ADDRESS OF WELCOME AND PRESENTATION TO ONE OF PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND'S GREATEST HEROES.

Recently there has arrived at his late home in Kilmuir from the seat of war one of whom Prince Edward Island has just reason to be proud in the person of Pte. Hugh McDonald. When war was declared Pte. MacDonald was in British Columbia, like many another unassuming and modest man pursuing his daily vocation, unconscious of his own worth and of the part he was to play in the world's greatest tragedy. Though ignorant of military affairs and of the vastness of the issues at stake, yet with true Highland Scotch instinct, he knew that a great wrong was deliberately planned on the part of Germany which left him no alternative but to take his place in the ranks. He enlisted on 8th of August 1914, came to Valcartier, Que., two weeks later and there remained till Canada's first great army left for England. He arrived in France on the 10th of February, 1915 and remained in the war till the finish.

On his return home the community were quick to show their appreciation and the esteem in which Pte. MacDonald was held by them, and the Valleyfield Comfort Circle surprised him at the home of his sister, Mrs. A. J. MacLeod, Valleyfield, East, where an address of welcome was read by Rev. J. M. MacLeod and the gift of a gold signet ring was presented to him by his niece Miss Florence MacLeod, in behalf of the circle. Pte. MacDonald in response heartily thanked the circle and friends for the address and splendid gift after which the ladies served supper in their usual dainty manner and helped in every way to make the evening a pleasant one for all present.

The following is the address:—
Sir:—It is with great pleasure and pride that we would always welcome home our splendid men, we are conscious, however, that in doing you honor in a small way tonight we are doing honor to no ordinary soldier. Yours has been a very enviable career indeed during the past four years. You have the extraordinary good fortune of having crowded into your life in that short but most momentous time and most eventful period more experience than others could have done in a very long life-time; for more has happened from the beginning to the closing of this colossal war than has happened in other ages for centuries. It is really a great privilege to have a share, howsoever small, in helping to bring the late struggle to a victorious issue for the cause of right and freedom; but how much more so to be able to go through it all from start to finish and that without a wound, shell-shock, fever, or any malady whatever.

There were numerous instances of men repeatedly returned to the line after being in hospital from wounds or sickness; and others, though fewer in number, were wounded more than once yet have come through all the war, but the instances are singularly rare of men being able to go through the whole scrap without a scratch. To add to this you have to your credit a most magnificent record and every time we come to the names of the battles which have helped to make the name of Canada great we are gripped with an irresistible and uplifting thrill:—

Ypres and its crater where you smell gas for the first time and helped to hold the line for four days under almost superhuman conditions, till you were relieved by the glorious Scotch Gray Gordons and none less glorious Irish Fusiliers.

St. Julien; Fostubert, the Orchard, Givenchy—each of which has its own renown telling of the manner in which Canada held the line against overwhelming odds.

Ypres again in 1916—a name forever sacred to British memory. The Somme—the scene where Germany experienced for the first time the sledge-hammer blows which eventually destined to bring her to an ignominious defeat.

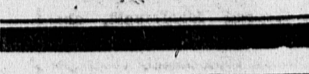

Passchendaele—where Canada

though winning splendid laurels, did so at a price.

Lens—so fiercely fought but so gloriously won.

Arras—Where Canadians never budged.

Cambrai—of unpleasant memories on account of our serious reverses on a previous occasion but now shinning with glory and splendour.

We venture to say you would not take thousands in gold to have missed it but you would not take millions to go through it again. Our breasts heave with unspeakable pride at the mention of these names which we shall ever sacredly cherish. We look upon you, Sir, as those names and places personified. Your laurels are truly many and great, and we your friends, neighbors, and acquaintances feel justly proud tonight to have the privilege of expressing our admiration and appreciation for one who has for four full and historic years stood between us and monstrous wrong and brutal slavery and has jeopardized his life daily for right, freedom, loved ones, King and Country.

Our wish and prayer is, Sir, that you may be long spared to enjoy your well-earned honors and we would kindly ask you to accept this small gift as a token of our appreciation for the most glorious services you have rendered.

THE STATUTES OF METZ.

METZ, France March 22—The municipality of Metz has decided to replace the statues of William I, of Frederick Charles, of Frederick William and of the Man of Iron, with monuments to the glory of the victors in the great war. The rough model of a French polli already graces the pedestal of the statue of William together with the metal out of which it will be cast. Two allegorical bas-reliefs will represent the departure of the notables of Metz for the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein on July 31, 1914, and the entrance into Metz on Nov. 19, 1918, of General Petain and the French troops respectively. The inauguration of the monument, which will be the work of the sculptor Bouchard, who won the Grand Prix de Rome, is fixed for Nov. 19, 1919, the first anniversary of the entry of the French troops into Metz. A commemorative medal will be struck out of bronze of the statue of William. It will bear on the front the head of a piolu, and on the reverse the head of a young Lorrainian, with the device "A la France. La Lorraine reconnaissante."
