What Devil's Island Is Really Like

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Two women have just destroyed all my colorful illusions about Devil's Island, the notorious French prison settlement.

It has long been portrayed as a place of grim horror. But Mme. and Mlle. Lamy, wife and daughter of the Governor of French Guiana, where the island is, have just told me that L'Isle de Diable—its real name—is a small rock less than two-thirds of a mile round on which five political exiles live. Each has his own house and servant.

"The penal settlement itself is on the mainland of French Guiana in South America," said Mme. Lamy, who is on holiday in London, staying with Miss Rosita Forbes. "There are 36,000 convicts, and not confined in terrible cells. Most of the civil officials over there have convicts as their servants. There are convict chefs, hairdressers, butlers—everything. Convicts do farm work, farm laboring, and other manual tasks. Only at night are they confined in the prison buildings.

"Off the coast are three islands. One of them is Devil's Island. The others are Royale and St. Joseph. Royale is very healthy, and is used as a sanatorium for the sick convicts. Often officials from the mainland go there for a holiday. St. Joseph is the punishment island—where the prisoners who repeatedly break the rules are sent. This island is the only one that even faintly resembles the stories told of Devil's Island. There are 200 convicts on it. There is no corporal punishment of any kind in the colony."

"Accident-Prone" Is New Term

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Experts of the Industrial Health Research Board have found a new term for people who have a peculiar liability to accidents on the roads and elsewhere. They are "accident-prone."

The experts have found, too, that "accident-proneness" obeys definite laws. So says the annual report of the board, issued recently. The fact has been established by the board's investigators after years of study, particularly in regard to transport risks.

"These laws governing accident-proneness are constant," the report says, "so that from the distribution of accidents in one occupation it is now possible to predict the likelihood of accidents being similarly distributed in another."

"It is no longer a theory, but a fact, given similarity in exposure to risk, in every occupation which has been analyzed, roughly three-quarters of the recorded accidents happened to one-quarter of the people who were exposed to the risk."

"This has been found to hold true not only for accidents in the factory or shop, but for domestic accidents in the home—even for the chances of getting a foreign body in the eye!"

"The phenomenon, therefore, is a personal one, and independent of conscious action or blameworthy conduct on the part of the possessor of it."

"Not much is known about the particular characteristics of the accident-prone person, but certain factors, especially those connected with quick muscular reaction, are being elucidated."

"A statistical examination of the road accident records of four groups of omnibus and private drivers, totalling 2,604 persons, showed that in each group the incidence of accidents corresponds to the distribution found to hold good for industrial and other accidents."

AUBURN W. I.

The monthly meeting of the Auburn W. I. was held on August 12th at the home of Mrs. J. J. McKenise with six members and many visitors present including some from Charlottetown and Hunter River. Meeting opened in the usual way, members responding to Roll Call, by giving a salad recipe. Minutes were read approved and signed. A letter was read from a sick member for kindness received. It was much regretted by the members present that two of our members are at present in the Hospital, and the hope was expressed that we have them with us at our next meeting fully restored to health. A discussion in maps and means to make money for the Institute was allowed to stand over until next meeting. Since last meeting members cleaned and painted interior of School and made it both sanitary and pleasant for teacher and pupils. On motion to adjourn and singing God Save the King, a dainty lunch was served at a couple of hours spent in dancing and social converse. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. MacKenise, for the pleasant evening spent. Next meeting will be in school house on Sept 10 Roll Call to be pickles recipe.

MRS. JULIA A. GAVIN
At her home in Sea Cow Pond on Wednesday, August 1st, Mrs. Julia A. Gavin departed this life in the 70th year of her age. Although in failing health for some time her death was unexpected as she motored to Charlottetown two weeks before to visit her son Emmett. She was the widow of the late Michael Gavin who died in 1905 leaving four young sons, the youngest being only 8 months old. Many difficulties did the frail young widow encounter to maintain herself and young family. She survived to see them grown to manhood and comfortably settled before she departed to receive the crown she had so well merited and in her words "Well done, good and faithful servant."

The surviving members of her family are John J., of Boston; Emmett, Charlottetown, and Martin, on the homestead in Sea Cow Pond. She was a parishioner of St. Siméon and St. Jud's parish, Tignish and a promoter of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, and a member of the League of the Cross. She will be sadly missed in her native parish. Her funeral to Tignish on Aug. 3rd was largely attended. A solemn high mass of requiem with appropriate music rendered the service very impressive. Then followed the final ceremony of committing the remains to their last resting place in the adjoining cemetery amidst the tears and prayers of her sorrowing family and friends. Requested in page.

MRS. WILLIAM CAMPBELL
The sudden passing of Mrs. William Campbell, North Rustico, on the evening of August 7th, came as a shock to the community, especially to the daughter and son from whom she had never been separated. She had lived to the ripe old age of 94, but up until a few days of her death had been about the house bestowing her usual cheer to those about her. She was born in Sutherland, Scotland, and came to Prince Edward Island as a little girl, but as the years increased memories of Old Scotland became very vivid to her and she could describe the braes and the burns that led to her home on the hill and the kick in the glen.

THE NEW SANITARY DUSTPROOF POURING SPOUT

Imps Will Find More Tenacity In West's Play

(By Elmer Dulmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer)
TORONTO, Aug. 23.—One of football's more interesting experiments is the projected western tour of Sarnia Imperials, Canadian champions, who must have a fair idea that a playing journey through the west isn't the soft touch it once was. It is an established fact that teams in Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver, for instance, are a tougher lot than they were a few years ago. They are tougher, just by way of comparison, than in 1930 when Hamilton Tigers waded through that country in the pre-season and discovered they had with them a player named Dave Sprague.

The Tigers discovered nothing outside of Sprague on that trip. Western opposition was easy for Mike Rodden's team, despite the fact that it physically ruined the occasional piece of Tiger machinery. But Sprague went out there as an inexperienced middle wing, without senior background, and returned a mighty line-plunger. If there was doubt that he could smash up eastern trenches as he had been doing in the west the long-gated, rugged fellow quickly dispelled these thoughts by becoming a great player. The east hasn't had a better all-round smasher of the line since Conacher than Sprague. Pete Jokus, Tommy Burns, Brian Timmis and Ted Morris may be as good, but not better.

The Imperials are likely to make another type of discovery altogether on this early-season jaunt. Chances are they will return for the O.R.F.U. campaign with thanks that Bummer Shirling is the best punter in the country. Punting is virtually an unknown art in the west and Shirling may win a couple of games pretty much by himself. Winglines, particularly in Winnipeg and Regina, will measure up to the tight Sarnia wall. There will be running backfielders at least nearly as fleet as old Norman Perry, and the forward passing will be every bit as good as the Imperials will exhibit. So there should be some thrills.

It is a fact, too, that western observers have long felt their better teams would make an improved showing if they were permitted to mingle with the eastern rivals in September rather than December. Western teams reach their peak about early-November and the contention is they never are at their best in Dominion finals. As far as the west is concerned, this Sarnia visit will settle for the moment the relative merits of sectional football standards. From an eastern point of view, the only objection is that Imperials have to do five times as much work as any western team. They are on a five-game tour.
