

Dental Notice!

During the thirty years which I have devoted to the practice of Dentistry in P. E. I. I have kept fully abreast of the times by a close study of the progress made in the science, by testing every apparently desirable new feature introduced, and by adopting all such as have commended themselves to me as conducive to painless treatment, or as productive of an artistic and comfortable result. In pursuit of this course I have from time to time visited the large American dental institutions and centres of supply. During a recent visit to New York I secured the latest and most approved labor saving appliances and studied the most advanced methods of Crown and Bridge work making. I am therefore in a position to do this class of work at less than half the price hitherto charged in this Province. I also purchased some

Entirely new Appliances for regulating children's teeth, a branch of the profession very much neglected here. I am administering NARCOTILE for the PAINLESS EXTRACTING OF TEETH, a safe, pleasant, anesthetic, occupies only from one to two minutes, no unpleasant after effects, NO EXTRA CHARGE. I have had thirty years experience giving anesthetics. Prices for Crown and Bridge work, Gold Crown 22k, $1.50 to $3.00, teeth tipped with Gold $2.00 to $2.50. I guarantee all work and will be glad to show specimens.

HOLYROOD CASTLE.

In a copyrighted article from the Marquis de Fontenoy in the Chicago Tribune an interesting light is thrown upon the grand old palace of Holyrood, so closely associated with the history of Scotland, and where Edward Balliol, Mary Queen of Scots and in fact so many of the rulers of Scotland made their home. Here King Edward and Queen Alexandra are now about to hold court with regal pomp, much to the delight of their Scottish subjects. It appears that when Queen Victoria came to the throne the ancient palace was in a shocking condition and that during the past sixty years extensive alterations and renovations have been carried on and are now completed.

The Marquis de Fontenoy points out that at the time when Victoria came to the throne "through various abuses all the best living apartments had been appropriated by the various Scotch dignitaries and officials, who, squatter like, had come to look upon their residences as their own property. Among the many who had thus appropriated suites of rooms were the marquesses of Breadalbane and of Huntly, the dukes of Argyll and of Hamilton, the earl of Erroll, and many others who, in cases where they did

THE DAY OF MIRACLES NOT PAS

A Toronto "Star" reporter investigated the case of Mr. Geo. Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness, he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhazone.

This proves that where Catarrhazone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhazone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from Impaired Hearing, Deafness, Head Noises and Ringing in the Ears are advised to inhale Catarrhazone and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. not occupy the apartments themselves either lent them to relatives and friends or in several cases actually rented them out. Only the state apartments were left for the use of royalty, and these were in shocking repair."

To the late Prince Consort, father of the King, belongs the credit of inaugurating a series of reforms which put an end to all these abuses. One by one the occupants of the palace, some of whose families had lived there for generations, were ousted not always without a good deal of protest, difficulty, and even threats of legal process, until now the entire palace is at the disposal of the King, who is for the first time master in his own house at Edinburgh. The apartments have all been redecorated, prepared, and beautifully furnished, and the alterations of the interior have been carried on simultaneously with the entire reconstruction of the grounds. All the small buildings and mean looking houses in the immediate vicinity, regular squatter hovels some of them, have been razed, the meadows to the southwest and east have been carefully drained, and lands that had been converted without authority into markets and fruit gardens, into cricket fields, and even into dumping grounds, have all been recovered by the crown, inclosed in a handsome railing, and laid out as a beautiful park.

The old palace was originally an abbey founded in 1128 by David I, and dedicated in honor of the Holy Cross, a casket of gold, shaped like a cross and brought to the country by St. Margaret in 1070. It was several times burned, and was the scene of the murder of Rizzio in 1560. It is a large and picturesque castellated structure, and in its existing form was built chiefly about 1670. The Palace replaced the Abbey. The apartments of Mary Queen of Scots have been preserved. For centuries the Abbey possessed the ancient privilege of sanctuary with exemption from arrest to all who sought a shelter there. After a time this right of sanctuary in case of crime was abrogated, but Holyrood retained its ancient privilege as a refuge for debtors down to 1880, when imprisonment for debt was abolished.

AN OUTSIDE VIEW.

The tariff war now on between Germany and Canada is attracting attention in the United States as well as in Germany, Britain and other countries. The New York Times has a fair and discriminating article on the subject. It concludes that if the war goes on, as it must for some time at least, both countries will suffer in their trade to some extent, and the trade advantage from the struggle will accrue to the British and Americans who will absorb an increased portion of the Canadian market. The Times here omits to note the not inconsiderable advantage to our own manufacturers, who must stand to gain quite largely by the heavy handicap placed on cheap German wares coming to this country.

But in apportioning the blame, if blame is to be charged to either party, the Times is quite in accord with the Canadian view. It points out that the trouble began four years ago when Canada asked Great Britain to abrogate the treaties which accorded to Germany and to Belgium the most-favored-nation treatment, and then proceeded to grant a reduction of 25 per cent on importations from the Mother Country. Against this Germany protested and placed Canadian goods under what is called the "autonomous tariff," a series of rates outside of treaties and very heavy. "Canadians claimed, and quite correctly," says The Times, "that she had not discriminated against Germany, and was ready at any moment to let in German goods at as low a rate as the British. If Germany would reduce her tariff on Canadian goods as low as is the English tariff. That is perfectly fair, and a complete answer to the German argument."

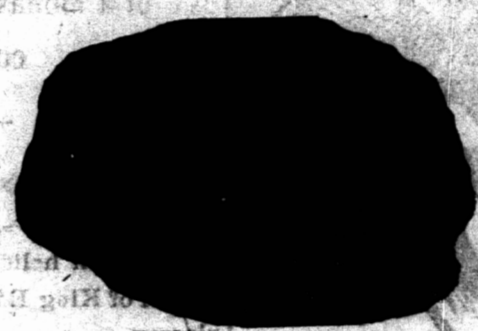

It is not always that a leading American journal discusses a question of this sort with so much fairness to Canada. Without wishing to detract anything from the merit of this course we may be permitted to observe that neither the Washington nor the Berlin authorities seem to be very favorably impressed with the high tariff methods of the other. They, too, are playing at cross-purposes in trade matters. And we must also concede that in the case of the Canadian consumer, as of the American and the German consumer, it is upon his back that the "whacks" of the contending governments will fall most heavily. And yet the Canadian consumer will scarcely be conscious of the loss. We can buy our sugar and manufactured goods elsewhere about as well, real value being considered, as in Germany. As for what we sell to Germany, there are other markets quite as good, and the world is all before us where to choose.

MEN'S NOBBY HATS

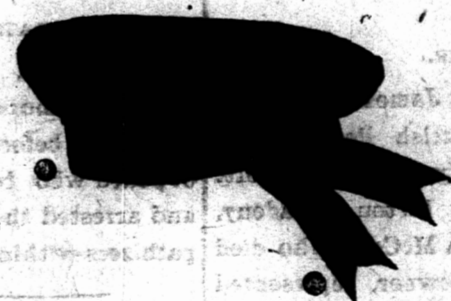

The man who prides himself on his correctness of attire is ever alive to the realization of the necessity for proper head gear. Though the hat does not make the man, it may mar the completeness of his appearance, if it be of a fashion or style prescribed by fashion. With a Benson hat the wearer is always certain that he is in possession of the best that can be produced, as far as workmanship and materials used are concerned, and also that embodied in the hat will be the very latest and most correct dictates of an ever changing mode.

Of course Benson is and has long been synonymous for superiority and excellence, and the hats displayed by Paton & Co., this year still further substantiates the claim of the makers of Benson hats to pre-eminence in the hat building industry. Changes are to be found in both the silk and derby hats of this Spring, changes.

which are most important to the well dressed man. The silk hat of 1903 is less bell shaped than the vintage of a year ago. Instead of 1 3/4, brim it is a little wider, being 1 7/8. There is noticeable also a smaller curve in the brim and a flatter set.

With the derby the changes worthy of note are a more rounded crown and flatter brim than characterized the Fall derby. A half-inch D'Orsay curve is used. With both the derby and the silk hat a raised D'Orsay curve is used this year instead of the plain D'Orsay of a year ago.

The Spring styles for ladies are marvellous for their originality and perfect workmanship. A visit to Paton's tonight will be in order. Our hats are union made, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00, and $2.50.
