All-Empire Stars In Great Events Of Passing Year

Fighting Forces From British Nations In Northern And Southern Seas Feature In Epochal Events Of 1940.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 —(CP) — Epochal events springing from a world in arms crowded the front pages of 1940.

The Teutonic march of conquest, propelled by new weapons and new methods of warfare, spread Nazi terror from the northern tip of Norway to the Pyrenees and the Black Sea.

Sowing devastation across the breadth of Europe like Attila and the Huns of old, the war machine built by Hitler submerged liberty and constitutional government in the fairest portion of continental Europe.

But in the darkest days of the summer Great Britain was heartened by the unwavering support of her daughter-nations of the British Commonwealth. Canadian troops stood ready on British soil to withstand any assault from across the Channel. Canadian airmen were in the vanguard of the Empire's air fighters. Canada's ships fought beside the Royal Navy.

In Egypt as the year passed Australians and New Zealanders vied with the traditions of the Anzacs of the last war. South Africans were poised in East Africa ready for the word to march into Ethiopia. Newfoundland's men manned ships and guns on land and sea.

As summer blossomed, Republican France, champion of the freedom of the individual, was driven to her knees under the weight of the German armored divisions and by the fury of the German air power. The Netherlands, land of honest toil and industry, and unhappy Belgium were quickly overpowered. To the over-running of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and Austria in previous years were added the peaceful lands of Denmark and Norway. In the Balkans, Rumania was thrown into anarchy by Nazi intrigue and German forces established themselves on the shores of the Black Sea.

The whole world shuddered at the Nazi lust.

Ramparts of Britain

Alone in western Europe stood Great Britain, behind her the centuries of orderly government that engendered the British race of free men. The virility of her arms demonstrated anew in the heroic retreat on Dunkerque, the island kingdom braced herself for Hitler's worst—the threat that Teutonic hordes would violate her shores as the Normans 900 years ago.

Security was found in the peerless qualities of the Royal Air Force, in the vigilance of the Royal Navy, and the readiness of a home army of some 2,000,000 men under arms.

The Nazi boast that Britain's fate would be sealed in a matter of weeks after the capitulation of France failed of fulfilment. After the great air battles of the late summer and autumn, when day after day whole squadrons of German aircraft were knocked out of the skies by the Spitfires and Hurricanes of the R. A. F., the Nazi air arm turned its energies to spreading terror by night.

Gallant Cities

The great mass of metropolitan London, with its acres of docks and factories, as well as its fine thoroughfares and ancient monuments, was bombed by hundreds of German aircraft night after night. Thousands were killed and wounded, but London carried on.

Prolonged and devastating raids followed on key cities such as Coventry, Bristol, Birmingham, Sheffield, Southampton and Portsmouth. Here, too, the people endured their ordeal like free men, buried their dead, and turned again to the struggle.

Italy's Part

Mussolini led Italy into the war in June and to Egypt, which knew the terror of Roman arms prior to the Christian era but also felt the civilizing influence of ancient Rome, were sent the legions of the Fascisti.

Greece, too, was to know what it meant to oppose the "unconquerable" will of the Axis. "Nothing can stop me," said Mussolini. But the Italians quickly realized the difficulties of military operations against determined men in country well known to them.

As October ended invading Italians were pushed steadily back into Albania by the Greek mountaineers. British aircraft mercilessly pounded Italian bases. The campaign soon became a fiasco. Mussolini began to dismiss his generals.

Then came the British offensive in the Western Desert. The Italians, showing little heart for a fight, were hurled out of Egypt across the frontier into Libya. The Italian defeat rapidly became a rout.

Neutral Allies

Among foreign nations which held themselves back from the whirlpool of war, Britain had two staunch and effective friends —the United States and Turkey.

Under President Roosevelt's leadership American industry turned out aircraft and munitions in ever-increasing quantities. Fifty destroyers were turned over to the Royal Navy to help Britain ward off the Nazi submarine menace.

Turkey, which learned to respect British arms a quarter century ago, when, as the ally of Germany, she tasted the bitterness of Prussian treachery and shared the ignominy of the German defeat, gave Britain steadfast support and thwarted Nazi ambitions to outflank the British forces in the great war theatre of the Mediterranean.

THE Gingham Dog and the Calico Cat,
Side by side at the table sat.
Said the Gingham Dog to the Calico Cat,
"Land sakes, I hardly know where I'm at!"
The Calico Cat peered over her "specs"
And smiled a very Calico Smile . . .
"The Ch'town Guardian, in many respects,
Will make your life worth while;
There's no use barking up every tree—
Be smart. Read all the ads—like me!"

The Gingham Dog took her advice
And though it really isn't nice
To praise yourself (it should be muzzled)
We're proud to say that after that,
As they side by side at the table sat,
The Gingham Dog was never puzzled!

And That's More Truth Than Nursery Rhyme!

THE Charlottetown Guardian

Far from their homeland, these members of the Royal Norwegian Air Force are training at Toronto to take the skies at the side of the British Empire in its fight for freedom. A flight of training machines is shown as they are prepared for the take-off.

This was the scene at Montreal's city hall as J. Adhemar Raynault and his wife received the acclaim of supporters on Raynault's election as mayor by the narrowest margin in the city's history. Not until the last few of the city's 1,192 polls reported was the result assured. Labor Leader Raoul Trepanier was second and seven others trailed far behind, five of them losing their deposits. Lenard Trepanier had the unofficial support of ex-Mayor Camillien Houde in his campaign and Mrs. Houde attended his election meetings in behalf of her interned husband. Leonard lost his deposit, polling 7,257 votes. It was in Houde's old stronghold—St. Mary ward— that Raynault gained the margin that gave him victory. He defated Houde in 1936, when he was elected mayor for the first time. One major development upset the quiet campaign —, the arrest of five men following the discovery of an alleged plant to "telegraph" votes by means of false registration certificates. Two of those arrested had been found in Raynault's committee room, but Raynault issued a statement saying he knew nothing of "the outrageous forgery."
