THE SPANISH FLEET.

The entire destruction of the Spanish fleet under command of Admiral Cervera is confirmed. The Spanish commander made a bold dash for liberty on Sunday last only to meet with swift destruction. Admiral Sampson, with superior force and eager for battle appears to have administered a defeat as crushing as any in naval history.

Our despatch tells that every ship was destroyed, and the work seems to have been accomplished as swiftly and effectually as that accomplished by Commodore Dewey at Manila, two months before.

Cervera's fleet contained with one exception the finest ships in the Spanish navy. They were among the swiftest fighting ships afloat, well armored in steel and carrying heavy guns. They had cost Spain over fifteen millions of dollars.

Sampson's achievement may be said to have eclipsed even the brilliant exploit of Dewey. He has made a great name for himself and the news of his victory added fresh glory to the national Independence Day. Spain has now lost two fleets, and has but a fraction left of the formidable navy with which a few months ago she thought to threaten the United States coast. She may still fight on as Sagasta says, but it will only be to sustain fresh defeats.

CLOSE SEASON FOR LOBSTERS.

We are authorized by Sir Louis Davies, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to say that after giving a great deal of consideration to the hundreds of applications pro and con sent to his department with reference to the extension of the lobster season and after having had personal interviews with many of those interested in the fisheries, and having ascertained the facts with respect to the size of the lobsters that are being taken this year, he has come to the conclusion that it would be fatal to the lobster industry to grant any extension of the close season this year. All the officers of the department have been notified that there will be no extension and that factories must be sharply closed on the 15th instant, as they have been obliged to close on the first along the South-east coast of Nova Scotia.

The Minister is daily in receipt of communications but he trusts this public notice will prevent any further applications as his decision has already been given against any extension.

Very little is heard from the Klondyke is these days, from which it may be presumed that the mining community in the Yukon district, is a fairly quiet and orderly one. There is a notable absence of the murders, lynchings and vigilance committees that marked the history of gold mining in California. The firmness of Canadian government and the presence of the mounted police have no doubt been main factors in maintaining order. It is estimated that 40,000 miners have gone into the district this season, and as many as could secure locations have gone to work, while a host of others are busy prospecting. We ought shortly now to learn some particulars of the number of millions forth coming from this spring's wash-up.

The theory of the absolute necessity of coaling stations is somewhat giving way under the experiences of the United States fleets. The Republic had no outside coaling stations at the beginning of the war. Dewey seized one at Cavite. The fleets in the West Indies have for a month past successfully coaled from the collier ships in the open sea, even in bad weather. What has been once done can be done again. Then there is the possibility of a floating coaling station that can be towed from place to place. The New York World now puts forward the idea that permanent, fortified coaling stations may probably cost more than they are worth, seeing they are proven to be not indispensible.

Sir Leonard Tilley, for many years finance minister of Canada, was authority for the statement that every dollar of revenue derived by the state from the liquor traffic costs the people not less than four dollars. The liquor men's solicitor in the plebiscite campaign has put forth a statement that since confederation the revenues derived from liquors have totalled $212,000.000. Four times these figures would be $848,000,000, representing the monetary cost to the people in the same period. Add the precious lives sacrificed and all the want, woe and misery and see at what frightful cost the traffic has been maintained.

To realize the value of good water supply, such as we have in Charlottetown it is only necessary to be suddenly deprived of it. This is what happened to Santiago a few days ago when the American forces in the night cut the water mains and diverted the water to their own camp. Santiago, under a burning sun, with six or seven times the population of our own city, has had since June 26th noother supply of water than that supplied by wells and cisterns.

One Way To Sell Goods.

Is to offer well known articles at less price than regular, and sell higher priced articles by asserting they are worth much more than they really are, and then taking about half. The public are sometimes deceived this way, and pay pretty dear for goods. Our way is all goods marked in plain figures. Less regular discount for cash.
