caisley, Spring Valley, to tender them a reception following their recent marriage and to welcome Mrs. Caisley to Spring Valley. When all the guests had gathered, Mr. Charles MacLellan was appointed chairman who made a few brief remarks explaining the occasion of this happy gathering and called upon Mrs. Hiram Harrington who read a nicely worded address conveying the good wishes of the community to this popular young couple and the presentation of a purse containing a neat sum of money was made to the bride and groom by Mrs. Alvin Sudsbury and Mrs. Campbell opened the other gifts—as they were the recipients also of several other nice gifts on this occasion. Mr. Caisley made a fitting speech on behalf of himself and his bride expressing his thanks for their good wishes and gifts and hoped they would all visit them again as time went by. The company joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows". Lunch was served later by the ladies and a pleasant evening was spent in dancing to music furnished by Messrs. MacKinnon, Durant and Holmes with guitar accompaniment by Edie Matthews and others who were present. This splendid music is always appreciated. In the wee small hours all departed home after wishing the guests of honor the good wishes of many friends.—V.

Cook-Dystant Wedding

A lovely June wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Trinity United Church Summerside, when the pastor, Rev. John Jarvie, united in marriage Mary Ferne, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dystant, Summerside, to Lieutenant Claude MacDowell Cook of the R.C.A.S.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley B. Cook, Waterville, N.S.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white Faille Taffeta, modelled with high neckline and torso lines, with net applique on yoke and sleeves. Her veil of finger tip length was caught with lillies of the valley. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, gift of the groom. She carried a sheaf of lilies tied with white streamers.

Miss Effie McKay, friend of the bride, played appropriate music for the occasion.

Her sister Edith, who was her only attendant, was gowned in a floor length dress of pale pink sheer, with net juliet cap to match and carried a nosegay of mixed flowers.

Captain Hillard E. Clark of the Army Dental Corps attended the groom.

Ushers were Constables Phillip Carter and Jerry Bradley of the R.C.M.P.

The church was beautifully decorated with tulips and apple blossoms, arranged by girl friends of the bride.

A reception followed immediately after at Mulberry Lodge. Receiving with the bridal couple were the bride's mother, Mrs. Louis Dystant and Mrs. S. B. Cook mother of the groom, Mrs. Harry Silliphant, aunt of the bride and Mrs. James Ramsay presided over the teacups. Assisting in serving were the Misses Helen McLeod, Marion Woodside, Jean Nicholson, Connie Inman and Mrs James Millman.

The bride's mother wore an aqua two-piece dress, corsage of yellow roses with matching accessories. Mrs. Cook wore turquoise dress with corsage of red roses and white accessories.

Among the out of town guests were: Mrs. S. B. Cook, Mrs. Newton Brydon, Mr. Kenneth Taylor, Waterville, N.S.

Later the bride and groom departed on a honeymoon trip to New Brunswick. They expect to reside in Yarmouth, N.S., where the groom is stationed.—S among the troops and they sang again, this time "for he's a jolly good fellow."

His Majesty flew from England in a service plane piloted by Capt. Edward Hedley Fielden, his personal pilot and Captain of the King's flight, who has flown the King many hundreds of thousands of miles.

With him were Sir Archibald Sinclair, Secretary of State for Air, and Sir James Grigg, Secretary of State for War.

A brief communique issued here said "the King is visiting his forces in North Africa. His Majesty welcomed his opportunity of seeing United States and Allied forces with whom his own forces are so closely associated, and of investing Gen. Eisenhower with the insignia of Knight Grand Cross of the order of the Bath."

While the King is absent, it was announced in London five counsellors of state rule over Britain. The five are the Queen; the Duke of Gloucester, his younger brother; the Princess Royal his sister; the Duchess of Fife, his aunt, and the Countess of Southesk, his cousin.

In his first trip to the battle-front, the King inspected the British army in France early in 1940. He crossed the Channel in a destroyer. Thus, this was his second trip out of the United Kingdom since he and the Queen visited Canada and the United States in 1939.

BRACKEN

Mr. Bracken began his day from the Grand Anse home of the mother of Hon. Murdoch McPherson, former Attorney General of Saskatchewan, where he had been an overnight guest. From there he motored to Port Hawkesbury and Mulgrave and then proceeded across the Strait of Canso and on to Antigonish on the mainland.

At Antigonish he went to St. Francis Xavier University, home of the co-operative movement in Nova Scotia, where he was told something of the movement.

A drive of 38 miles brought him to Thorburn and from there he went to Trenton where Mayor Samuel McKinley met him on the main street and Rev. A. J. McDonald read him an address outlining the town's particular problems.

Mr. Bracken questioned members of a group of citizens about local conditions and then went on a tour of the town's steel works, engaged in turning out guns, shells and other munitions of war.

Tonight Mr. Bracken came to this town and addressed an indoor meeting. Later he continued on to Truro to spend the night before starting out tomorrow on a tour of Debert military camp near there. Tomorrow afternoon he will arrive in Halifax.

Mr. Bracken was accompanied by L. W. Fraser, N. S. leader of the Progressive Conservative party, and R. Clifford Levy, provincial secretary. Mr. Fraser spoke briefly at several of the stops.

PRESIDENT

toward the Germans was little more than polite.

Recalling the friendship exhibited by Russia toward Turkey during the Turkish war for independence after the first Great War, Saraeoglu declared, "they stretched their hand to us and we stretched ours to them. This, together with the progressive treaties which were signed between the two nations served steadily to establish relations on a solid basis. At this moment both parties show themselves sincerely attached to these treaties, the high justice of which they both appreciate."

The speech, they said, also indicated that American post-war ideas were exerting influence on Turkey's present policy and her hopes for the future.

"We find between our opinions and American views and the declarations of American statesmen such affinity that we consider them our own," Saracoglu announced.

This similarity of viewpoint, he added, encouraged Turkey "to contribute and participate in all things which, in the post-war period, will have the effect of outlawing war and guaranteeing a law of equality and liberty among men and nations."

With emphasis, the Premier reiterated his declaration of March 17 that Britain and Turkey are bound together by alliance during war and peace.

The two countries are tied together not for a limited period, nor for a limited number of questions—restrained and definite—but for long years and in a vast domain," he said.

His references to Germany were cordial but were accompanied—perhaps by coincidence—by the remark that the Turkish army's strength was largely responsible for the maintenance of Turkey's peace.

He said: "We have signed a treaty of non-aggression and friendship with Germany. Events have proved that this treaty was born of a sincere desire to both parties which exactly corresponds with their essential needs. The pact continues as such to bring its benefits to both parties."

"George Washington Slept Here" Proves Hilarious New Hit

—The story, in brief, has to do with an average American city-reared couple and their endeavors to restore a shambles of a dwelling where George Washington once slept.

The couple, played by Jack Benny and Ann Sheridan, move and are instantly swallowed amidst piles of gravel, falling plaster and decrepit plumbing.

Matters go from bad to worse when they are visited by a rich and eccentric uncle, portrayed by Charles Coburn, whose favor they are forced to court. Add to this an impish nephew whose antics would put Peck's Bad Boy to shame, an impressionable adolescent niece and her jitterbug boy friend, a lethargic caretaker, brilliantly played by Percy Kilbride, with all the time in the world, and you have the ingredients for a story that will play havoc with your laugh machinery.

"George Washington Slept Here" was skillfully directed by William Keighley, who was responsible for such comedy hits as "The Man Who Came To Dinner" and "The Bride Came C.O.D."

The screen play by Everett Freeman, was adapted from the successful New York stage production by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman.

Tojo Mixes

At the same time, Tojo reported that Japanese war production had been "notably augmented" this year, but acknowledged that the national economy must be tailored even more strictly to fit war needs and that "special efforts would be unavoidable" to "ensure the national food supply."

For the benefit of home morale, Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, Navy Minister, also appeared before the diet, and on paper again "destroyed" allied fleets.

To date in the war, he asserted, according to the Tokyo radio, the Navy has shot down or destroyed 5,214 allied planes, sunk 13 battleships, 11 aircraft carriers, 55 cruisers, 56 destroyers, 128 submarines and 69 other warcraft "besides damaging numerous others," and also has sunk 369 merchantmen totalling 2,250,000 tons.

These figures bore no resemblance to the facts as announced in allied communiques.

Japanese losses were listed as 878 planes, one battleship, three aircraft carriers, three cruisers, 19 destroyers, 11 submarines, 13 other warcraft "and 98 ships employed by the Imperial Navy totalling 352,000 tons."

The Admiral declared that the "decisive stage is fast approaching" in the southwest Pacific, and disclosed that the Japanese combined fleet now is commanded by Admiral Mineichi Koga.

Sanatorium Movement Strongly Indorsed By Local Service Clubs

It is remarkable how enthusiastically and unanimously all of the "Service" clubs on Prince Edward Island have been backing up the movement for the immediate provision of greatly increased bed accommodation at the Provincial Sanatorium.

The probable explanation is that while the scourge of tuberculosis with its prolonged suffering and excessive death rate has been ever present from end to end of the Province for many years it is only through comparatively recent educational processes that the general public has come to realize that tuberculosis is definitely a controlable disease and may with care and a moderate expenditure of public funds be practically stamped out.

In Canada the death rate has already been definitely reduced and some of the provinces have already made very considerable progress towards its extinction. The progress made bears a very striking ratio to the number of sanatoria beds available for the active cases.

Prince Edward Island has made some progress in the reduction of the tuberculosis death rate but it is now becoming generally recognized that there is not enough sanatorium accommodation here to adequately deal with the situation.

Hence the present activity and interest of the "service" clubs as the need for action comes to the attention of their members.

The Summerside Y's Men's Club passed a resolution on April 29th last as follows: "Resolved that the Y's Men's Club of Summerside place itself on record as being strongly in favor of an extension to the present Prince Edward Island Sanatorium to provide an additional one hundred beds and that the extension to the present building be started at once so that the extra accommodation may be available this coming fall."

The Rotary Club, The Gyro Club, The Kinsmen Club and the Y's Men of Charlottetown all unanimously adopted strong resolutions at meetings in May all calling for an increase in Sanatorium accommodation.

The Rotary Club resolution stresses the fact that the inadequate provision of beds at the Sanatorium "causes many deaths outside the institution, helping to spread the disease and that many cases would have been complete cures if they could have been looked after in the early stages at the Sanatorium."

The Kinsmen Club resolution points out that because of lack of accommodation roughly fifty per cent of the active cases in the Province receive no proper care and hospitalization.

The Gyro Club resolution setting forth the inadequacy of the bed accommodation states that the tubercular patients not properly hospitalized and isolated constitute a direct menace to the public health of Prince Edward Island and also points out that those patients not at present hospitalized are entitled by christian standards to an equal opportunity for recovery of their health as those hospitalized.

The resolution of the Charlottetown Y's Men recites the conditions and asks that "the Government of P. E. I. undertake to make available the necessary accommodation at the Provincial Sanatorium as soon as possible."

Summer Passenger Services Restricted

MONTREAL, Que., June 16 —In accordance with instructions of the Transport Controller, it has now become necessary to restrict summer passenger services operated by the Canadian National Railways, C. W. Johnston, General Passenger Traffic Manager of the National system, said in a statement issued here today..

"The government has announced that holiday and week-end travel must be curtailed and that holidays should commence and terminate in the mid-week," Mr. Johnstone said "Throughout Canada heavy pressure continues for sleeping car accommodation to such an extent that it is impossible for the railway to meet all demands and it is absolutely necessary to give first choice on available space to military and semi-military traffic. As additional trains cannot be provided and in order to secure sleeping car space, it is necessary for passengers to travel during the mid-week and to limit the week-end travel".

For the accommodation of the public, the usual summer services were shown in time table folders and other publications, but as these cannot now be operated it is suggested by Mr. Johnston that the public consult Canadian National ticket agents so that their travel plans may be properly adjusted.

ANNUAL MEETING

The adjourned Annual Business Meeting of the Charlottetown Driving Park and Provincial Exhibition Association will be held in the Secretary's office on Monday morning, June 28th, 1943, at 10 o'clock.

Interesting Display At Notre Dame

A most attractive and interesting exhibition of fancy work, sketching, painting, and handicraft of various kinds by the pupils of Notre Dame opened at the convent last night.

Included in the display are attractive pieces of hand-painted china, cups and saucers, bridge sets, jewel cases, pitchers, cake plates and a tea set, all beautifully executed. On display in the art studio is an exhibition of leather work including artistically designed purses, bill folds, strap purses, etc.

There are also lovely serving trays with bases done in oil painting and handles either in brass or pewter work. There is also a great variety of hand painted wooden plaques and an artistically hand decorated hors' d' oeuvre dish. Oil paintings, water colours, pastels, sketches from life, free hand drawings in charcoal, lamps and mirrors decorated in pewter are also displayed. Children's bed room lamps made of hand painted wooden cutouts are an unique feature of the display as well as pretty ornamental sea shells decorated with oil paintings.

From the neatly embroidered dolls' pillows made by the tiny tots in grade one to the charming evening dress, complete suits, dresses blouses, aprons, etc., made by the girls of the senior grades the sewing shows outstanding skill as well as the thoroughness of the instruction given by the Sisters of Notre Dame.

The pupils have a collection of knitted sweaters to be donated to the refugee children, all showing excellent work and studious care.

Pillow slips monogramed in satin stitch with beautifully embroidered designs are attracting many favorable comments.

The pretty cushions embroidered in patriotic design are also worthy of note.

Project books on religious subjects and health posters also form part of the display.

A map of Africa showing the advance of the allied armies on the way to victory attracts much attention.

An artistic spelling chart with patriotic design showing the success of each pupil in her year's work in that subject will also be of interest to many parents.

The exhibits are on display today and Friday and the general public is cordially invited to inspect them.

Mrs. Kate Aitken Speaks On Conservation

"This isn't a thrift campaign for the saving of money but rather for the saving of hours of manpower, production and machinery, which are more acutely needed in this country than are dollars and cents," said Mrs. Kate Aitken, supervisor of conservation for the Consumer Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in explaining the work of her department. Mrs. Aitken arrived in Charlottetown last night.

Today she will confer with the local retailers and will also address a meeting of the Women's Regional Advisory Committee with a view to organizing "Re-make Centres" all over the Province. She will also make arrangements for the "Remake Revue," which will be staged in Charlottetown on June 30.

The purpose of organizing these re-make centres is to teach women who know how to sew a seam, how to go still further and revamp old clothes into snappy attractive outfits for growing children and for themselves. "Seventy-nine per cent of our people have clothes worth making over," Mrs. Aitken said "and statistics show that only one per cent of women do their own sewing although fifty per cent can wield a needle pretty well." Stressing the necessity of cutting out non essential buying of new yardage, Mrs. Aitken emphasized the terrific demands on production in this country, which is not a textile country, in order to maintain its service men in uniforms, and its workers in essential industries in suitable clothing. Since September 1939 this country has produced 55,000 miles of cloth for the army, the same for the R.C.A.F. and approximately 30,000 miles for the navy. Last year workers in war plants wore out three and a half-million pairs overalls, the same number of workshirts and one million pairs of slacks.

The two million suits of clothes left behind by the 700,000 Canadian men now in uniform present wonderful opportunities for re-making for wife or junior, she pointed out.

The growing scarcity of children's clothing presents a problem, which can be coped with only by the miracle of making old things new. Last year in Canada there were 40,000 babies as compared with 22,000 in 1941 and 19,000 in 1940. This gives some indication of the higher consumption of children's clothing.

The boy was riding to Montague on the machine, which was driven by his father, when he was thrown from the seat and under the wheel when it hit a rock on the Commercial road near Whim road corner. The accident happened so unexpectedly that Mr. MacDonald could not save his son. The wheel of the 15,000-pound machine passed over or close to his head, but apparently the soft ground provided a cushion that softened the weight. He regained consciousness in the hospital some time after being rushed there for treatment. The boy talked with his parents for a while before passing away. Besides his sorrowing parents, he leaves to mourn one older brother, James.
