

SUCCESS.

Mrs. Waltham revered success with the ardor of the one who has not met it. Success, for her, spelled so much more than the material things for which it stood.

It was hard, feeling as she did, to be married to a colorless little man, untalented and obscure, who never had, never would amount to anything.

Other people looked on her marriage as a singularly happy one. They envied conditions which she scorned. Sometimes they said pityingly: "It's too bad the Walthams have no children, it would have been a great one for a child."

The words after they were agreed to by the listener, were usually followed by "But would you? One person can't have everything, I should think she would feel like throwing a ring into the sea, as it is."

Perhaps the hands of little children might have pulled the scales from the mother's eyes—might have made the desert of her life blossom as the rose. But they had never been given.

There have been many opportunities for Amos Waltham to distinguish himself. There had been the Spanish war, with its exodus of brave men.

Afterward she found out some of the hundred little things he had done. As president of the small country bank he had been able to make loans to some of the destitute whose patriotic supporters were away in the field.

"All little things," she mused bitterly; all little, little things, which a woman could have done as well as he.

In the course of time, when the war boys, chastened and out of health returned, he busied himself finding a means of livelihood for them. The incident was novel. But his wife remembered, and some others.

His wife never forgot. She never could forget. She had grown to dislike him, and she showed it openly now. He mused over it at times not bitterly, but as if wondering something that could be explained if he had but the ability. And he showed her with the luxuries that the growing bank gave forth.

All that day they drew and drew and drew. He was glad when the hour of closing came. There was no harm done if there was no more of it—if the confidence of the people would hold for a few more days. He said nothing to his wife when he went home. Confidences had ceased between them and he would not burden her with the weight of care he carried. Perhaps there would be more of it, he thought with a sigh.

But in the morning, the long, unbroken line still stood. He gazed as he heard the clink of passing coins. They were ruined, or nearly.

SOURIS, MONTAGUE AND KING'S COUNTY

...It pays to buy in this Province. ...Chas. McKenzie, Boston, is visiting Mrs. Jas. Henry McQuaid, Souris.

...The Morning Daily Guardian can be obtained at W. A. Johnston's, Montague.

...John McQuaid, station agent at Miscouche, is visiting in Souris, the guest of James McQuaid, Sr.

...The Morning Daily Guardian can be obtained at H. J. Mahon's drug store, Souris.

...Mr. McKenzie of Antigonish, N. S., is in Souris on a visit to his sister, Mrs. James I. McQuaid.

...Miss Nelle Clark, who has been on a short vacation to her home in Souris will leave today en route to Rhode Island to resume her studies in Newport Hospital.

...Martin McKinnon, Montague, is Guardian representative, and all news, advertising and subscriptions in Montague and vicinity should be handed to him.

...The many friends of Florence McDonald, Souris, who was operated on in the Charlottetown Hospital recently, will be pleased to know she is improving favorably.

...F. G. Jordan, Souris, is Guardian representative, and all news, advertising and subscriptions in Souris and vicinity should be handed to him.

...There passed away at the residence of her cousin, Angus A. Campbell, Black Pond, Lot 46, on the evening of the 26th July, Marsley Campbell. She was born at Bayfield, Lot 46, some eighty-four years ago.

...The eldest of nineteen children of late John Archy Campbell and his wife, Mrs. McGilvray, and the writer believes the only one of the family to be buried beside her father and mother in St. Columba Churchyard, East Point. As far as is known three of the family survive her, viz: Jennie, Mrs. Cleary, in Oakland, California; Capt. James Campbell in Texas; and Capt. Charles Campbell, in Honolulu. The predeceased's fifteen brothers and sisters sleep their last sleep wide and far apart.

...John Joseph, the last to leave the Island, died in Vancouver some two years ago. His encounter with the noted Wild Archy of Cape Breton in Souris some forty-three years ago is still recounted in pugilistic circles.

...Though left behind by her immediate friends she was tenderly and devotedly attended to in her declining years and respectfully buried by her cousins, Angus A., and his sister, Kate.

...From time to time some clerk came to him, where he sat with his head on his hands and told him how near the end was.

...It was afternoon when the door opened softly again. He did not look up. The last messenger had told him that but a few hundred remained. This one would say that nothing did. But the messenger did not speak. He looked up into his wife's face, glowing with a light to which it had long been a stranger.

...She smiled down beside him and took his cold hands in her own.

...Amos—she began. "The house is gone, my insurance policy, every dollar I had. Still, like the horse leech's daughter, they cry, 'More! More!' I begared you unwillingly, but I had to do it."

...He pressed his irresponsible hand. "You're good name above everything! We had to save your good name."

...Even in this crisis, as near as it had drawn them, how different the viewpoint.

...No," he said, "not my good name, but the confidence of the people who trusted me. I fought for them."

...His wife fell to sobbing, her head against his knee. "The bank is saved, Amos. The cashier says so. I threw my diamond in the scale, and they turned it. We—it will be all right now."

...Then why do you cry? his patient eyes questioned her.

...She answered as if he had spoken. "Oh, I'm crying, Amos, because it has taken me so long to see the success you've made of your life. The putting of others first—you know Amos. It is so rare. And perhaps that's why no wife was ever so proud before."

...BECAUSE— Because her hair is silvery white with age. Because her dear eyes are not as of old.

...After Dinner To assist digestion, relieve distress after eating or drinking too heartily, to prevent constipation, take Hood's Pills Sold everywhere. 25 cents.

...MONTAGUE RACE MEET Wednesday, Aug. 2, 1911. The management intend holding their annual race meeting on the above date. There will be the following classes:— 2.19 class Trot and Pace, purse $150 2.35 " Trot " " $100. 3 min " Trot and pace " $60. Entries close July 26th.

...Already sufficient entries have been promised to fill these classes with the very best horses within the Province. Entry list will appear later. Special trains at reduced fares will run from Summerside, Cape Traverse, Charlottetown and Souris. See ad later.

...Meal tables and refreshment saloons on the grounds. Admission 25c, Children 15c. Don't forget the date. T. G. IVES, Secretary.

...Remember the moonlight excursion on S. S. Lady Sybil Monday evening. 7-28d31.

...Mrs. Ayers, Charlottetown, is visiting in Souris, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. W. B. Leard.

...The S. S. Lady Sybil with the Souris Citizens' Band on board will leave the wharf at 7.30 p.m. Monday evening for three hours' excursion. Splendid space for dancing if desired. 7-28d31.

...Paquet's Hill is the scene of lively building operations, etc. Wm. J. Paquet has ten men employed and the work on his new residence is progressing rapidly.

...May 30, weather permitting, and a few men were straw hats after September 15 if the weather then made them more comfortable.

...Within very recent years there has been a growing tendency to open the season earlier even than May 30. This year, the weather being warm, men wearing straw hats appeared in considerable numbers on May 15.

...Thus the old-time limits of the straw hat season, June 15 to Sept. 15, have now come to be practically disregarded, and the season has gradually been extended, though this more particularly at its beginning; more and more nowadays wearing straw hats not only within certain fixed dates but whenever they are most conducive to comfort.—New York Ex.

...A REVOLVING HOUSE. Local architects and builders might well carefully consider with a view to adaptation the latest idea in houses which is nothing less than a house that revolves. Such a house has recently been built for Mrs. Levi-Leiter of Washington, at her summer place in Beverly, Massachusetts. The Washington Herald describes the structure as mounted on ball bearings and as capable of being revolved in any direction merely by pushing a button or pulling a lever.

...The possibility of such a house seem illimitable. One's home could front in any direction one chose. The south side of the street would be just as desirable for building purposes as the north, and this would equalize real estate values. The porch could be turned so as to catch the breeze in summer or to escape the draughts in stormy winter days. By sitting comfortably near a window and pushing a button, one might swing the landscape round to any angle desired. And how about the possibility of being able to turn one's front door away from an unwelcome visitor, or the tax collector?

...Of course there would be some slight difficulties to overcome, such as getting flexible sewer, water, gas, electric light, or telephone connections, but in the light of modern invention these are not insurmountable. Just how these things have been arranged in Mrs. Leiter's house, The Herald does not say. But since she has had its sides made entirely of glass, let us throw no stones at it.

...SLEEP, SWEET SLEEP. Soldiers fall asleep with the din of battle around them.

...Nervous individuals sleep comparatively little, but profoundly.

...Smallest sleepers generally have been men of the greatest mentality.

...Edison would rather work than sleep. A few hours of rest suffice his needs.

...Frederick the Great required only five hours' sleep out of the twenty-four.

...John Hunter, eminent British surgeon and physiologist in the eighteenth century, never slept more than five hours daily.

...Plants have sleep periods. Their hours of vegetative rest are as essential to their health as are those of sleep to animals.

...While most living things naturally sleep at night, many others rest by day and are active after dark, as the owls, bats, moths, goatsuckers and the larger carnivores.

...THE TOTAL ASSETS of the combined companies composing The International Milling Co. of Canada, Ltd. are above $2,000,000. The total issue of Collateral and Bonding Mortgage Bonds is $1,720,000.

...The Mills of the Company are located as follows:— Three in Minnesota, U. S. A. One in Iowa, U. S. A. One in Moose Jaw Sask. Can. Eight in Prov. of Ont. Can. Daily capacity of these Mills is:— 3,000 barrels Flour. 3,000 barrels Rolled Oats.

Because she loves me with undying love Because I know she has a heart of gold— God keep me pure!

Because she revels in old-fashioned things, And loves her Bible in the good old way. Because she prays a dear old-fashioned prayer That lingers with me, every night and day— God keep me pure!

Because her hands so soft are folded Dear hands, that find it hard to rest awhile, Because her fragrant thoughts surround me now And light her lips with the old-fashioned smile— God keep me pure!

From You— A little word of praise from you, And, lo! my word is made anew; My heart burst into old gay song, And 'Ah! I say, 'I am so strong! And things that seem too hard for me, A little word of praise from you, And clouds roll on, and all is blue; Grow small, and smile invitingly!

IT'S POSSIBLE YOU HAD FORGOTTEN THESE In the Bible the word "girl" occurs but once. Central America has no fewer than ninety active volcanoes. Nearly £250,000 worth of articles are pawned in London weekly. It is unlawful in Norway for women and girls to serve in public houses. There are thirty tunnels more than a mile long on English railways. Ten days per annum is the average amount of sickness in human life. The hawk flies at the rate of 150 miles per hour; the elder duck, 90; the rook, 60; and the pigeon, 50. AUTHORITY OF DOGS. A New York man has worked himself into a fury over the amount of damage done by dogs by disturbing citizens, biting citizens and other offense. "Beau Broadway" of the Morning Telegraph rebukes him and remarks: "Affection, friendship and a loving devotion that man never equal are the dog's." A man who uses the pseudonym "Beau Broadway" cannot be supposed to have any ill-gions and might safely be regarded as an authority.

THE BEARDED LADY A little girl was keeping close to the "bearded lady" in a circus exhibition, and casting friendly glances now and then at the personage. A spectator noticed this, and, suspecting there was some intimacy between them, inquired: "Is the bearded lady your mother?" "No," answered the child, timidly, "she's my father."

QUESTION OF EATING. Prof. Lapicque, lecturing at the Sorbonne, explained recently why people of small size often eat more than large-statured people. The amount of food consumed is determined by the efficiency of the digestive organs, and nations of small stature have better digestive organs than large, just as small animals have a more efficient digestive system than larger animals.

Telephone Securities Are a most satisfactory form of investment. The Express Company, the freight carrier, the post office, the telegraph and the telephone all have their part to perform in the economy of transmission. All are necessary every day utilities. The telephone in carrying human speech is one of the greatest factors in every day business life and is also making noticeable headway in the home. These points are evident to everybody who has looked into the subject at all. Depressions in trade have very little effect upon the business of the telephone companies and for this reason their earnings are of a stable nature and are therefore not subject to large fluctuations as are those of industrial and other concerns. In recent years there has arisen a very active inquiry from investors for the securities of telephone companies having favorable franchises, good prospects and capable management. We offer for sale in lots to suit purchasers, a block of Trinidad Consolidated Telephone 6 p. c. Bonds. This Company has an excellent franchise and its net earnings show a steady increase.
