Grading Stations For Fox Fur Pelts

In order to provide service for those wishing to have fox pelts graded in accordance with the regulations respecting the grading of standard silver and black fox pelts, recently established under the Live Stock and Live Stock Products Act of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, grading stations are now established at convenient locations across Canada.

The Regulations require that all fox pelts produced on a ranch in Canada which are intended for export must be graded, according to the standards set forth in the regulations. In the case of pelts for domestic consumption, grading is not compulsory but many producers and marketing agencies are taking advantage of the grading service for fox pelts marketed in Canada as well as those for export. At present, it is contemplated that the grading service for pelts to be sold in the domestic market will be available only during the winter months.

Stations have been located as follows:

P.E.I., Summerside—Dominion Experimental Fox Ranch

N.S., Bridgetown—Nova Scotia Fur Breeders Association

N.B., Moncton—Room 348, Department of Agriculture, Dominion Public Building

P.Q., Quebec—274 Boulevard Cheerest

P.Q., Montreal—Room 628, Dominion Department of Agriculture, 400 Youville Square.

Ont., Toronto—A. F. Schnaufer Bldg., 39 McMurrich St.

Man., Winnipeg—Room 632, Department of Agriculture, Dominion Public Building

Alta., Edmonton—Fish and Game Branch, Provincial Department of Agriculture

Alta., Calgary—335 - 7th Avenue West.

These stations are in charge of a competent fur grader. Producers and others having fox pelts to grade may get in touch with the Dominion Government Fur Grader at any of these points in order to make the necessary arrangements.

Undaunted Women Go on With Christmas Preparations

By ADELAIDE KERR
Associated Press Staff Writer

While you are whizzing around on Christmas shopping tours, wondering what you are going to buy for John and Lala and Sue, most of Santa Claus' henchmen in the shops already know.

Santa's first line lieutenants in some large stores checked up on more than 3,000,000 gifts sold last year, and as a result of their findings the clerks behind counters just about know who will get what and how much.

They know, for instance, that if 1940 shoppers behave according to rule, women will receive 323 of every 1,000 gifts bought in department stores, while men will receive only 127. (It seems it's not always the woman who pays). They also know that youngsters will draw 302 gifts for the house and gadgets too varied to fit into neat gift classification.

Lingerie First

Here are some more interesting facts based on survey:

Women get more lingerie than any any other kind of Christmas present. Out of every 1,000 women who will open gaily wrapped packages on Dec. 25, 121 will get slips and panties, 93 will draw nightdresses and pyjamas and 39 will find housecoats or negligees. Stockings will say "Merry Christmas" to 112 and handkerchiefs to 97. When the gifts shower down from lighted Christmas trees 68 women will receive gloves, 66 handbags, 83 slippers and 34 gay gilets or scarfs. Santa Claus and you are going to help give them glamor too. Perfume is going to 24, compacts to 29 and beautiful shimmering jewels to 10.

Trend for Men

There must be something in that legend about the vanity of the male, for clothes are going to thousands of his sex. Out of every 1,000 men who rip open the wrappings of star-studded packages on Christmas, 272 will get shirts and 173 will have ties—and some of them will wear them. One hundred and seventy-three more men will draw socks, 74 will find gloves, 87 will say "thank you" for slippers and 50 more will receive belts, garters or suspenders.

In case you think women have a monopoly on Christmas gifts underwear, let this brighten up your Christmas shopping; 37 males out of 1,000 are to receive some variety of underwear—ranging all the way from violent Hawaiian shorts to firemen's red flannels.

Children and Home

Of the 302 gifts that will go to children out of every 1,000 given, 215 will be toys and the rest clothing—shirts, ties, dresses, suits, slippers and such. The gifts that boys will welcome with whoops of joy include scientific toys (chemistry and engineering sets), hobby gifts (toy airplanes, ship-models, paint-boxes and modelling sets), sports equipment, trains, cowboy and Indian suits, soldiers and forts.

One out of every five toys given to girls will be a doll. Many others will be gifts for doll play—carriages, bassinets, clothes outfits, doll houses and furniture. The rest will be chiefly educational toys, indoor and outdoor games, theatrical dress-up outfits, painting and embroidery sets.

SPRING PARK W. I.

The regular meeting of the Spring Park Women's Institute was held in the school on December 12, with Miss MacLennan presiding, in place of the President and Vice-President who were absent.

The meeting opened with the Ode followed by the Creed in unison.

The Roll Call was answered by five regular members and two new members

The minutes of the annual meeting were read and a correction were made in the sick committee in which Mrs. Gamester's name was replaced by Mrs. Dennis.

Mrs. Ford reported that fifty cigarettes were purchased from De-Blois Bros., as Christmas gifts for each of thirty-two soldiers in Halifax, and one pound box of Moir's Chocolates for one; also 300 cigarettes were ordered for each of four soldiers overseas.

Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Dennis reported visiting and delivering fruit to ten sick of the district.

The Treasurer, Miss Bea MacNeill reported that $16 49 had been realized from the Bean Supper on Nov. 29th.

It was decided that two card parties be held.

The following committees were appointed for next month.

Sick, Mrs. Wesley Ford and Mrs. Abbie Ford.

School, Mrs. Dennis.

Program, Miss F. MacLeod and Miss A. MacLennan.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem. Refreshments followed

SUN GLASSES OUT FOR AUSTRALIANS

MELBOURNE, Dec. 16 —(CP) — Fighting efficiency of the Australian milioary forces in Egypt and Palestine would be greatly reduced by the use of sun-glasses, reported their commanding officer, Lt.-Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey. On the recommendation of the director-general of the medical services the general use of sun-glasses in the Australian Imperial Force will not be approved.

This decision by the authorities came as bit of a shock. For some time war correspondents with the fighting Australians have been telling of the pain suffered by the troops in the intense glare of the Egyptian desert. They advocated the issue of sun-glasses to all troops going to the Middle East.

In Australia itself the use of anti-glare dark glasses has increased enormously during the last few years and among the civilian population there was strong approval of the war correspondents recommendation.

Lt.-Gen. Blamey added it was necessary to accustom troops to desert glare without glasses. Sweat and dust, he said, would make glasses useless unless they were frequently removed and cleaned.

TURKEY EGGS FOR HATCHING

During the past hatching season it was found that the demand for turkey poultry was quite active It is evident that there is a market for young turkeys provided hatching eggs can be obtained from flocks of good quality that have been blood-tested. Last year turkey poultry sold at 40 cents day-old and 35 cents day-old at the last of the season. Hatches averaged 55 to 60 per cent, although some lots with good eggs went much higher than this. The charge for custom hatching was 8 cents per egg This charge, advises A. R. Jones, manager of the Maritime Chick Hatchery, will be revised downwards for next season. Breeders with good flocks might keep over sufficient extra turkeys hens for production of hatching eggs. By sending their eggs to the hatchery, they can get their own flocks hatched earlier and they can also sell hatching eggs and turkey poults and make extra profit. Any breeders wishing to have their flock blood-tested should immediately get in touch with Mr. Wood, Department of Agriculture, Fredericton, as the season is now getting very late.

British Hosts To Canadian Soldiers

BRISTOL, Eng., Dec. 15.—(CP)—Royal Empire Society members of Bristol, recently bombed heavily by German aid raids, have inaugurated a plan for organized entertainment of Canadian troops, a practice they hope will be adopted throughout the United Kingdom.

The idea was formed by society members in collaboration with members of the Bristol Canadian Club, who invited 16 officers and privates from different Canadian units, chosen at random, to spend three days in the city.

During the three days the Canadians were taken on tours of the city and neighboring towns and later were guests of individual members with whom they were billetted. Part of the program was allotted to individual entertainment by club members who devised various ways of keeping their guests "on the go" for three full days.

The Canadians were given a block of seats at a special football game; were guests at luncheons and were given a special reception by the dean at the Bristol Cathedral.

One of the hosts expressed the hope Bristol's welcome would "break the ice and that all the hosts will invite their guests to return some time, or else invite other Canadian troops to visit them."
