THE MORNING GUARDIAN THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER, 19, 1901

DR. McNEILL WRITES A LETTER.

There is an element of spitefulness in Dr. R. McNeill's letter printed in last evening's Examiner which to the ordinary reader seems unaccountable. Some infirmity of temper or atrabilious condition is naturally suggested as the moving cause of the Doctor's remarks.

We are led to think that Dr. McNeill's reading in connection with the President's case has been extremely limited as he did not know that the bulletins issued almost hour by hour from the President's bedside were signed by the doctors.

It is indeed true that "those who live in glass houses ought not to throw stones" and also true that "fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

In South Africa the plan has now been adopted of carrying some prominent Boer prisoners on the armoured trains, so that if the train is derailed or fired upon the prisoners will be in equal danger with the British officers and men.

President McKinley's fortune, nearly the whole of which is left by will to his widow, is said to amount to about $200,000, of which nearly one half is made up of insurance on his life.

The New York World of the 16th says "the disagreement among the doctors who attended President McKinley broke out today. It promises to be a bitter and perhaps even a scandalous public controversy."

A page of interviews with the doctors concerned is given by the World in which they all blame Dr. McBurney for over confident predictions of recovery and say his optimism misled them as well as the public.

Dr. Park is ignorant. There is however a pretty general agreement that the case was from the first necessarily fatal.

Among other remarkable statements made is that there are no cases on record of a man over forty-five years of age getting well of a shot through the stomach.

Millions of francs' worth of damage has been done in Central Spain this summer by grasshoppers. They eat up every green plant in the fields, and all the efforts to fight them with fire and other means have failed.

LONDON'S LEADING HOTELS. The 20 leading hotels of London represent a capital of something like seven million sterling. During a busy month they accommodate about 8400 guests every night, and find employment for 4500 servants.

MEDICAL SCIENCE ADVANCES. It is not more than half a century ago that physicians considered a surgical operation with its risk, expense and pain as the only cure for piles. Today it is only the "out of date" doctors that think of such treatment.
