TO ATTEND MEETING — Mrs. Ed Cullen, Misses Mae King, Mary I. Devereux, Florence McInnis and Eileen McDonald are leaving this morning by motor for Glace Bay, N. S., to attend the annual meeting of the Maritime Council of Catholic Nurses being held there on Aug. 21-22.

OFFICERS ENJOY VISIT — The officers of the P.E.I. Light Horse were the guests of Premier Thane A. Campbell at his summer home in Stanley Bridge last night. Twenty-four officers of the unit which is now under canvas at Brighton Camp, motored to the summer home of the Premier and attended a very enjoyable supper and clam bake.

CLASS REUNION — Among those attending Old Home Week were the following graduates of the Class of 1935 and 1936 of Union Commercial College—the Misses Kay Campbell of Wollaston, Mass., Aggie Bradley of St. Teresa's and Freda Peters, Rustico. While in Charlottetown they were pleased to meet some of their classmates namely. Margaret Ramsay, Marion McKinnon, Eileen Wisner, Leo Murray and Reg Younker.

POLICE COURT—Ten persons appeared before Acting Stipendiary Magistrate J. A. Bentley in the Police Court yesterday. Two drunks and incapables, one a female were each fined $10 and costs or twenty days in jail. Three others on a similar charge, who failed to appear had their bail bonds of $10 each estreated. Two, on drunk and disorderly charges were fined $10 and costs or twenty days and $15 and costs or thirty days respectively. A party on a disorderly conduct charge was fined $20 and costs or thirty days, suspended sentence. A drunk $10 and costs or twenty days and a second drunk dismissed.

GIFTS TO BAND—West Kent School Band boys report favorable progress in their campaign to secure funds for equipment. In addition to cash contributions recently reported, the boys wish to acknowledge the gift of a drum from Mr. Reg Aitken and a key bugle from Mr. Ed. Acorn. Cash contributions were made also by Mr. Mac Irwin, Mr. J. P. Crockett, and Mr. J. O. Hyndman. The boys appreciate the generosity of these supporters and express the hope that others will respond within the next few days.

"HUNS" ARE PLENTIFUL — Hungarian partridges are quite plentiful in the province at present according to Constable Spurgeon Jenkins of the R.C.M.P., Game Warden. These birds were introduced to the Island about 12 years ago by interested sportsmen and since that time have increased rapidly. Constable Jenkins expressed the belief that "flushing bars" should be placed on farms where the birds have built nests in the standing hay. He estimated that 100,000 eggs were destroyed on the farms during the cutting of hay and grain this season. The hunting season may last for more than a month this year. The native partridge are also plentiful but there is only a 15 days season on these birds.

REGISTRATION AT AIRPORT AND HOSPITALS—Registration of men working at the Charlottetown airport was commenced at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and at 5:30 in the evening when the registrars finished 320 persons had been given certificates. This is approximately half the men on the project and it is anticipated that the work of registering will be concluded today. Through the courtesy of Mr. J. C. Pinch, Chief Engineer, an office was fitted up for the registrars and tables and chairs placed in it. Also through his co-operation signs were put up all over the property pointing to this registration office and arrangements made to have the watchman take the men to the place in groups of half a dozen thus assuring a steady stream of registrants to the officials. At the P.E.I. Hospital approximately 50 of the staff members and 12 of the patients were registered yesterday. There were 63 patients in the hospital and it is expected the remainder eligible to register, will answer the questionnaire today. At the Charlottetown Hospital the work of registration was also in progress yesterday with approximately 90 staff and patients filling out registration cards.

PRE-NUPTIAL SHOWER — On Friday evening, August 9, a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Scott, Meadowbank, to tender a miscellaneous shower to their daughter, Lulu, prior to her marriage. To the strains of the Wedding March played by Mr. Lyman Dunsford, the bride to be was escorted to the seat of honor by Miss Ruth Bain and Miss Kathleen Carter. The gifts of which there was a magnificent display were opened by Miss Ruth Bain and Miss Kathleen Carter, while the accompanying verses were read by Miss Lillian Scott. Miss Dorothy Good arranged the gifts on the table. Miss Scott made a fitting speech and in her own pleasing manner thanked all for their lovely gifts. After singing "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow" the bride-to-be was bounced and showered with confetti from a balloon which hung from the large white bell. After lunch was served the remainder of the evening was spent in social intercourse. Music on the violin was furnished by Mr. Lyman Dunsford, Mr. Fred Dunsford and Mr. Francis Doyle and on the guitar by Miss Blanche Dunsford and Charles MacKinnon. After expressing many good wishes for the future all wended their way homeward pleased with the night's enjoyment.

Dom. Control In Education Is Strongly Urged

"Out of the present distress a new world will be shaped and born. Let us mark seriously our duties to those who will be citizens of that new era," F. Clyde Auld, M. A., B. C.L., Professor of Law at Toronto University said in an address given at the Rotary Luncheon yesterday. The subject of the address was "Education today and tomorrow."

Rotarian Red Ainsworth was in the chair yesterday and the guests were: Rotarian D. Cushing, Montreal, non Rotarians, T. W. Morris, Minudie, N. S., G. R. Spencer, St. John, J. E. Robinson, M. A., Charlottetown and C. N. Bissett.

On motion Rotarians on active military service Major Tom Rogers, Past President A. R. Cooper, Pay Master at Aldershot, Don Archibald, and Dr. Gilbert Houston, were made honorary temporary members.

Rotarians who will furnish transportation for the picnic for crippled children were asked to send their names to the Secretary Roy Cudmore.

The text of Professor Auld's address was as follows:

EDUCATION—TODAY AND TOMORROW

"Your Secretary telephoned me the other day, and asked me to speak to you. He left the choice of a subject entirely to me. My first thought was to say something about that all-engrossing topic—the war; and so I began to collect my thoughts about the origins of this conflict, our present difficulties, and our hopes for the future that lies before us. These thoughts all seemed to lead in one direction—education—and so I found my topic—education; today and tomorrow.

"I can claim, I think, to be reasonably well acquainted with my subject matter. For many years I have been a member of the staff of a university; for almost as many years I have held executive office in associations for worker's education; and in more recent years I have been connected with the whole field of adult education and university extension. Elementary and high school education is closely linked with the other activities that I have mentioned; and of necessity I have had to keep in touch with this phase of the problem.

"I shall begin our survey of education by asking you to consider what is implied in the totalitarian idea which dominates Europe today, and against which our British people is waging a war for democracy and sanity. Dr. Ley, German Minister of Labour, said recently: "We begin with the child when he is three years old. As soon as he begins to think, we put a little flag in his hand; then follows the school, the Hitler Youth, the Storm Troops, and military training. We don't let him go . . . . ."

Education in Germany

"Do you realize how fully and completely the German state or, for that matter, the Italian state, or the U.S.S.R. goes about this business of indoctrinating children with the totalitarian concept? I doubt it. You would have to read the school text-books. to talk with the teachers, to observe the whole system in action, before you grasped its import and its deadly seriousness. When I prepared a few notes the other day for this talk, I had before me a picture of an elementary school in a small German town. A class of little ten year olds, boys, were reading, each of them, a copy of a Nazi paper. This was a part, and is a part, of the day's work. Hitler-inspired editorials in the Volkische Beobachter, the venomous diatribes of Goebbels in the Angriff, the obscene ravings of Jew-baiter Streicher in the Sturmer—these are daily fare for little boys. The little girls need not read them perhaps; for women have their education planned on less ambitious lines. The old German motto for women's aims was kinde, kirche, kuche—Children, Church and Cooking. "Church" has been pretty well eliminated, but intellectual subjection is firmly enforced.

"The whole educational system of Germany is dominated by one essential concept — the Weltanschauung—or world— outlook. This envisages all human affairs in their relation to the dominant Aryan race under the tutelage of the German people. All who do not belong to the Aryan group are "lesser breeds—without the law", to use Kipling's unpleasant phrase. In that arrogant claim to superiority, all of the real values of human relationships are distorted. A ruthless subordination of the individual to the state has come to permeate every branch of educational activity—until the essential idea of teaching as a means of drawing out the best of individual effort is lost.

Some Good Features

"Against all of this withering and damning regimentation can anything be said in favour of the system. Yes, a good deal can be said. The social services, the agencies that minister to health and physical well-being are extremely well organized. Physical culture, fresh air camps, well-lighted and comfortably furnished class rooms are practically universal—and I can imagine a Nazi contemplating with something like horror the conditions that prevail in this regard in some of our rural schools in Prince Edward Island. Text-books are free, or else amazingly cheap, and are most attractive in their appearance and in their contents; except for that subtle poison of perverted ideas that is instilled into all of them. Ambitious and clever students find the way made easy for them by scholarships and bursaries. A superficial observer would be inclined to characterize (as I have heard many do) the German school system as being among the best in the world. Certain it is, that Canadians have been amazed at the thoroughness of much of the German teaching, particularly in the sciences and in languages. Nearly every graduate of a German university that I have met has been able to speak fluently at least three languages.

"All that I have said can be summed up in a few words. The leaders of Germany (or Italy, or Russia) realize the enormous strength of a people imbued with a single idea and a single purpose. They realize that an older generation, which had known liberty and democracy, will give lip-service only to the new creed of ruthless force; but they know that if they can control step by step, the education of the children, they can raise up a new generation so completely filled with these new ideals that loyalty to the common cause has become a matter of instinct rather than reason. With that thought in view the leaders have lavished money upon education, have procured the finest equipment, and have spared no effort that can minister to educational efficiency.

Concern of State

"You will note that one cardinal fact emerges. Education is the concern of the state, qua state. There is a ministry of Education; and, under the Minister, in many closely co-ordinated departments all educational agencies are administered and operated.

"Let us compare this system with our own. In Canada we have taken care by statute to deprive the Dominion of any effective power to deal with matters of education. The reasons are pretty well known. S. 93 of the B.N.A. Act provides that in and for each province the legislature may exclusively make laws in relation to education, subject and according to certain provisions, these provisions being intended to secure any rights and privileges with respect to denominational schools existing at the time of union, and to provide in particular for the continuance of 'separate schools.'

"The result of S. 93 has been to exclude the Dominion completely from the field of education. For example, a bill to incorporate an association of teachers with power to exercise their functions as such throughout the Dominion, has been held to be ultra vires the Dominion parliament, because it falls within the class of subjects exclusively allotted to the provincial legislatures under S. 93 of the B. N. A. Act.

"What is our situation, therefore? We have nine provinces, with widely differing educational systems. In some of them, we have 'separate schools,' with curricula that in some respects differ widely from those of the public schools, and I do not need to tell you that in more than one province this has been productive of expensive legislation, and much bad feeling, and that it constitutes a major political problem. There are, in every province, private schools, often functioning without any direct supervision of the department of education. The variety of courses and text books is bewildering. A student who goes from one province to another may find himself seriously handicapped in adjusting himself to altered requirements. In higher education the situation is worse. The high school leaving certificate of one province may fail to satisfy entrance requirements for a university in another province. In a still higher field, we find that the university qualifications accorded by a professional degree in one province, in law, in medicine, in engineering, and the like, has no effect or validity in another province.

Productive of Evils

"If totalitarianism in Europe has erred in the direction of centralization, what shall we say of our own system. Simply this, that with us decentralization has carried us to the other extreme, and has been productive of many evils.

"The teachers in our schools are very aware of this, and there are Dominion-wide associations, such as the Canadian Teachers' Federation, whose members meet annually to pool their information. The universities endeavor constantly to harmonize their efforts in the direction of united effort. The Workers' Educational Association, incorporated in Ontario, has established its branches in other provinces, with the end of securing to workers throughout Canada an opportunity to study labor problems together, and to participate in cultural pursuits. The Association for Adult Education aims to co-ordinate the scattered activities of Women's Institutes. Home and School Clubs, Farmers' Unions, Community Welfare Associations, the education of soldiers on active service, and a host of other activities. But, in all of this, the Dominion must be silent, except in so far as the Ministry of Labor and the Ministry of Agriculture may lend a sort of clandestine aid.

"This is a situation which ought to be remedied. Dominion agencies could do much, were they permitted, to remedy a situation in which systematic training in ideals of nationhood is too frequently overlooked or disregarded.

"Here is an item from last week's reports of the meetings, at Hamilton, Ont., of the Canadian Teachers' Federation:

"'From Manitoba came word that the Department of Education had circularized all teachers, inquiring whether they were British subjects; what patriotic exercises were carried out in their schools; what, if any, was the extent of non-participation by pupils in these; in what fashion they were presenting the cause of the British to the pupils, and other like questions. The questionnaire had established the fact that out of some 3000 British teachers, 230 were British by naturalization. Cases had been cited, too, of pupils refusing to take part in patriotic exercises, some on national grounds, others on religious.'

Doing Valuable Work

"The teachers many of them, are doing a valuable work in inculcating the principle of loyalty to our British institutions. And, in some of the provinces, the departments of education are lending a hand; but, surely, there is, in this sort of effort, or there ought to be, a place for guidance and supervision by the Dominion authorities. Make no mistake about it; there are subversive elements in some of our schools. In some of them patriotism is derided, and in some of them, in recent years, much has been heard of a sort of weak and vaguely sentimental internationalism, the kind of thing that infected many of our British statesmen and that caused untold harm to us. More than that, some schools and educational societies, more particularly those operating in the foreign sections of our larger cities, have been actively promoting a loyalty to foreign states, and a contempt of our British institutions.

"What is the remedy? Well, I, for one, would like to see some change in our B.N.A. Act which would enable some steps to be taken in the direction of centralizing education, by giving to the Dominion a measure of control in those fields of learning that concern most deeply the basic concepts of our nationhood. I believe that could be done without rocking the Province of Quebec to its very foundations, or imperilling the vested rights of any special religion. As a more immediate remedy, however, I would suggest that the provinces be invited to cooperate with the Dominion by including in every school curriculum the study of civics and citizenship based upon a series of Dominion pamphlets and text books, to be prepared by the best minds in the country, and to be supplied by the Dominion to every school district, free of charge, or, at least, at a very nominal figure.

Some Evils of System

"There are other aspects of our educational problems which disquiet me. Let me make this part of my remarks rather local in its application. I have read in your local papers advertisements by school trustees for teachers at the kind of salary I would pay for a good domestic servant—and remember, the servant gets her board and lodging free. I have seen many country schools that look as ugly and weather beaten as they did twenty years ago. Can you expect anything but unrest among teachers if you pay them an inadequate wage? Can you expect anything but apathy among students if you ask them to study under repulsive conditions? It will not do to point with pride to Prince of Wales College and the library. After all, it was not entirely your money that went into those fine institutions. Are you spending enough on education? You may think that you spend a lot; but think, if you can, of anything that pays back so richly what you spend. I am seriously concerned about the direction in which your education is orientated? Does it lead to a desire for the good life in this your province: or does it turn the students' eyes to life away from the province?

"The school books require a more frequent overhaul. The geographies are out of date, and seriously so. It may be impossible to keep up with the changing map of our unhappy world, but, at least, supplementary matter can be prepared by the Department of Education, mimeographed, and sent to all teachers.

Languages Important

"I cannot think that sufficient emphasis is placed, in our schools, upon the teaching of languages. I shall not attempt to criticize the schools of this province, but I can tell you that in Toronto I seldom find any of my students who can speak French, or even read it with any degree of facility—and this in spite of the fact that they get four years, or more, of instruction in the schools. Surely, something is seriously wrong there. Of course, in P.E.I., where many of our citizens have French for their mother tongue—when, for instance, you will hear it spoken every day on the streets of Charlottetown, there is every chance to learn French, and every graduate of P.W.C. should be fluent in it.

"I wish I could think that in every district the best type of men were chosen as school trustees. Perhaps this is so in P.E.I.—but I am inclined to doubt it. I believe that there are school districts where not one woman is to be found on the school board. This is deplorable. Half of our pupils are girls,—most of our teachers are women. Do you think it fair that a young woman teacher should have to confront a board composed entirely of men,—and men who frequently have out-moded ideas of what the school ought to stand for. In this province the Women's Institutes are the most active agency for betterment of school conditions. The brunt of the work for improvement of social conditions is borne by the women. If this is so, don't you think you could clear off the school-board some of the graybeards who have been there for the last twenty years, and give the women a chance.

Grave Responsibility

"I have tried, in these random observations, to charge your minds and your consciences with the grave responsibility that is yours and mine in the training of our children. At no time has it been so necessary to guard the heritage of sound learning and good citizenship that is ours.

"Out of our present distress a new world will be shaped and born. Let us mark seriously our duties to those who will be the citizens of that new era. Let us give them a clear vision of whatsoever things are lovely and of good report, so that, when peace reigns once more, they may see the right and follow it, and enjoy, in a better and cleaner world, the happiness and security that is denied our anxious and troubled generation."

Many People Registered On Opening Day

The National Registration got away to a good start in the city yesterday, and it is estimated that over one-third of the population eligible to register took advantage of the fine weather to visit the various polling booths. Registrants started pouring into the booths when they opened at 8 a.m., and a steady stream kept coming until closing time at 10 p.m. last night.

From five to seven registrars rushed the applicants through, and nobody was subjected to any long waiting period. Everything worked smoothly at the polls and plenty of volunteer registrars were on hand. At the poll in Queen Square school there were 14 desks at which registrars handled applicants from Ward 2 East. The Boy Scouts and Girl Guides assisted in the registration by conducting the people into the polls and escorted them to the desks. The Guides also distributed pamphlets on the Voluntary Registration of Women which takes place in September. These pamphlets were given to the women only.

No trouble was anticipated in country districts as the work of registering was well organized and everything prepared for the three-day registration which will close on Thursday night at 10 o'clock. Everyone over 16 years of age is required to register, under penalty of a heavy fine. If a person is 16 on the last day of the National Registration he is required to register.

International Labor Office Moved To McGill University

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—(CP) — The International Labor office will be located at McGill University in Montreal temporarily, Labor Minister McLarty announced today. Since its establishment in 1919 the office has functioned at Geneva, Switzerland, in conjunction with the League of Nations.

Mr. McLarty did not say when the move would take place. He said the government had agreed to the transfer to Canada of personnel necessary to carry on the work of the office and that McGill University had agreed to provide office accommodation.

The office became isolated from many of its member countries at Geneva due to the occupation of France by the German forces and the entry of Italy into the war. The result was the work of the organization could no longer be carried on from the Swiss city.

The staff coming to Montreal will consist of between 40 and 50 people under the director of the office, John G. Winant, former Governor of New Hampshire. Mr. Winant was the first chairman of the Social Security Board in the United States and has been associated with the International Labor Office since the United States became a member in 1930. He was appointed director two years ago.

Two Canadians, Ainsworth Johnstone, formerly of Toronto, and Henri Binet, formerly of New Brunswick, are members of the staff which will come to Montreal.

The International Labor Office was established in Geneva under the authority of the treaties of peace following the first Great War, to promote the improvement of industrial conditions by legislative action and international agreement. Its essential object has been to frame and supervise the applications of international rules with regard to conditions of labor.

Urges Federal Union With Great Britain

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—(CP)—Announcement of formation of "the New York committee, Federal Union, Inc.," which has as its aim the offering of a federal union to Great Britain was made today in a full-page advertisement in the New York Times.

The advertisement calls for immediate help to Britain by "sending the destroyers, planes and torpedo boats which she needs desperately and which we will not need as long as Britain survives."

It continues:—

"But suppose they don't turn the tide? The only way we can be sure of saving the British fleet . . and America . . . is through Union Now.

"What is union?

"It is the thing that Winston Churchill offered the French after the fall of Paris.

"Are we proposing that the time has come to build a Greater Republic. . . . One that would include our nation and Canada and England and Eire and all other nations, inside and out of the British Commonwealth, that are still free and able to unite?

"Yes—we are."

The advertisement called upon readers to "join the thousands who are demanding that America do something to keep her Atlantic defence." It said that the movement toward union began 16 months ago with the publication of the book Union Now by Clarence K. Streit, foreign correspondent of the New York Times. Federal Union, Inc., is incorporated as a nonprofit membership organization with members in every state in the United States.

In 20 days recently Haiti shipped over 11,000,000 pounds of sugar to other countries.

Capitol Offers New Mystery Melodrama

"Black Friday," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, is something new and exciting in the realm of horror pictures.

Universal studios, pre-eminent in its field of screen entertainment, has brought Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi together again in the starring roles, but their appearance is unlike anything they have done before.

These two masters of horror, who in the past have chilled spines by their weird make-up effects come to life in "Black Friday" as themselves. Without make-up, without shadowy lighting, without hunchbacks, without sliding panels, they move through a series of situations and manage to set a new high in horror pictures but without being [illegible].

Exceptional Performance

One of the surprises of "Black Friday," is the performance of Stanley Ridges, noted character actor, in the dual role of a college professor and a ruthless killer is undoubtedly one of the acting highlights of the season.

Also seen to advantage in important supporting roles are Anne Nagel, Anne Gwynne, James Craig, Edmund MacDonald, Paul Fix, Ray Bailey and others.

In addition to "Black Friday" we offer three excellent short subjects entitled Chicken Feed, No Parking, and You Ought to be in Pictures.

In Memoriam

MISS EMMA KELLY

On Saturday morning, Aug. 3rd. the Angel of Death visited, quite unexpectedly, the home of Mrs. Patrick Creighan, and called away her beloved sister Emma, who had been residing with her for the last four months.

Emma had lived in the United States the greater part of her life, but, of late, had not been feeling just as well as usual, and thinking a change would be beneficial, she came home to Shamrock to spend the summer with her sister.

No one ever thought of Death coming so soon as she was up around every day up to the day of her death.

On Friday night her sister noticed a change and immediately sent for the doctor and her pastor, Rev. M. J. Smith, who administered to her the last Sacraments, and she calmly and peacefully passed away the next morning. She never murmured nor made a complaint and was so cheerful and courageous that her death was a distinct shock to those of her household.

She received every care and attention from her loving sister, Mrs. Creighan, and departed this life fully prepared for the journey to eternity.

She was always noted for her honesty and upright character, and was a consistent member of the Catholic Church.

She belonged to several religious societies, to which she always generously contributed. Her charity and good deeds were done in such a manner that her left hand did not know what her right was doing.

A very large concourse of friends and relatives followed her remains to St. Malachi's Church, Kinkora on Monday, Aug. 5th., where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. M. J. Smith, who also performed the burial rites. Her body was laid in the family plot beside her beloved parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Kelly and her sister, Annie May, who preceded her many years ago.

There are left to mourn, besides her sister, (Addie) Mrs. Creighan, who sorely misses her; two brothers, John and Frank in Colorado, and a number of nephews and nieces.

Her eldest sister Minnie (Mrs. John Flood, and a brother James of Colorado predeceased her some few years ago.

The pallbearers were her immediate friends and neighbors Messrs. Alphonsus Malone, Aeneas Hughes, Emmett Hughes, George P. Trainor, Joseph Trainor, and Peter McMahon.

May the lately deceased, Emma Kelly, soon hear the consoling message, "Come, enter into the joys of the Lord," which is the reward promised to the good and faithful servant in this life. May her soul rest in peace.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLE

Prince Edward Isle, a land so fair
Lies smiling in the sun
Her sea-kissed shores and rolling fields
Are loved by everyone.

Her sons and daughters, stalwart and strong
Who love their Island home
Till the fields and harvest the grain
With never a wish to roam.

Peace and contentment linger here
The stranger is welcome too
God bless each one, till we meet again
And friendship ties renew.
