A Shampoo

To make a shampoo, melt small pieces of castile soap with a little water and put away in a bottle. Before adding a few drops of olive oil. There will be practically no expense and you will have a good shampoo.

Indelible Ink Stains

If indelible ink has been spilled on linen, soak the article in salt water. Then wash it in water to which a little ammonia has been added.

Cooking Pancakes

When cooking pancakes or fritters for a large family, try using two pans. There will always be a supply on hand and the two pans will save time.

Cook's Corner

PEACH PIE

3 1-2 cups sliced peaches
3 tablespoons flour
3-4 cup sugar
Dash of salt
1 teaspoon any flavoring, if desired

METHOD: Wash the peaches, remove the skins, then slice them and measure them. Be sure, of course, that the peaches you use are perfectly ripened. They are richer in flavor and are juicier when they are at this stage.

Place the prepared peaches in the bottom of a pastry-lined pie pan. Mix together the flour, sugar and salt, and cover the peaches with the mixture. Trip flavoring if used, all over the top of the filling. Cover with strips of pastry arranged in a lattice fashion. Bake in a hot oven (450 deg. F.) for 12 to 15 minutes, then reduce the heat to moderate (350 deg. F.) and continue for about 35 minutes longer, or until peaches are tender. This pie doesn't need any accompaniment, whether served hot or cold.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Exemplary Parents

Lectures Go Unheeded Unless Youngsters See Elders Living Clean

All of us want our children to grow up into being exemplary men and women and to that end we lecture them continually about their manners and their morals. Most youngsters might well be the standard for the little boy who thought his name was Johnny Don't, so often had he heard those words from his parents' lips.

Few fathers and mothers fail to impress the beauty of the higher virtues upon their children, but when it comes to practicing what they preach most of them fall lamentably down, and it must make many a bewildered youngster wonder whether he should do as Mama and Papa say, or as they do. For often the two things do not jibe and on the principle enunciated in the old spiritual that "everybody who talks about heaven ain't going there," the kids conclude that their parents were only spoofing, and let their admonitions pass in one ear and out the other.

IMPRESSED BY TANGIBLES

This explains why parental preaching fails to give children the uplift that the proponents expect of it. For youngsters are hard-boiled realists who are little affected by what they hear. What motivates them is the tangible things of life that they see about them every day—home conditions, their parents' relationship to each other, what sort of principles their fathers and mothers live by any whether they are fakes or genuine.

It is the parent's example that counts with the children, not what they say. And you can't fool them. Every little tousle-headed, freckle-faced kid has his father's and mother's number down to the last figure, and is affected by this knowledge for good or ill.

If Mom and Dad are people of unswerving integrity; if they have standards of right living that they never lower; if they are fair and just in all of their dealings, and if they have gentle manners, their children will almost invariably stick to the pattern their parents set for them from the time they were babes in the cradle.

But it is a waste of words for a mother to preach truth to her children when they hear her lying over the telephone about some engagement she is trying to get out of, or "darling Maryling" some woman she hates and has just been vilifying, or telling her husband that the hat she paid $45 for was a marked-down bargain she got for $10.

Nor does it do any good for a mother to tell her children that they must cultivate good manners, and act like little ladies and gentlemen when she acts like a boor and talks like a fish wife. Nor does it profit her to impress on her children that they must live together in peace and harmony when she is in a perpetual fight with them and their father.

And when a man brags before his children about the money he has made on some crooked deal, or when he smirks over his accounts of what a devil he has been with the ladies, or makes a joke of how drunk he got at some party, need he be surprised if his boys follow his example and take the wrong road instead of the right one?

It is not the advice that parents give their children that counts. It is the example they set them.

Ellen's Diary

By an Island Farmer's Wife

Rain drops falling only in intermittent showers damped feminine locks this evening at the choring. Very welcome ones, all that blessed the earth this Summer have been. It was a cozy evening when since there had been no sign of a sun all day, the dusk settled down early. A friendly dusk I found it, which shut out all the cares and troubles and distractions of the outside world and left us at Alderlea cozy and snug within the nearer hills. But we were not without company. Mr. C. from the house on the hill, our school friend came up the short-cut through the field of grain. While we were still at our choring, He it was, who plucking up the extra pail assisted Jimmy at the calf-feeding. And all the time, they discussed their individual farm problems. This James said causing a moment in the barnyard to survey the low-hanging clouds and the way of the quiet wind. "Is not the best of weather for the potatoes—blight like it is—but they are certainly doing well since last week's spell of rain." Always Mr. C. and James enjoy their "calf talk." "And how long" James asked, looking down over the grain-field "will it be before there will be new grain in the mill? The harvest there is barely in the offing. There was talk too of the sawing, which has been continuing all Summer and it and the tattered rain-fall, to reach our water-lilies. But only briefly before an idle spell of rain, when their care by way of a favorite rod and reel. And often in the twilight or after, and out from the old mill road and into the darkness, make their way up and over the hill, morning toward the city.

Mattie, the black and white Muscovy duck and her offspring, obviously spent this day in their liking, when the showers provided small pools about the yard for their enjoyment. "No dear!" I distinctly heard her say to one of them, when between drops hurried to the recently filled wood-shed for an armful of sticks and James called "Ellen, why didn't you fill the wood-box yesterday? Didn't I tell you it was going to rain today?" "No, dear" Mattie said, much in her tone of voice that Karoly uses with Jamie "not like that—but this way" and dipping her head and neck dexterously in the water she spat it in a shower over her body setting an example of cleanliness to her stream-lined smiling brood. "See, I fear, may be Mattie, you are a little bit too much in the concerns of her growing children, leaving her fetching white mat to fill her basket was about this restless age she has washed his feet, so to speak, of the whole business, when she is busy with the ring to take his lonely but useful less speculative walks away from his progeny. At any rate, off he steps with impressive tread.

IT CAN HAPPEN HERE - IN A DREAM!

Restless sleepers frequently see themselves under fantastic conditions. The oracles say these dreams have these meanings:

- You Can See Your Own Back - Denotes a fortune
- You Are Wearing Wings - News from friends
- You Are Jumping - Up, however, down, poverty

How can a man look at his own back and keep his eye to the future too? Better to avoid dreams altogether! They may be the result of caffeine nerves—from drinking tea and coffee.

Drink Postum! It's the beverage with a full-bodied flavor all its own! Caffeine free—it is a wholesome drink that can't harm anyone. You make it right in the cup, with boiling water or hot milk. Costs less than a cent a serving. Enjoyable at any hour! The beverage for the whole family!

CLEAN UPHOLSTERY

Choose a sunny day for cleaning upholstery, to facilitate drying. Move the piece to be cleaned away from the wall, and put plenty of paper beneath it. Go over it with a vacuum or stiff brush to remove as much dust as possible. Work up suds in warm water with mild soap or upholstery cleaner. With brush or sponge pick area at a time. Scrub well, letting the lather disappear into the fabric, but not letting it soak too deeply. Wipe off excess lather with a cloth wrung out of clean warm water. Between such studies application, clean the brush or sponge. Place washed piece in a current of air to dry. Napped or pile surfaces, fringe or chenille trimmings should be well brushed when dry.

Serve a cool, flavorful jellied meat loaf or a hot Summer day. It's as tempting a dish as you can serve and at the same time it brings meat into the menu. Another asset of a jellied loaf is the fact that it is made well in advance of the meal.

POPULAR BEVERAGE

LONDON, Eng.—Tea is consumed by more human beings in all parts of the world than any other beverage, except water itself.

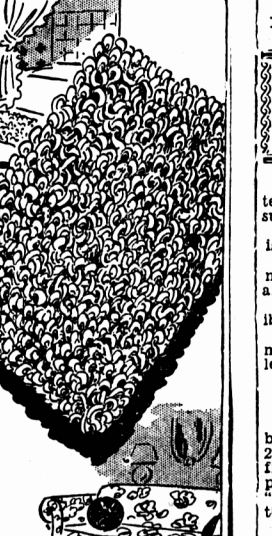

A gentleman is immediately recognized, no matter how simple her attire or ways.

ORIGIN OF GAZETTE

The origin of the term "gazette," when applied to newspapers, is obscure although one interpretation relates it to a small coin called the "gazette" which was the price of a paper issued by the Venetian Government in medieval days.

Hints on Etiquette

When you are walking on the crowded streets of town or city, keep to your own side of the sidewalk, giving the people who are coming toward you a chance to pass you without jostling or being jostled.

How Can I!!

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I remove white spots on the dining-room table caused by heat?

A. By applying, in order named: Kerosene, alcohol, and linseed or sweet oil. A different cloth should be used for each of them. Rub in the linseed oil until the spot disappears.

Q. How long should corn be cooked?

A. Do not cook green corn longer than twenty minutes in boiling water. The kettle should not be covered. It is twice as tender if the shucks are left on.

Q. How can I get rid of gnats?

A. One of the best preventives against gnats is camphor. It is also considered one of the best cures for their stings.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Should the envelope containing a formal invitation be addressed to Mrs. R. J. Wilson, or to Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Wilson?

A. Visitor (laying down the pen)—I don't mind if you have ovals in this note, but when they come out to see what room you take—that's too much.

SO ORDINARY!

"A good many ladies were disappointed this afternoon."

"How was that?"

"The guest was spoken of as a bridge expert, and he turned out to be nothing but a famous engineer."

Morning Smile

Visitor—What is this on the register?

Hotel Clerk—A bug sir.

EMPHASIS ON FLAIDS

NEW YORK—With their irresistible Scottish charm, "flaids" are much in evidence this year, sometimes in jackets but more often in finely kilted skirts and worn with the traditional plaid navy or black straight short box jacket. Some kilted skirts are fringed. All jackets, both separates and in suits, stress the broad shoulder. Many of the new suits show cutaway lines which somehow contrive to give a laced shoulder breadth.
