SCHOOL EXAMINATION AT NORTHAM

Many of the residents of Northam enjoyed a rare treat on the afternoon of June 30th. In the shape of the semi-annual school examination. The teacher, Miss Helena MacDonald, who had had charge of the school since the beginning of February, had during her entire stay labored tirelessly with her pupils so that when the final test came they were ready. The classes were examined by Miss Eleanor Dymetz, Miss Etan Stewart, Miss Laura Dymetz and Mrs. MacDonald. A very entertaining program, consisting of songs, dialogues, monologues, etc., followed, then the ready and congratulatory remarks Mr. D. S. Ramsay voiced the sentiments of all present when he spoke in glowing terms of the excellent work done by Mrs. MacDonald and the pleasant relations existing between teacher and pupils. He referred to the advancement that had been made along several lines but more particularly to the very noticeable improvement that had been wrought in the manners of the pupils. (When we meet the small boy on his way home from school, and he suddenly stops his game to politely touch his cap, we invariably ask who teaches in that school, if we do not already know. Thus, Mrs. MacDonald's patient work has not gone unnoticed. A very interesting feature of the examination was the display of fancy work made by the pupils under the direction of the teacher. School Leaving Certificates were presented to Glenn Stewart, Alfred Linkletter, Annie Dymetz, Roy Dymetz, Lena Colwill and Fay Linkletter. Prizes for perfect attendance were won by Ethel Dymetz, Fay Linkletter and Alfred Linkletter. Prizes were also given for Class Standing and highest marks gained in School Leaving Examinations. In our estimation the highest tribute that can be paid to a teacher is that she considered nothing a trouble that was for the advancement of her pupils and we can truly say this of Mrs. MacDonald. DUAL PURPOSE COWS GAIN FAVOR The day of the dual purpose cow is here. Her place is on the average farm where specialized dairying or specialized beef making is not desired. The average farmer is not a specialist. He is not interested in the two cows to one calf proposition, nor is he satisfied with dairy products only but show him a big, shapely, smooth-fleshed cow that swings a good udder and you have his attention at once. The dairy specialist may call the dual cow a myth but even he is not immune to mistakes as many of us who have had experience with real double-deckers know. The dual purpose cow is needed. When the patrons of mixed farming are able to find the class of cows that will produce more butter fat to sell, more skim milk for the pigs, better steers for the feed lot and better heifers to replenish their herds, they will buy them just as they are available and at profitable prices to the producer. Real utility is what is sought by the average farmer. It may be found in dual purpose cattle.—T. R. N. BOY SCOUT CONGRESS PARIS, July 27.—An international congress of Boy Scouts, presided over by Lieutenant General

General Baden-Powell announced that the membership of the Boy Scouts of the world was now nearing the two million mark. MUCH LOWER PRICE EXPECTED FOR HAY KINGSTON, July 28.—Discussing the price of hay, a large dealer states that in view of the general crop there, it would be
