A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

BEWARE THE DOG

On the 24th of May some years ago, a burly blacksmith stood in his shop in one of our cities. It was holiday and he had nothing to do. Presently a large Newfoundland dog wandered into the shop. He was friendly and the blacksmith, who had a liking for all animals, petted the dog's head, rubbed his back and played with him. The dog, in a course of the play rose and laced his front paws on the smith's shoulders. Then suddenly without warning, he bit his friendly friend on the nose and decamped. The doctor who was called dressed the wound and urged the man to have the preventive treatment. Rabies The wound soon healed and the blacksmith neglected to follow his doctor's advice. Exactly a month later, the blacksmith began to have curious symptoms. He couldn't swallow. He got rapidly worse and the doctor who was called diagnosed rabies or hydrophobia. Little could he do for his patient at this stage. He died within 72 hours, raving mad. In cases of rabies, the onset of the malady occurs late or early because of the remoteness or nearness of the original infection to one's brain. In this case, the bite on the nose placed the infection close to the great nerve center. Onset was consequently early. Bites from straying dogs should be given careful attention. The offending animal, at all costs, should be secured and shut up for a period of ten days. If, at the end of his period he is alive and well, he is not rabid and the wound which has been cleaned and dressed soon heals without serious results. If the dog shows signs of illness or if he has died of rabies, his head in the latter event should be carefully removed and the brain tissues examined for negro bodies, the presence of which indicate rabies. The child or other person bitten should at once have a course of rabies preventive treatment. The course lasts for 21 days. It is simple of application, harmless and thoroughly effective. It is provided gratis, by all up-to-date health departments. This is one of the absolutely certain preventives of disease given to the world by the immortal Frenchman, Louis Pasteur. What a world of agony, loss of life and anxiety has the removal of hydrophobia from the list of death-dealing diseases, prevented! Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Liberal Defense Policy Analyzed

(Ottawa Correspondent) Thirty-five million dollars of defence estimates occupied four days' debate in Parliament on a want-of-confidence amendment moved by Grant MacNaclean, member for Vancouver North, B. C., and M. J. W. Goldwell, member for Rosetown-Bigger, Sask. This appropriation is divided roughly into $19,000,000 for land forces, $11,000,000 for air forces and $5,000,000 for the navy. It was not the amount of money, which is inconsequential as defence estimates presently go, but the distribution of it that arrested the attention of a House of Commons from Missouri when the Minister of National Defence stated that it was designed for purely Canadian defence.

Who may possibly attack Canada? Perchance Japan, involved in war with the United States, would attempt to use our Pacific Coast as a base of submarine operations, in which case our sea and air forces would be required to protect our neutrality. Perhaps Germany or Italy, or both involved in a war with the British Empire, would attack our Atlantic seaports. And conceivably Russia—though this at the moment highly improbable—might fight the United States over her former territory of Alaska. In any event Canada's enemies when they come will not be of the Lilliputian variety, and as a policy intended for Canadian defence, one would expect the figures in this appropriation reversed in order of magnitude, giving to sea and air equipment an importance which their priority in line of defensive attack seems to justify.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS REPORT

The annual report for year ending January 31, 1937, was presented at the meeting of the Board of Governors, at the Charlottetown Hospital Monday evening. The report showed a substantial reduction in general liabilities. The amount of "free" treatment throughout the year was slightly in excess of $14,000.00. The question of installing a special X-ray machine in the hospital was discussed at length. A special committee was appointed to thoroughly examine the details in connection with the project and report at the next meeting.

FORMER P. E. ISLANDERS MARRIED

With only immediate friends and relatives present, the wedding took place on Wednesday morning, February 24th at 10 o'clock in the United Church, of Miss Vera Hayter, second daughter of Mrs. D. Hayter, of Penitence and Venier Thomsen of Naromata. They were attended by Mrs. Olive Young and Ray Hayter, sister and brother of the bride. Rev. R. R. Morrison officiated. The bride wore a frock of blue silk crepe with three quarter length sleeves done in drawn work and embroidery. The dress featured a high neck line ornamented with gold leaves. Miss Hayter wore a blue hat to match and gold accessories. A wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride following the ceremony, with only immediate members of the family present. On leaving by motor for a honeymoon to be spent in Southern Cities, the bride chose a light grey wool suit topped by a heavy blue coat trimmed with grey fur and wore a navy felt turban. On their return the despatch, is a correspondent of exceptional reliability. Mr. Dexter's despatch spoke of a "new Canadian naval policy, calling for ships and armaments on a scale unprecedented in the Dominion." This was regarded at the time as a fitting corrective of Mr. King's defeatist Geneva speech. Collective security on the Geneva model, abandoned, the hearts of imperialists were warmed by this announced orientation of Canadian defence policy made when the Canadian Prime Minister was in London. "New plans calling for fleets of destroyers along both Atlantic and Pacific Coasts, comprising ships of greater size and armament than anything heretofore attempted by the Dominion," was another of Mr. Dexter's inspiring comments. The Press Gallery of Ottawa has consistently refused to regard the Sifton reporter's despatch as a midday hallucination. Then came Sir Samuel Hoare's announcement about 10 days prior to the debate, to the effect that a pooling of Empire defence forces would be discussed at the Imperial Conference. Since the ill-fated Navy-Bill of Sir Wilfred Laurier, this is the first imperial gesture that has come from the Liberal Party in Canada. As to whether it is merely a coronation gesture or the beginning of a great imperial defence programme anyone may speculate, but no one may with any certainty predict

MEMBERS OF THE IRISH BRIGADE

Members of the Irish Brigade, as it is called, have in a great many cases left dependents behind who have had to fall back on public relief. Appeals from distressed parents and wives to President Eamon de Valera have led to the dispatch of Leopold Kerney, Free State Minister to Spain, to endeavour to persuade the Burgos government to allow the men concerned to return to their homes and families. Half a dozen ambulances and large quantities of medical supplies have been sent to General Franco's armies by the Irish Christian Front, an anti-Communist organization supported by the church. In addition, it appears to have secured funds from the Burgos government to purchase further Red Cross supplies here for shipment to Spain. Its leader is Patrick Belton, a member of the Dail.

1200 Irish Fighting In Spanish War

(By Joseph Dennigan) (Canadian Press Correspondent) (C.P. By Guardian's Special Wire) DUBLIN, March 9.—About 1,200 Irishmen are fighting in Spain, according to estimates made here on the coming into operation of the Non-Intervention Pact, to which the Irish Free State is a party. Nearly 1,000 are engaged with the Insurgent forces in the neighborhood of Caeceres under General Eoin O'Duffy, leader of the Green-shirted Irish Fascist party. The others are operating with the government armies under Frank Ryan, a former Republican journalist.

O'Duffy's followers are in the main young countrymen, a few just out of school, who believe they are fighting for the Catholic church. There is a sprinkling of hardy members of his party who saw service during the Great War or in the Irish civil war in 1922. They are specialists in guerrilla warfare.

Some 650 members of the Irish Brigade got to Spain by means of a German troopship which crept into Galway Bay early one December morning. The others travelled from Liverpool to Lisbon as "students" or "tourists."

The German vessel was expected to take a further contingent of 700 from Passage East, on the Waterford coast, some weeks ago but at the last minute the recruits had to return to their homes. The ship failed to arrive for a reason which has not yet been explained.

Ryan's small force with the Madrid government is composed mainly of "forgotten men" of Lett wing sympathies drawn from Scotland, Northern Ireland and the English North. One is known to have been killed in action and three others have been wounded.

Irish sympathies lie heavily with General Francisco Franco's side, but the wisdom of General O'Duffy's effort to render practical assistance is doubted by many. The deaths of two members of his brigade on the Madrid front have created a wave of popular sympathy for him, which he is reported to be anxious to turn to the advantage of his political movement when he returns to Ireland.

Islanders Interest in $40,000,000 Estate

The future looked rosy to John Thomas Auld, 33, and Margaret Esther Dawson, state department clerk, as they were married in Scotland within a year. His great-grandfather's will, he says, stipulates that the estate should pass from first son to first son. Auld's grandfather is dead. His father, a tobacco plant worker, refused the riches, directed the money to the capital stock clerk. It is understood their are claimants in this city who hope to benefit by the above estate and their interests are being looked after by a Charlottetown Lawyer.

Tessiers Still Barred Entry to The U. S.

BOSTON, March 9.—(CP)—If the United States Government permits Roy Tessier, blind war veteran who served overseas with the American army, and his wife to re-enter the country from Montreal there is a job waiting for Mrs. Tessier. A restaurant proprietor who once before employed her said today he would pay expenses of herself and Tessier back to Boston if they received permission to join their 12-year-old son "keeping house" in their Alston district home.

The Tessiers went to Montreal last September for a visit and when they attempted to return to the United States were barred as aliens. Two appeals went forward to President Roosevelt explaining Tessier had thought his service with the American Army automatically made him a citizen but no action was taken.

Meanwhile U. S. Representative John P. Higgins said he would introduce a bill in Congress Monday to permit entry of the blind veteran and his wife.
