VIEWS WITH ALARM THE GROWTH OF ARMAMENTS

LONDON, March 13—Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, leading the house of commons tonight in Premier Asquith's absence, made an important pronouncement on the government's naval policy. Reginald McKenna, first lord of the admiralty, in defense of his estimates against attacks from certain quarters, explained that in 1914 Great Britain would have thirty and Germany twenty-one dreadnoughts—not, he said, an unreasonable margin. The size of the British navy, he added, practically was governed by that of Germany, and unless some change occurred in the German naval law, this year would be the high-water mark in the British estimates.

Secretary Grey, admiring Mr. McKenna's statements, emphasized the cordiality of Great Britain's foreign relations and his earnest desire that nothing should disturb these friendships, especially with Germany. He then dealt with the difficulties to be discouraged in the disarmament question, and pointed out that it was the most civilized nations that spent the most on armaments, asserting that unless the mischief was brought home to men's feelings, as well as to their minds, the growth of armaments must in the long run break civilization down. Some thought, the secretary continued, that it would end in war. He thought more likely it would end in international revolution. Anyway the rivalry would not be stopped by any single nation dropping out of the race. Although Great Britain has a strong navy, her army was small, and an agreement with Germany needed careful handling. He was hopeful, however, that something might be done.

Any real limitation of armaments, he declared, must depend on nations learning, like individuals, to resort to law instead of force of arms. He referred to President Taft's arbitration speech as bold, courageous and pregnant with consequences, and said: "Such a statement ought not to go without response. We should be delighted to have such a proposal made to us. We should feel that it was something as momentous and so far reaching in its possible consequences that it would require not only the signature of both governments, but the deliberate and decided sanction of parliament. That, I believe would be given."

Sir Edward's speech was loudly cheered.

TALKS OF ANGLO-AMERICAN ALLIANCE.

When he referred to the possibility of the adoption of President Taft's proposal he was listened to with intense silence. If, he said, two greatest nations should thus make it clear that in no circumstances were they going to war again, the affect of their example on the world must have beneficial consequences.

Nations entering such an agreement, continued the secretary, might be exposed to attack by a third nation. This would probably lead to their making another agreement to join each other in any case of a quarrel with a third power, in which arbitration was refused.

"In entering an agreement of this kind," said Sir Edward, "there would be no risks, and you must be prepared for more sacrifice of national pride. I know that to produce such changes public opinion must reach very high ideals—higher than some think possible, but men's minds are working in this direction and history affords instances of reaching such an ideal point. It was so in the case of slavery when the United States rose up, not counting the loss in blood or money, or the risk of national existence."

In conclusion, the secretary said: "The general adoption of such a system might leave some armies and navies still in existence, but they would remain, not in rivalry, but as world's police."

Utopian as his hopes might seem to some, he believed that he would live long enough to see some progress towards the realization. "Nations," he said in a grave peroration, "are in bondage to army and navy expenditure. May the time come when they shall realize that the law is a better remedy than force."

The speech was too late for comment in the morning papers, but it created sensational comment in the lobbies.

MME ADELAIDE NORWOOD AT B. F. KEITH'S, BOSTON.

Madam Adelaide Norwood, for six years prima donna with the Henry V. Savage grand opera company and creator of the title roles in Puccini's "Mam Butterfly," "La Boheme," and "La Tosca," will next week head one of the strongest bills offered at B. F. Keith's Theatre this season. Mme. Norwood will be honored in one of the best programs ever offered in vaudeville by a grand opera star, her selections ranging from Wagner's "Ride of De Walkuro," to such popular favorites as "Come Back to Erin."

The surrounding bill is intended for laughing purposes only. Harry Tighe and his Collegians will appear in a new comedy sketch written especially for him by Ralph D. Paine, the well-known author of boys' books. It is called "The Careless Sophomore," and abounds in clean, wholesome humor from start to finish. Morton and Moore, who starred last season in Gordon and North's "Merry Whirl," will appear in an original singing and dancing act, introducing some of their famous eccentric dances. Mack and Orth are another new team, who have a splendid musical sketch called "The Wrong Hero," and other big features will be Brown Harris and Brown, in "Just to Laugh;" the Sensational Boises, called "The Human Arrowplanes;" in their sensational casting act; Leon Rogee, the mimic and entertainer; and Strength Brothers in extraordinary feats of equilibrium.

"You needn't suffer from a grippe any longer for our superior remedies and tonics can successfully combat any case of cold, cough or la grippe in existence. If you want to get back your former good health and do so in the shortest possible time you must try Mac's remedies. The Two Macs. drtf.

MEXICAN REBELS WILL CONTINUE TO FIGHT TO THE DEATH

NEW YORK, March 14—Dr. Francisco Gomez, leader of the Washington Junta of Insurrectionists in Mexico delivered defiance of the Mexican Government this afternoon just before he departed for Washington. Dr. Gomez, who has been here several days in consultation with Gustav Madero, said:

"The Revolutionists will lay down their arms only when their demands are granted. If the demands are not granted we shall continue to fight to the death. We are not worried over the pressure of United States troops in Texas. There are 12,000 men under arms in twenty States out of thirty-one States fighting for the insurgent cause. In addition to our physical strength actually in the field, we have many American men in high places who are not only sympathizing with us in our struggle but are secretly aiding us with resources."

REVOLT SPREADING.

EL PASO, Texas, March 14—Revolt broken out in the Mexican Province of Coahuila in the north and Morelos in the south; Chihuahua, the finest city in northern Mexico, with a population of 30,000 people, is cut off from the world by railroad and is threatened with starvation. Insurrectos led by Captain Alfred G. Creighton, are camped only fifteen miles south of Juarez and General Blanco, the Insurrecto leader, is recruiting new troops for another attack on Aguaprieta. The summary execution of prisoners has been commenced by the Federals. The first report of immediate execution upon captured men was brought here by an unarmed Mexican who declared that the Federals had shot two captives and compelled a third to dig three graves one of which was to be occupied by himself after he had executed his task. He managed to escape however.

The worst damage to property in Northern Mexico is being done by a small detachment operating under Captain Creighton. Eighteen halls from New England, His mother resides in Danvers, Mass. He has burned thirty railway bridges and trawlers in the past twenty-four hours.

CUT THIS OUT AND PASTE IT UP.

Almost every day The Guardian receives orders by mail to insert news matter of an advertising nature. In most of these cases the senders, who are frequently not known to any member of the staff and who have no account in the advertising department, write "Please insert the following and oblige," thus apparently implying that they think the items will be inserted free. Only a few weeks ago a reader wrote asking that his advertisement of "Farm for Sale" be inserted from day to day until he cancelled it, as he is a subscriber to The Guardian. In this connection it may be said that the subscription price is not sufficient to even pay the actual cost of paper, ink, presswork, mailing, bookkeeping and other expenses of the Circulation department, and that subscribers have no privileges of free advertising and are on the same footing as non-subscribers. Seldom ever does the sender state whether the item is to appear in the Morning Daily or the Rural Daily, whether for one or more times in either Daily, or in both, whether as a display advertisement, classified ad or otherwise. When for church or charitable purposes they seldom ever say so, or do not enclose sufficient money to pay for same all of which will be returned by first mail in the event of the item not being chargeable; or if more money is sent than necessary to pay for the item the surplus will be returned at once, there being a greater discount for cash with order for advertising of churches & than for regular business. In all such cases the Advertising department communicates with the sender as quickly as possible by mail or phone, often paying the messenger service to get them to the telephone if not too far distant, thus saving all possible time. People write this office to know if News, Letters to Editor, etc., are charged for, and to all such there is but one reply—all items etc. of a money-making nature, even though they be somewhat of a news nature, are chargeable. For instance, the advance notice or notices of a concert, lecture, pie social, picnic, etc., are chargeable if an admission fee, silver collection, sale of pies or sale of food or refreshments, etc. Advance notices of purely religious services, even tho a silver collection is to be taken up, are not chargeable. The particulars of any of the above, after they have been held, are, however, news and thus not chargeable. The news of any past, present or future business, which is still being conducted, is chargeable, if it is apparent that the object is to make the business more widely known and thus increase it. Verses accompanying death notices are also chargeable. Even items which are actual news and not chargeable for but once in either Morning Daily or Rural Daily or both are chargeable for more than one insertion, as they are thus not news.

The above facts are given for the purpose of assisting persons who have items, etc., to mail to this office, so that delay and disappointment will be avoided. 3-16drtf.

For the week of March 20th, the management of the Fifth Avenue Theatre, will offer a programme, the equal of which is seldom seen in New York. Much of the success of "Mother" has been credited to Miss Dunn, and in "The Baby" in which she is appearing in vaudeville, is another sympathetic portrayal of a mother and the performance in its simplicity and charm has seldom been ac-
