LAND WATERSPOUT'S TRICKS PUZZLE BEST EXPERTS

SHELBOURNE, Ont., Aug. 17.—(U.P.)—Farmers here are discussing the "land waterspout" which struck the John Sanderson farm.

The storm started out like a regular western "twister," witnesses said, but the dipping, whirling spout, coming from an almost clear sky, filled a dry ditch with water. Then it crossed an oat field, flattening the crop "like a giant steamroller." Finally, flooding one part of a back yard with water, it stripped one flower bed of all vegetation without injuring adjoining beds.

The water was believed to have been picked up by a small cyclone from Georgian Bay, or sucked up from a near-by stream.

CHINESE ENTER PROTEST AGAINST COOLIE CONSCRIPTS

PEIPING, Aug. 17.—(U.P.) — An appeal to General Chiang Kaishek has been made by the Relief Association of Honan province against the practice of conscripting coolies for work with armies.

This practice has been universal in China in recent years, and has worked great hardships on the coolie class, who are removed forcibly from their homes and sent to distant provinces.

The petition to General Chiang says that officials at Chengchow, Honan, were ordered to send 2,000 laborers to Kiangsi to assist in the warfare against Communists, and that 1,000 were seized in the streets and shipped off.

The association declares that the coolies were shipped to Hankow in closed iron freight cars, to prevent their escape, and that many died of the heat. "Not even dumb animals should be treated in such a manner," says the petition.

BLACK EAGLE OF ETHIOPIA PLANS ATLANTIC FLIGHT

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 17.—(U.P.)—The Black Eagle of Ethiopia gave a demonstration of his flying ability recently before a crowd of 3,000 negroes to convince them that he had the necessary ability and skill to make a non-stop trans-Atlantic flight from Harlem to Abyssinia.

The Black Ace, who really is Hubert Julian, is the man who smashed the one plane Abyssinian Air Corps during the coronation of the Emperor.

Now he is interested in obtaining financial backing so that he can purchase a plane for the flight. He announced to the crowd after landing that he would make a tour of the nation in an effort to arouse the interest of negroes in aviation.

EXCAVATION REVEALS ROMAN JIG-SAW PUZZLE

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(U.P.)—Excavations beneath the new building of the Royal Bank of Canada in Lothbury, E. C., have resulted in the discovery of an 1,800 year old jig-saw puzzle in Roman pavement.

Many pieces of the old puzzle are missing, but there has emerged a picture of the substantial house of some Roman citizen.

Archeologists are now studying the jig-saw puzzle and other sections of tessellated paving found in the area.

Washington Letter

(By Thomas L. Stokes, United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(U.P.) —The "complete letter writer" for government officials should be a big book with only one sentence written across each page, and that in red ink and large, bold characters:

"If you must write a letter, write it so that it can be read from the housetops."

For it seems that sooner or later most letters from government officials are doomed to be published and then it is too late for the writer. His apparently innocent words may take on a different meaning when lined up in the columns of a newspaper. Or their real meaning may become much more significant.

But despite all the trouble that letters can cause, lovers and government officials still continue to write the sort that bring difficulties.

Every year furnishes abundant proof of this fact.

A Warning

To the "complete letter writer" for government officials might be added one other line:

"Be especially careful in writing to congressmen."

Washington recently was treated to one of those incidents that arise from time to time, involving the usual triangle of a cabinet officer, a letter and a congressman. Now the whole country knows that Secretary of Commerce Lamont wrote a letter to Rep. Francis Condon, dem., R.I., in which Lamont was interpreted as recognizing the inevitability of wage cuts by saying that some industries were in such position that they either had to cut wages temporarily, or shut down.

The wage cut question is a delicate one with the administration which has used its influence in public pronouncements to hold reductions to a minimum. So naturally the letter caused quite a furor and immediately brought denials that the administration had changed its policy. But no one publicly ever undertook to say what Lamont really meant. He seemed to mean just what everybody read into his letter.

This was another one of these letters that is made public by a congressman. Condon lets the cat out of the bag and how it did howl, with sinister screechings, about the capital for a day or two. Lamont was away at the time and nothing came from him.

Another Letter

It was just a letter from an Assistant Secretary of Interior to President Hoover which, brought to the light of day, played quite a prominent part in senate rejection of the nomination of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina as an associate justice of the Supreme Court. Assistant Secretary Joseph M. Dixon wrote to President Hoover that the appointment would be a good thing politically in the south.

This letter somehow got in the file of correspondence on the Parker nomination that was sent to the senate judiciary committee, and that turned out to be quite unfortunate.

Veteran attaches of the government usually are careful to pass the word, when they can, to incoming officials about the difference in writing a letter as a government official and as a private citizen, or in private business. But despite the caution, ever so often the mistake is made, and there is resultant squirming, explaining and regret and occasionally the retirement of the letter writer from the government service.

CHINESE SHOPKEEPER LAYS CLAIM TO FIVE SAGES

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—(U.P.)—A small shopkeeper here who claims to be a reincarnation of five famous Chinese sages is attracting wide attention.

Chinese scholars have studied his case, and declare that although he can barely read and write he is able, when in a trance, to compose poetry in the finest classical style. He also is able to speak several dialects in the purest classical manner, they declare.

Some neighbors came to ask his advice about how to repair an ancient temple dedicated to a famous scholar. The shopkeeper went into a trance and was heard speaking a dialect which he does not know.

When he awoke, he said the sage himself, dead for five centuries, had spoken through him, and said, "I understand now that burning incense before my image is useless so I advise my worshippers to let the temple fall to pieces."
