Election Editorial

ed in Canadian politics....."

Victoria Colonist (Prog.-Con.): "Mr. St. Laurent and his Cabinet have been given an embarrassing and unhealthy degree of power.."

L'evenement-Journal (Independent): "As the oldest daily of French expression in Canada L'Evenement-Journal claims that the result of this election is the foundation of a new bonne entente of the loyal support of both the French and English speaking Canadians."

St. John's Evening Telegram, which has been independent during the election campaign: "The Liberal landslide ... was far and away above the optimistic estimates made by the most optimistic Liberals. The Liberals had a good record while the Progressive Conservatives had to depend upon promises."

St. John's Daily News, which has given some support to the Progressive Conservatives: "After a long interval of about 14 years we (Newfoundlanders) have had enough political campaigning and balloting to satisfy us for a few years."

Toronto Star (Independent Liberal): "The election is over and the heat which it engendered should be over too. The St. Laurent Government has been given an endorsation beyond what its most enthusiastic supporters anticipated. It remains for the victors to be 'good winners', and the defeated parties 'good losers.' There is one cause common to all — the promotion of Canada's welfare."

Toronto Telegram (Independent): "The country has spoken and paid generous tribute to Mr. St. Laurent. In the result the Conservatives have no ground for self reproach. They presented the issues fairly and squarely. Their leader, George Drew, conducted a vigorous and straight-forward campaign. That these efforts were not crowned with success may be attributed to a trend all over the world. The people will not vote against Santa Claus."

The Winnipeg Tribune (Independent): "Apart from the dramatic victory of the Liberal Party, one of the most significant features of the present election is that the C C.F. suffered a stinging defeat and has ceased to be a threat in national politics . . ."

The Prince Albert Herald (Independent): "If Canadians voted for any one thing above all others, it was for the demonstrated ability of the Liberal Government to make swift and wise adjustments in this rapidly changing world — the way in which it rolls wisely with the punches. They turned their backs on tall promises — on panaceas — on the idea of a foolproof plan or a master formula . . ."

The Regina Leader-Post (Independent-Liberal): "Overwhelmingly the electors have pronounced against the leadership of Mr. Drew. With Quebec still solidly Liberal, the Conservative leader has suffered a staggering set-back in his own Province of Ontario — so serious indeed that his command of the major opposition party becomes open to question."

Timmins Press (Independent): "The Liberal Government has a high duty to the people of Canada following its decisive victory in Monday's election.

Brantford Expositor (Independent): "The strong and captivating personality of the new national captain of the Liberal Party was a potent factor — the aggressive leadership of George A. Drew, while considered too incisive by some of his critics, has not been repudiated — but whatever 'alliance' there was between Mr. Drew and Premier Duplessis, it plainly worked to the embarassment of both."

Owen Sound Sun-Times (Independent): "There is danger, perhaps that the Liberals may be inclined to take the election results as an unqualified endorsement of all their administrative methods and policies. The Liberals deserved to win on their record . . . but the leaders should realize that the full power brings real responsibilities. Many of their votes were protest votes."

Moose Jaw Times-Herald (Liberal): "When the people of Canada make up their minds to do something, in peace or in war, they have a reputation of making a good job of it. Judging from the decision made at the polls yesterday, they are well satisfied with the Liberal Government at Ottawa."

Oshawa Times-Gazette (Independent): "St. Laurent won because he displayed greater qualities of statesmanship and conducted a campaign which went to the hearts of the people. The rout of the Progressives was a disastrous personal defeat for George Drew." . . .

Annual Meeting

Trustee Board:

"The year of 1948 has now passed into history; it was marked by diplomatic moves and a re-grouping of nations but peace, at least for us, was maintained.

"In the Orphanage work the year will go down as an outstanding success for, though prices of all necessities were high, sufficient money came in to pay for all and leave a very comfortable surplus. The children will not soon forget the many thoughtful people who provided special outings for them.

"All committees worked hard and were greatly assisted by the willingness of a host of friends interested in making the life of each child in our care, a little more pleasant.

"Our School has made good progress under the capable teacher, Miss Ethel McKenzie; some needed equipment has been added during the year. The Inspector's report which follows, gives an excellent review of the work and progress; it also gives a comparative statement on the accommodation and equipment. This report should be read carefully by all particularly the Royal Arch Masons who supply all needed equipment and supplies.

"The Property Committee has been very active with numerous things to be attended to; the light meter had to be changed and this necessitated considerable changes in the whole wiring system; this is finished and passed by the Electric Inspector. The garden and grounds were well cared for and presented a very pleasing appearance; many small jobs have been done by our caretaker, James McPherson and this committee has only words of praise for his very satisfactory services.

"The Adoption Committee has been very active through the whole year; an unusually large number of children have been moving in and out with the result that our average has not greatly changed; several individual cases required very careful study and research before making a decision and always keeping foremost in mind the best interest of the child. This is an important committee; the institution was founded with the hope of providing a home for orphaned children and it has continued to provide that to the satisfaction of all; it is a great pleasure and satisfaction to have men and women come to visit the Home of their childhood and express thanks for the care and training received.

"The Buying Committee, faced with the extremely high prices of everything, has had to spend much time in selecting necessities and keeping an eye out at all times for bargains. The children have been well supplied and nothing needed was denied as shown in the Medical Report. Economy has been practised in all their work.

"The Finance Committee completed successfully a most strenuous year; the money received from all sources was the highest in our long history. Mrs. H. S. Henderson, who for twenty-two years has headed this important committee, has now her 22nd consecutive surplus to report.

"The Endowment Fund was well remembered in 1948 and a large number of Bequests were received and are shown in detail. The interest only on all these investments is used for current expenses and the names of all estates are preserved as shown in our lengthening list. This growing fund is a real safe-guard for the future.

"The Home Committee composed of all the ladies of the board, has been busy attending to the many details of such a well-filled house; the results of their careful oversight have brought well merited praise from a large number of visitors. House cleaning and scores of inside matters to consider along with children's parties, many outings, summer camps, etc., all came under their scrutiny though sponsored by friends and societies.

"This very brief sketch covers our own activities but I would like to refer to the support and unstinted help given by hundreds of willing workers through the whole Province and even beyond, all of whom have a large share in our very gratifying success; the pay for all this voluntary work is in the pleasure of helping those in need and our people are outstanding in that regard.

"I have purposely left mention of the work of the Ladies' Auxiliaries till near the end for if there is a special word to be said for any working group, here is ample opportunity. Their grand work has been our success and without them we could not carry on. Their tireless leader has so enthused the members that they go out fearless of failure and when they gather on our annual day it is not difficult to recognize where our strength lies. To them we must all give well-deserved thanks.

"Public confidence is one of our greatest assets and we must ever be watchful to maintain it; throughout the years we have given full and open information to the public and their good support proves their trust in our clear handling of all the many branches of the work.

"It is difficult to summarize the many activities or to give details of the grand assistance from so many societies and individuals among whom are:—Dr. Tidmarsh, Dr. Lantz, Dr. Waye, Dr. Houston, Grand Lodge L.O.B.A., Queen Mary Needlework Guild, Children's Aid Society, The Gyros, Royal Arch Masons, Good Neighbors Mt. Herbert and Vicinity, Women's Institutes, Rangers and Guides Groups, the Kinsmen, Fraternities — Masons, Orange Association, B. I. S., L.P.U., Caledonia Club, the Church and Clergy; the Press, both Charlottetown and Summerside.

"My sincere personal thanks, before closing, must go to the members of the Trustee Board, all of whom have worked faithfully and given much time freely; their sense of responsibility for the success of this work has made it a pleasure to preside at the meetings; amid such harmony and co-operation, success has and can continue to bless this work for unfortunate children. Our secretary too has performed his duties faithfully and well over a very long period and to him also I extend grateful thanks."
