THE SCOTS IN FRANCE. (In the Leipzig salient * * * we extended our gains.—British official statement.) What horns are they I hear, mither. 'Sae bonny and sae clear, 'That sometime seem sae far awa' And sometime seem sae near? 'Wh are they horns o' farlyland, 'That blaw within the hill, 'Or only horns o' hunting men, 'That all the darkness fill? 'Wh, hush! my dear! those horns you hear 'In France blaw for the fight, 'Where Scot and Southron bayonets gleam 'Above the ranks o' right. 'What pipes are they that blirl mither, 'Above the darkling glen, 'And with their clank I seem to hear 'The feet o' marching men, 'The pibroch sounds above the burn 'With music loud and sweet; 'Fain would I know the way to go 'The Clansmen bra' to meet! 'Wh, hush! my dear! those pipes you hear 'Are blirl far away, 'Where underneath the skies o' France, 'The Scottish pipers play. 'What bells are they that toll mither, 'Sae solemn and sae slow? 'Sae seem to beat within my brain, 'My heart is sair with woe, 'Wh are they bells of any kirk, 'Or rung by mortal hand? 'They seem to bear a message drear 'Across the sleeping land. 'Wh, hush! my child! my orphaned child! 'These bells toll for us twain, 'Wh! far away my Clansman gay, 'This night sleeps w' the slain! —Dysart McCullen.
