The Girl in the Crimson Cloak

By J. R. WILMOT

"That was one of the reasons that prompted me to come down to-day, Auntie Muriel. You see, I thought I might sort of get my hands on..."

lert Leverton turned to her husband. "Do you suppose we shall have to..."

CHAPTER VII

ASH TALKS

"That's all right," Gerry assured her. "Uncle Gervaise will have his little joke. I'm on holiday, Auntie..."

Superintendent Ash met Gerry Daynton for the first time at lunch. Gervaise Leverton had mentioned...

"Not really," said Gerry, blandly. "If I could help, I'd be awfully glad..."

The meal itself was uneventful, but the food was good. No reference was made to the progress of the Superintendent's investigations...

"What are your plans, Gerry?" she asked. "About your holiday, I mean. Wasn't Gervaise saying something about your staying..."

It was after lunch while he was strolling around the gardens that he encountered Ash. Gerry had no notion...

"What about your hotel?" questioned Mrs. Leverton, quickly. "I suppose I could ask them to send my things on..."

"And if I stroll with you?" the Superintendent asked, commencing to refill his pipe...

"Won't you tell me something about the circumstances of the theft?" he asked. "It seemed odd that anyone should want to take the famous Leverton Diamond..."

"I'm always glad of company," replied Gerry, looking at the lonely spells while I'm on duty...

"What's that you say, my dear?" Gervaise Leverton's mind was fixed away at the moment...

"You wouldn't think it funny sometimes," Gerry mentioned, falling into step with the Superintendent...

"What's that you say, my dear?" Gervaise Leverton's mind was fixed away at the moment...

"You did, did you? Thought the local police force insufficient to cope with the case, eh?"

The Housewife And Her Activities

Coffee stains can be removed from delicate materials by brushing over the spot with pure glycerine; rinse in lukewarm water, and press on the wrong side.

An onion soufflé makes a tasty extra dish for dinner. Add chopped, boiled onions to the egg whites, beaten quite stiff. Then add egg whites.

British railways are building special coaches to run to people who wish to spend their vacations on sidetracks along the seashore or in secluded spots.

Britain is studying inconsistencies which may exist in marriage between a British subject and another from a country where polygamy is still recognized.

Arctic exploration is an unprofitable career. The most famous of Arctic explorers seldom have averaged more than one hundred dollars a year in income after meeting their expenses.

Salt, a necessary ingredient in the diet of humans and most mammals, has high antiseptic properties.

Black is still outselling navy in both plain and printed dresses, according to reports this spring. A swing in navy is anticipated as the season advances.

It is probable that no bird that ever inhabited the earth was capable of chewing its food, although some prehistoric birds had teeth.

Black satin shoes that have become rubbed at the toe and heel can be made to look new again by one coating with Brunswick black. One coating with a soft brush is sufficient. Do not put the shoe on until it is absolutely dry.

Vinegar, suitably diluted with water, is an excellent cleaning agent for many purposes.

Marble mantelpieces may be cleaned and polished, too, by being washed over with a large bowl of water to which a tablespoon of vinegar has been added.

It can be as gentle as you please when used with a little soap, and can be used for removing stains from such things as enameled ware or transparent fireproof dishes.

When used with powdered bath-brick, however, it is sufficiently strong to scour out rusty saucepans, and will prove very effective if the rust has been previously loosened with salad oil.

Don't Be Mistaken About Constipation!

A great many people, when they are constipated, open the medicine chest, take a purgative, and try to forget—until the ailment returns. And generally it comes back—more and more often—until you find the cause.

If that is the reason for your ailment, eat a good bowl of Kellogg's crisp All-Bran for breakfast. It forms the necessary "bulk," and contains Vitamin B1, the natural intestinal tonic.

It is an excellent plan to strengthen the self-acting muscles of the bowels when they are new by stitching tape down the length.

In this way you will find that the life of the bowels is lengthened considerably.

Men's accessories, like women's, have become emancipated. They demand recognition on their own and play a part in making a man's ensemble change its character on different occasions.

Men's hats for instance have undergone a deep sea change and emerge in subdued green tones. They may be banded in self color or, for that youthful touch, they flaunt a twisted cord in two deeper tones of green or green and a contrasting shade of green.

Shirts cannot resist green either. Deep green, pastels, in the contrast, are the style leaders this season. There is a new collar, too, with all the sporting insignia, and all the comfort of a soft collar, the softness achieved by a linen inlay.

Old shades of brown blue and dusty red are shown in men's shirts but they have to blend into the grey-blue-green color scheme or they are out of court.

In the solid colors or overchecks are shown designs in deeper tones of the same color head the fashion parade. So continue to match the tie and handkerchief.

Sweaters, especially sleeveless, have emerged from the purely sporting category and go about town as the complementary of odd jackets and trousers sets. They are the sweater stand-in for vests as come in bright colors, particularly yellows and greens.

The little things count, too. Collar pins with sporting insignia, cuff links of the new airplane design or set with birthstones are points to remember in a man's spring get-up.

Think of your school days—the prettiest girl in your class. And your first love. It was called puppy love—but you knew better. Or look out your window what a bitter gossip your neighbor is.

Can you make these people and experiences exciting enough? Certainly you can. Your plot is already in the making. A pretty girl in love for the first time—the subject of petty gossip.

Begin by putting down all you remember about your school friends—the things she used to say. Look up vivid words for first love, as you remember it—“enchanting,” “fragile.” Soon your story takes shape.
